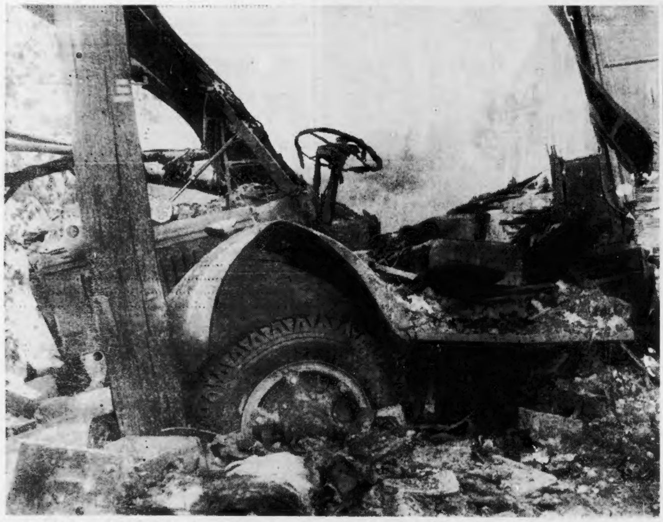
WHERE TWO TRUCKMEN LOST LIVES



In the flaming wreckage of this big ten-ton grocery truck, Driver Edward Long, 26, and his helper, Raymond Ahearn, 30, both of Somerville, were burned to death today, after the heavy machine had hit a tree and pole in East Bridgewater. The picture shows clearly how the truck's terrific momentum half buried its front wheels as it ploughed through soft ground at the edge of the highway. Spilled gasoline ignited and made the debris a roaring furnace in which the bodies of the victims were almost consumed.

PARKER GETS 6 YEARS, SON 3

Newark, N. J., June 30 (AP)—Ellis Parker, Sr., chief of the Burlington county detectives, was sentenced to six years in a federal penitentiary today and his son, Ellis, Jr., to three years for plotting the kidnaping of Paul H. Wendel.

The Parkers were convicted of conspiring to seize and torture Wendel, former Trenton lawyer, to obtain from him a false confession to the Lindbergh baby kidnaping. The "confession" delayed the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann three days.

The jury recommended leniency and Federal Judge William Clark, who imposed the sentences today, said then the recommendation would carry "great weight."

Half an hour after the sentence Chief Defense Counsel J. Mercer Davis announced an appeal would be taken to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Pending the appeal, Judge Clark fixed bail of $20,000 each.

It was the first set Budge had lost on his current British tennis invasion.

Budge won the fourth set, 6—1, and the match, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4.

President's Son, Ethel Wed Today

Wilmington, Del., June 30 (AP)—The President and Mrs. Roosevelt headed a host of distinguished visitors to this part of Delaware today for the wedding of their son, Franklin, Jr., to Ethel duPont.

There were 21 members in their party, including relatives, friends and members of the White House staff. Among the relatives were Hall Roosevelt, a brother of Mrs. Roosevelt, and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins. Officials included Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, who was accompanied by Mrs. Hopkins.

The day was partly overcast and there was possibility of showers during the afternoon, the weather bureau said.

The chief executive and his wife faced a busy day before leaving late tonight for their home at Hyde Park, N. Y., where they will remain over the July 4 holiday.

PRESIDENT A SPECTATOR

Shortly after their arrival they left the train by motor to attend a luncheon at the nearby home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Porter Schutt. The latter is the former Phyllis duPont. After the luncheon, the President planned to return to the train and rest before dressing for the ceremony.

That ceremony, bringing to its climax the story-book romance of Ethel and Franklin, was scheduled for 5 p. m. (E. D. T.)

It will make of the President, Cabinet members and heads of the du Pont mere spectators, taking a

Windsor Angered by 'Rotten Story' of Father's Burial

London, June 30 (INS)—The Duke of Windsor was so infuriated today over charges that he "rushed" his father's funeral that he telephoned an angry protest to the London Evening Standard.

The ex-King's rejoinder referred to the intimation of Sir Gerald Wollaston, who holds the royal office of Garter King of Arms, in a speech at the Lyceum Club, that undue haste was exercised in arranging the late George V's rites.

"What a rotten story!" the duke roared over the telephone from Wasserleonburg castle, Austria, where he is honeymooning.

"It was my mother's desire that the funeral take place on January 28. All except Sir Gerald agreed.

"I had to speak quite sharply to him."

SOMERVILLE MEN CRASH ON CURVE

East Bridgewater, June 30—Two Somerville men perished in the flaming wreck of a ten-ton grocery truck near Siddle's bridge today as fellow-employes and firemen sought vainly to save them.

The victims were Raymond Ahearn, 30, and father of three small children, of Moreland street, and Edward Long, 26, and single, of Vermont avenue, both of Somerville.

From tiremarks on the road police said that Long, who was at the wheel, had apparently been blinded by the dense fog as he was trying to negotiate the sharp S-curve at the bridge.

The ponderous truck, loaded with groceries and consigned to Orleans on the Cape, skidded 117 feet in a straight line, went over an embankment and crashed against a tree and a telephone pole.

GASOLINE BURNS

The crash telescoped the cab into the bulk of the truck body, trapping Ahearn and Long. There was a spurt of flame, a blast as the gasoline tank burst into flame, and then the wreck roared like a bonfire.

Lionel McDuff of Pennsylvania avenue and Leo McDougall of Pierson road, also Somerville, had been trailing in another large truck owned by the same grocery concern. They had successfully stopped their machine 200 yards behind the first.

They leaped out and turned hand extinguishers on the blaze, but to

Liner Hits Cape Lightship in Fog

With about 100 passengers aboard, the S. S. Acadia bound from Yarmouth, N. S., to New York, collided in the fog with the Vineyard Sound lightship at 7:22 a. m. today.

The stem of the lightship—the steel end of its bow — was twisted by the impact and the small craft rolled perilously in the sea, First Mate John Losinski reported. The lightship has a crew of 12.

The Acadia, under command of Captain W. B. Corning, proceeded on her way to New York. No immediate report of her condition was received by Boston offices of the Eastern Steamship Line.

The crash occurred in the same sort of a blinding fog in which the liner Olympic rode down the Nantucket lightship three years ago, sending seven men to their doom.

Only last-second maneuvering by the helmsman of the Acadia, and the fact that she was making very slow way, averted a possible repetition of the Nantucket disaster.

The fog, which blanketed the North Atlantic from Nantucket to Newfoundland, sent two other ships aground and slowed shipping generally. Although it lifted intermittently, the weather bureau said it would last most of the day.

One of the grounded ships, the

Cohen Again Absent From Mutual Hearing

Frank Cohen, reputed New York financial backer of the now defunct Commonwealth Mutual Liability Insurance Company, today again failed to appear as a witness as hearings into the affairs of the company resumed at the State House.

Opening of today's hearing marked the 11th week of the legislative inquiry into the defunct insurance company. On at least six previous occasions Cohen was expected to be present.

Much interest is centered on Cohen's testimony as a result of charges made at the hearing by Insurance Commissioner Francis J. DeCelles. The insurance commissioner termed Cohen "the mad dog of the insurance world" and during his testimony alleged that alliances existed between Cohen and other officers of the company.

COHEN HERE TOMORROW

When the hearing opened today, Senator Edmund S. Oppenheimer of Springfield, chairman of the special legislative committee, announced that Cohen had called him by phone from New York stating

Soviet Gunboat Sunk In Manchoukuo Battle

Hsinking, Manchoukuo, June 30 (AP)—A Japanese army communique announced today that Japanese-Manchoukuoan land forces had sunk one Soviet Russia gunboat, inflicted heavy losses on another, and repulsed a third vessel, after being fired upon at Blagoveshchensk, on the Amur river.

The communique asserted three Soviet boats, "invading" South Kanchatzu Island below Blagoveshchensk, "opened fire on Japanese-Manchoukuo guards." The Japanese action followed.

The Manchoukuo government immediately filed a vigorous protest to Moscow against the alleged invasion.

The Amur river runs along the northeastern Manchoukuo-Siberian border.

HURL ROCKS AT WORKERS IN OHIO

By the Associated Press

Canton, O., June 30—Rock-throwing pickets today injured five non-strikers entering struck mills of Republic Steel Corporation. Operations in three of Republic's Canton mills were resumed successfully, under protection of the Ohio National Guard, after an early morning flare-up.

Evacuation of 2000 men, interned in the plant since the strike was called May 25, was under way in groups of 800 at a time, as non-strikers moved in to take their places.

Dynamite smashed a water main, quickly repaired; telephone wires were ripped from poles, and jeering pickets were herded back by heavily armed guardsmen, aided by two low-flying airplanes, as the back-to-work movement was started.

Sixty pickets were arrested and held on technical charges.

NON-STRIKER HURT

The most seriously injured non-striker was Louis Govel, who was hit on the head by a rock as he entered the alloy plant of Republic.

Comparative quiet prevailed on other fronts of the steel strike, called by the SWOC against the Republic, Inland Steel, Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., over refusal of the concerns to sign labor contracts.

Republic Steel at Pittsburgh, posted a $1000 reward for the arrest and conviction of any person intimidating its workers in three Pittsburgh district plants.

At Johnstown, Pa., James Mark, CIO leader and C. W. Jones, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, were ordered out of the city by Mayor Daniel J. Shields, who told them their presence was "inimical to community peace."

The two refused to leave and Mark appealed to Governor George H. Earle for resumption of martial law.

The Youngstown Steel Mill district returned to the normal three-shift operating basis today with

The vote was 167 to 82.

The Chamber of Deputies already had approved the measure by a vote of 374 to 206.

Count Rene Saint-Quentin may be named next French ambassador to the United States, succeeding Bonnet, it was stated in informed government circles today.

U. S. Debt Up, Deficit Down, Billion on Hand

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The Treasury rounded out another fiscal year today with the smallest deficit in six years, the biggest debt in history and $1,000,000,000 in its cash box.

Government income was the largest since 1921 and spending was reduced from last year.

President Roosevelt made public at his press conference late yesterday a budget bureau report showing revenues would top his revised estimate by $50,000,000 to $60,000,000.

Spending for ordinary government purposes, it said, will exceed the forecast by $75,000,000.

The $75,000,000 figure, Mr. Roosevelt said, included $40,000,000 which the Treasury deposited in the social security old age reserve fund this month. It had been intended originally to make the deposit in the next fiscal year.

$36,400,000,000 DEBT

Including emergency and relief outlays in the spending estimate, Treasury statistics showed that expenditures went $137,000,000 over the President's revised estimate on June 26. The computation did not include $103,000,000 spent to pay off government debt.

The $137,000,000 excess over the estimate will increase further when spending is computed through June 30.

Mr. Roosevelt estimated the public debt would stand at about $36,400,000,000 at midnight tonight. This would be the largest June 30 figure ever recorded, but would be $233,000,000 under the all-time peak of June 15.

The President said the debt has remained virtually stationary since last December except for borrowing to finance Treasury gold acquisitions and payments into government life insurance, old age and unemployment insurance reserve funds.

REVENUES INCREASE

Borrowing for gold purchases, he said, has totaled $1,050,000,000. He asserted this borrowing put a corresponding sum of gold assets in the Treasury.

This and the other listed items, he said, brought a debt increase of $2,000,000,000 on paper.

Treasury reports through June 26 listed revenues this year at $5,248,578,000, or about 28 per cent over last year.

Expenditures through June 26 totaled $8,201,091,000, or 9 per cent under last year. Excluding debt retirement, the deficit on June 26 was $2,668,774,000, or $111,000,000 over the revised estimate.

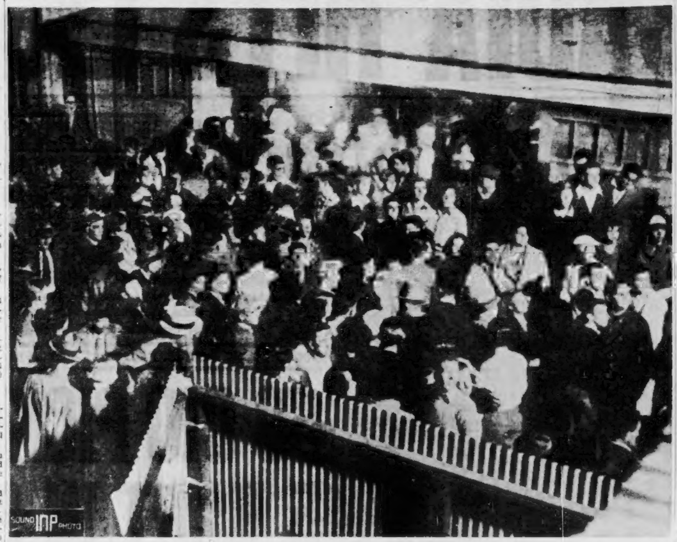
PROPOSE REFORM

The President's committee on administrative management recommended today a thorough overhauling of the government's fiscal machinery.

It urged that the Budget Bureau and the Treasury be reorganized and suggested that powers of the comptroller general be curtailed.

The committee, which formulated the President's broad government reorganization program, also proposed that Congress discontinue making "highly detailed appropriations," changing these gradually to "larger or lump sum amounts."

MOB AWAITING CAPTURE OF FIEND SLAYER



International News Photograph Service

Here is view of angry California citizens gathered outside the Inglewood jail as it awaited with cold fury the arrest of the suspect now being hunted for the brutal murder of three little girls aged 7, 8 and 9. The mutilated bodies were found in a ravine in the Baldwin Hills near Inglewood. The children had vanished Saturday. Lynch threats were heard on all sides as the search progressed.

Coast Sailor Hunted in 3 Child Slayings

Inglewood, Calif., June 30 (AP)—A man, identified only as "Eddie the Sailor," became suspect No. 1 today in the search for the crazed slayer of the three little Inglewood girls.

Rewards totalling $3500 spurred the hunt for the fiend's capture.

"Eddie the Sailor," police learned, almost succeeded in luring two more girls into his automobile Saturday—the day Madeline Everett, seven; her sister, Melba Marie, nine, former Dorchester, Mass., residents, and Jeanette Marjorie Stephens, eight, were slain.

Lillian Pope, 11, told officers she and her cousin almost joined the three victims in what "Eddie the Sailor" represented was going to be a rabbit hunt in the hills.

"When we reached the car, I kicked my cousin and reminded her, in whispers, what her mother had told her about going riding with a strange man," Lillian said. "So we didn't go, but Melba Marie and Jeanette and Madeline got into the car with the man."

Released after being subjected to questioning was a young man closely resembling the overall-clad workman who last Friday asked Olive Everett, sister of two of the slain girls, to accompany him on a "rabbit hunt."

Among the many suspects questioned was a maniac who escaped last Thursday from the state hospital at Camarillo, 50 miles northwest of here.

STATE-OWNED DOCKS URGED

State ownership of Boston's major piers and terminals was advanced as the only permanent solution of Boston's port problems by Richard Parkhurst at a hearing today at the State House before the special commission created by the legislators to study and report on the condition of the ports of Massachusetts.

Parkhurst, vice-chairman and secretary of the Boston Port Authority, declared the condition of port facilities in Boston presents one of the "worst pictures in the country."

After outlining to the commission the port's history and development, Parkhurst suggested that a single comprehensive plan be worked out, looking to the best use of all Boston terminal facilities, and that a vigorous campaign be launched to develop funds. This campaign, he said, should cover all New England.

Roosevelt Signs Relief, Farm Bills

Washington, June 30 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed the $1,500,000,000 relief bill today. It provides $1,325,000 for WPA, $100,000,000 for the resettlement administration, and $75,000,000 for the national youth administration.

The President also signed a bill appropriating $630,381,298 to carry out activities of the Department of Agriculture and the farm credit administration during the 1938 fiscal year.

The chief executive also signed a tax bill to finance the new railroad retirement plan and the measure extending for two years the so-called "nuisance" taxes, which are designed to raise approximately $625,000,000 in revenue annually.

STRIKE TIES UP ISLAND TRAVEL

A strike by employes of the steamship line between New Bedford and the islands of Nantucket and Marthas Vineyard today threatened to hit island residents as hard as any winter freezing of the channels.

With a walkout of seamen on the New England line, whose ships ply between New Bedford and the islands, mail and food supplies were embargoed. So were summer vacationists.

Airplanes may be pressed into service for the emergency, just as they were in winter, J. H. Lofland, general manager of the steamship line declared.

He said that the New Bedford Martime Union had called the strike, but as yet has not formally presented its grievances.

The New Bedford-Nantucket steamer Naushon was tied up at New Bedford. The ships, City of New Bedford and Marthas Vineyard, were tied up at Marthas Vineyard.

Patient on Table, Doctor Drops Dead

Halifax, N. S., June 30 (Canadian Press)—Dr. L. L. Harrison fell dead after a heart attack today immediately after completing a throat operation, with his sixyear-old patient still under anaesthetic on an improvised operating table.

Dropping his instruments into a steriliser, the physician collapsed on the kitchen floor of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Supple, whose daughter, Vivian, he had operated upon.

back seat for two youngsters in love.

The ceremony will be held in rural Christ Church in Christiana Hundred, near where long generations ago Eleuthere Irenee duPont began the gunpowder business that was to make his clan among the most famous and powerful of America's industrial families.

400 ON GUARD DUTY

Half a dozen policemen stood guard about the church at the time the President was arriving. The total guard in the countryside numbered about 400 police officers, secret service men and soldiers.

Tall John Roosevelt, the youngest of the President's sons, best-man at the wedding, was delegated at noon to round up the Roosevelts as they arrived. His grandmother Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, of New York, was due in about the same time as her son, the President.

When the President's mother arrived in the railway station John Roosevelt was on hand, but instead of accompanying her immediately he met a young woman whose identity was not disclosed.

The bridal couple began the day already rehearsed in their lines and well-showered with attentions that ranged from hundreds of simple gifts to elaborate parties, the last of which was last night. Their schedule included:

342 INVITED

The brief single-ring Episcopal wedding ceremony, with 342 guests invited. This was to be performed by the rector, the Rev. Frederick Ashton, who christened Ethel, and by the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton School, Mass., who has married two other Roosevelt sons, Elliott and James.

A reception for 1,300 guests by the bride's parents, and last, the dash for a mysterious honeymoon destination, said variously to be in Europe, at a friend's summer home, or possibly aboard a yacht.

Careful precautions were taken to see that everything ran on schedule, that there were no gate-crashers, and that guests were adequately entertained.

Arriving guests, met by cars arranged for by the bride's father, carried engraved "admit" cards. These were blue for the wedding and white for the reception. They were honored by officers stationed at the closed country lanes leading to church and home.

GIFTS ON DISPLAY

Secret service men stood guard at Owls Nest, the bride's home, where glittering array of wedding presents were on display for the first time.

Among the gifts were a huge silver platter, inscribed on the bottom, "to Ethel duPont from the Cabinet," a nest of four tables in rich wood, sparkling Steuben glass ware, rich linens, heavy old candlesticks and lovely china.

There were many simple objects. A sterling silver cigarette service was a miniature copy of an old-fashioned bacon box. An egg boiler heated by an oil lamp and large enough for four eggs was made in heavy silver plate.

The gifts bore no tags disclosing the givers—that information was to be available to reception guests from attendants.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt sent the flat silver—all possible pieces—as they have done for each of their children.

The rehearsal for today's ceremony was held early last night and Miss duPont flouted at least some of the tradition about such matters by taking part.

With young Roosevelt, she practiced kneeling at the chancel steps so they would know how to go through that crucial rite gracefully this afternoon.

The "practice wedding" was marked by much good-natured banter between those members of the bridal party actually practicing and others looking on. Young Roosevelt drew a laugh when he folded his long legs into kneeling position, but he finally managed so well he got a round of applause, too.

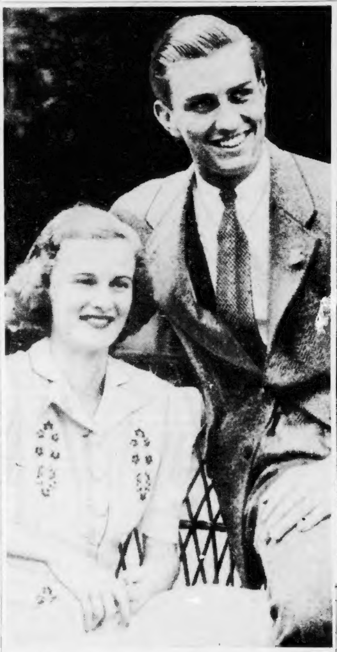
His principal comment on the whole event was:

"Gee, this is complicated business."

While the guests gathered today, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred V. duPont entrained for New York to go abroad. They expressed regret at leaving before the wedding.

Pierre S. duPont, titular head of the clan and a supporter of the Liberty League, which opposed Mr. Roosevelt's re-election, also was abroad.

His two brothers were expected to be present, however. They are Lammot, president of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Company, and Irenee.



Unmistakable on the faces of Miss Ethel duPont and her beaming young fiance is the happiness they have felt as they awaited today's wedding ceremony which will make them Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. The picture was taken earlier this week in the garden of the duPont estate.

Roosevelt Joins In Plea for Peace

Washington, June 30 (INS)—President Roosevelt today stepped into the European crisis to admonish Germany and Italy to keep the peace. The warning was sounded indirectly in a joint statement by the President and Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgian, at the conclusion of their conversations here.

The President took the occasion to reiterate that one of the chief aims of the United States is "to see peace preserved."

BARBARA CUSHING MRS. JAMES ROOSEVELT

FRANKLIN'S ROMEO ROLE STEP BY STEP

Wilmington, Del., June 30 (AP)—So carefully did Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., play his role as Romeo that the three-and-a-half years of his romance with Ethel duPont have yielded only the following mile-stones:

"Sometime" in early 1934: They met at a college dance in New York.

April 6, 1934: He smashed the camera of a photographer taking his picture at a Philadelphia wrestling match. Later it was found he was escorting Miss duPont.

June 27, 1934: He was among the thousand guests that attended her debut at her Wilmington home.

December 29, 1934: Miss du Pont was among the holiday house guests at the White House.

May 25, 1935: Miss du Pont was a guest in the Presidential party at Annapolis, Md., to watch boat races in which Franklin, Jr., participated.

September, 1935: Young Roosevelt chartered a plane to meet an incoming boat from Europe carrying Miss du Pont.

November 14, 1936: Their engagement was announced by her parents at their Wilmington home, "Owl's Nest."

November 26, 1936: Young Roosevelt entered Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, for a sinus infection which kept him there until January 8, 1937. Miss duPont was a frequent visitor.

January 20, 1937: Young Roosevelt arrived at duPont Florida home to recuperate.

February 21, 1937: Miss duPont rushed to Washington hospital for emergency appendectomy while a guest at the White House.

March 11, 1937: They leased a house at Charlottesville, Va., where young Roosevelt intends to study law at the State university.

June 30, 1937: They marry at the duPont family church outside Wilmington.

60 CIO PICKETS SEIZED AS MILLS OPEN

90 P. C. AT WORK

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., plant managers claimed 90 per cent of their force were back at work.

SWOC strike leaders watched the progress of the reopened mills from downtown headquarters, and dispatched organizers to conduct group meetings of the workers still holding the strike line. Picketing, however, was scarcely visible. Only a few pickets could be seen at some mill gates carrying union signs.

Entire blocks in Canton around Eighth and Belden streets were without telephone service. Wires, ripped from poles, hung on the ground on Eighth street. Telephone service was cut to the National Guard armory, but the service to the Republic plants was not affected.

Shortly after the movement of workers in and out of the Canton plants began, the guard reported that everything was under control.

By mid-morning, Republic announced that 112 automobiles had hurried approximately 450 workers into the plants and the movement of cars in and out kept up.

Some 200 pickets, many women, were kept moving smartly along by the guardsmen.

SHOUT AT SOLDIERS

Reluctantly, they kept on a patient march, two and three in a group, shouting "scab" at the soldiers.

Comparative quiet ranged along the other fronts of the Great Lakes steel strike, now entering the second month of a walkout called by the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee over refusal of four independent steel companies to sign labor contracts.

At Youngstown and Warren, the mills of Sheet and Tube and Republic continued operations, which company officials said were approaching normal for this time of the year.

Republic announced last night it would reopen its Canton mills today.

Some time during the night explosives damaged a six-inch water main in front of the alloy steel plant of Republic. The damage was quickly repaired. Plant operations were not affected.

RIP WIRES FROM POLES

Telephone wires were ripped from poles today.

Pickets massed around the entrances of the plants early today and Brigadier William L. Marlin ordered a gas patrol to disperse them. Guardsmen pushed the pickets out of the way and kept them patrolling in twos and threes.

Among those held by the guardsmen were Frank A. Hardesty, sub-regional director of the CIO, and Homer Downard, identified by the guardsmen as president of the "All-Nations Lodge," a CIO organization. The alloy plant normally employs 3500.

It was here at Canton that the steel strike began with barricades and picket lines after the corporation declined CIO's demand for a signed contract.

Tomorrow morning, at Indiana Harbor, Ind., more steel plants will open, the Inland Steel Company announced. But CIO's Van A. Bittner, regional director there, said the union would "do everything possible to stop the plant from opening; that 99 per cent of the 13,000 Inland Steel employes were members of CIO.

PRESIDENT'S COMMENT

Both sides were silent concerning President Roosevelt's comment that he believed the majority of people's opinion of strikers and steel companies alike was well summarized in Shakespeare's line: "A plague on both your houses."

White House spokesmen were quick to point out, however, that the President had not meant the comment as applicable to both sides in general, but rather to the extremists of both sides.

The Youngstown steel district, busy and smoky once more, scarcely noticed last night when the first night-time change of shifts in five weeks took place.

The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, back on a three-shift basis for the first time since the mills reopened last week, changed shifts at 11 p. m. with only two pickets in sight.

WAITS PROTECTION

Sheriff's men reported early today the finding of two dynamite bombs on a grass plot near the "stop 14" entrance to the tube company's main works.

Added to the announcement of Inland Steel's intention to reopen at Indiana Harbor tomorrow were reports that Republic Steel might resume operations of its Truscon Steel plant in Cleveland the day following. The company said it had withheld opening plants in Cleveland pending assurance of protection by local authorities.

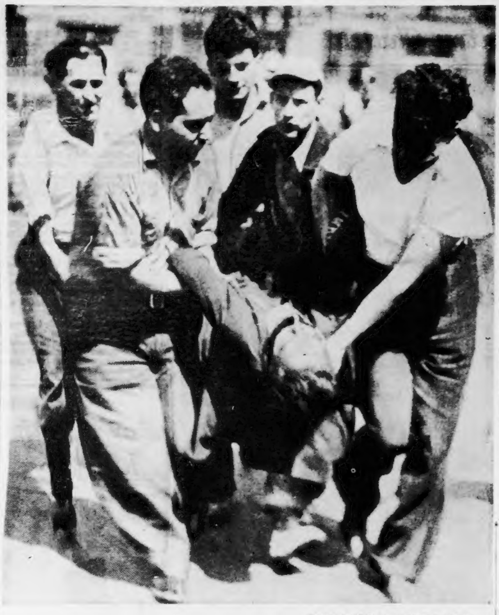
The hunt went on for Gus Hall, CIO organizer, who is named with five others in charges of plotting violence and terrorism in the Warren area.

CIO officers said, too, that Arthur Scott, one of the three alleged terrorists now held in jail at Warren, was on the union's payroll as an organizer; but spokesmen for CIO were quick to disavow violence as a strike weapon and to appeal to their members not to resort to it under any circumstances.

There was a movement under way by the citizens committee at Johnstown to make a national cause of "the protection of the right to work." Its chairman telegraphed invitations to civic groups in other cities to attend a meeting in Johnstown soon looking toward a national organization.

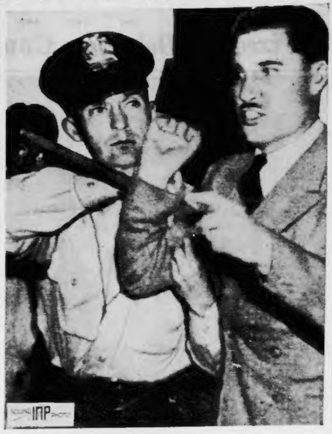
The Johnstown committee was formed June 19 to protest the declaration of martial law there and the closing of the Bethlehem steel works, with its $500,000 a week payroll.

CIO "TAKES IT," TOO, IN STEEL STRIKE VIOLENCE



International News Photograph Service

Being carried from the scene of strike rioting at the Moltrop Steel Products plant is this CIO picket, George Mike of Aliquippa, Pa. Allegedly hit in the face by a tear gas bomb, hurled by a deputy sheriff, he died later of a fractured skull.



International News Service Soundphoto

Definitely on his way out of a steel strike parley at Johnstown, Pa., is CIO Attorney Samuel R. DiFrancesco, ordered from the conference room by Mayor Daniel J. Shields. When DiFrancesco insisted on trying to make a speech, police ejected him. He said he represented CIO Leaders James Marks and C. J. Jones, both of whom Mayor Shields warned to leave town.

2 SOMERVILLE MEN DIE IN TRUCK CRASH

no avail. Police Chief Everett Russell, happening along by chance—not five minutes after the crash—sounded an alarm and brought fire apparatus to the scene within ten minutes.

The fire was so fierce, however, that it was another twenty minutes before Fire Chief Fred Smith, Deputy Chief Robert Lindquist and Fireman James Rogers were able to extricate the bodies from the wreck.

Both men were dead—horribly burned about their heads and bodies. Both of Ahearn's legs had been broken. Dr. A. F. Budreski, medical examiner, said that the flames had killed them and that no autopsy would be performed.

Police Chief Russell remarked that it was the first time in three years that a fatal accident had occurred at this curve in the road, which is the main highway to Whitman and the Cape. It was the first trip that Long and Ahearn had made on this route.

Ahearn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ahearn of Wisconsin avenue, Somerville, leaves a widow, Rose, with two sons—Eugene 7, and Robert, 4—and a daughter, Phyllis, only 10 months old. He also had four brothers and a sister, all residents of Somerville.

He had won fame for his baseball prowess, first at Rindge Technical School, later in the minor and semi-professional leagues.

He had caught for the Hattiesburg, Miss., team, for the Massachusetts Knitting League, the Somerville City Club, Hagan Club of Somerville, Cambridge Catholic Club and Hyde Shoe Club. He was also catcher for the championship Somerville team of the Finast League.

Long was the son of Mrs. Robina Long, with whom he made his home. A married sister lives in Medford.

Peace Talks Open in Wool Strike

Representatives of striking wool handlers and warehouse employes and spokesmen for the Boston Wool Trade Association, in response to summonses, today went into conference with the state board of arbitration and conciliation in an attempt to iron out differences which have tied up all wool shipments through the port of Boston for nearly two months.

The chief issue between the association and the striking employes is the closed shop.

Eliot Bicknell, for the association, has stated that the employers do not consider the closed shop a proper subject for arbitration.

Norma Parker Put in Solitary

Bedford, N. Y., June 30 (INS)—Norma Parker, Boston-born Broadway gungirl, and three women companions who escaped from Westfield reformatory only to be captured 15 hours later, were placed in solitary confinement today.

7 SHOT IN BACK IN CHICAGO MAY 30 RIOT

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The Senate Civil Liberties Committee presented evidence today that seven of the 10 persons killed in the Memorial Day battle with Chicago police, near a Republic Steel plant, were shot in the back.

Chairman La Follette (Prog-Wis.) submitted a hitherto unpublished coroner's report, showing that three of the slain men had bullet wounds in the side and the rest in the back.

The Senator read a police report which said that "some of the officers on the ground and at the mercy of the mob fired their service revolvers," and then asked Chicago Police Commissioner James P. Allman:

"Can you explain how these men could have been shot in the back, if the police were lying on the ground defending themselves with service revolvers?"

"They might have been shot in back by other strikers," Allman suggested.

Under La Follette's persistent questioning, Allman asserted that "it is a matter of judgment" where the bullets might take effect.

At the beginning of his testimony, Allman said his department was "absolutely responsible" for "everything that took place" in the Memorial Day encounter. He assured the committee that no private police, or detective agency, was involved in the clash.

St. Albans, Vt., June 30 (AP)—Albert Cooke, 53, employe of a dairy farm owned by former Congressman E. S. Brigham, died today of injuries suffered when he was attacked and trampled by a two-year-old bull.

Damon Runyon

A most casual reference in this column to Mr. Jim Dougherty of Delaware County, Pennsylvania, as the champion snorer, brought two telegrams and four telephone calls within a few hours of publication.

Both the telegrams and three of the telephone calls were from ladies. They all wanted to know where Mr. Dougherty won his title, and if he wishes to defend same for a small side bet. They said they have husbands they would like to enter in competition against Mr. Dougherty.

They insisted on presenting proof of the snoring capabilities of their candidates. One lady mentioned that her husband's snoring once cracked the ceiling in their apartment and got them in a lawsuit with the landlord. Another lady said that she is unable to keep lace curtains in her husband's bedroom because he is one of those snorers with an awk-awk-awk intake, and a prolonged phew-ew-ew-ew-ew outflow that ties the curtains in hard knots, like a heavy draft.

The third lady stated that her husband is one of the old-fashioned wood-sawing snorers, of harsh, rasping tone, who once snored so continuously that the vibration finally produced sparks and set the bed clothing on fire.

CALLS WIFE CHAMP

The fourth call was from a gentleman. As a matter of delicacy, and with a desire to shield the gentleman from possible reprisals, we withhold his name.

He said that while it is true that he has no line on Mr. Dougherty's snoring, he does not believe it humanly possible for any man or woman to come even close to his wife. As proof of her prowess, the gentleman cited the alleged fact that only recently her snoring was so voluminous and sustained that when he placed a hand over her mouth and nose by way of restraint, he suffered two broken fingers and a sprained thumb.

KID HOGAN'S POWERS

Not that it would make any difference in competition against Mr. Dougherty, however. It was with no desire to exploit Mr. Dougherty's championship that we mentioned the matter in the first instance. We were only speaking of an historical fact by way of illustrating some other point.

We regret that we must disillusion the ladies and the gentlemen who think they have snoring prospects, yet the incidents they mention are but child's play to a snorer like the champion, Mr. Dougherty, or even to a number of contenders, like Mr. Joe Benjamin, the former lightweight boxer, or Mr. Society Kid Hogan, of Chicago.

We once slept in the same room with Mr. Society Kid Hogan, of Chicago, at the time of a political convention, and his snoring aroused an entire California delegation three floors below and sent the delegates scurrying down into the lobby under the alarmed impression that a tremor of the earth was in progress. Mr. Society Kid Hogan was not even trying, either.

ADVANTAGE OF BOXERS

Of the derailing of a Canadian train by the snoring of Mr. Joe Benjamin, the former lightweight boxer, we will not speak at length. It was but a minor display, and some jealous rivals afterwards claimed that there was a cow on the track, anyway.

However, Mr. Benjamin can scarcely be considered an authentic snorer. Mr. Johnny Dundee, another lightweight, once struck Mr. Benjamin on the nose with great force and a gloved fist, inflicting damage that gives Mr. Benjamin an unnatural advantage over the average snorer. At that, Mr. Benjamin does not class with the old champion, Mr. Dougherty.

SNORES WHILE AWAKE

In view of the fact that competition has reared its ugly head, it would be unfair to reveal too much of Mr. Dougherty's form, but the record shows that once when he was sleeping in a farmhouse in Berks County, Pennsylvania, his snoring dislodged a sack of corn hanging to a rafter, and that the velocity of his snores subsequently stripped each and every ear of corn and blew the grains over 40 miles of surrounding territory so that for years afterwards surprised farmers kept finding corn where they had sown wheat, or barley, and in one case, rhubarb.

The boys around Lindy's claim they have a fellow who can snore even when he is awake. He sounds dangerous to the titleholder.

REJECT GUILD CLOSED SHOP PROPOSAL

Chicago, June 30 (UP)—Representations of state, sectional and National Associations of Newspaper Publishers, at a meeting here, acted upon the American Newspaper Guild's recent declaration for a closed shop in the editorial and news departments.

The resolution declared the publishers rejected the Guild's proposal.

After setting forth that the meeting was to discuss the closed shop "as a matter of journalistic and public principle, not as an economic issue," the resolution said:

"Established for the benefit of all the people are four fundamental rights in the Constitution—freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of assembly. Experience has proved and even now is demonstrating in Russia, Italy and Germany that the interference with one of these fundamental rights means the curtailing of the others—the collapse of liberty itself.

"Freedom of the press is not an exemption accorded by the Constitution for the benefit of publishers; it is but one of these four guarantees. It is a publisher's responsibility, a citizen's right—one which entitles him to an accurate statement of what is taking place in order that he may have the facts wherewith to judge matters of public policy and take whatever action may be necessary to protect himself and that which he holds dear."

After setting forth there has never been a time in our history when uncolored presentation of news was so vitally important as today, the resolution continued:

"This vital service of the press to the public can be performed properly only when those who are responsible for the publication are free to choose the persons whom they deem best qualified to report and edit the news.

"This responsibility cannot be discharged if some outside authority, beyond their control, determines whom they shall or shall not employ. That is precisely what the American Newspaper Guild seeks by its demand. And that demand is the more serious because the Guild is now committed to a number of definite political objectives."

The resolution set forth that the publishers are not opposing the closed shop because of labor issues involved "but because we are unwilling to turn over the news columns to any groups already committed as an organization on highly controversial public questions."

Husbands Price of Jobs

Tokyo, June 30 (AP)—Women workers in the pig iron department of the big local iron works, dismissed on the grounds that their husbands were employed in the same plant, announced today they would get divorces in order to regain their jobs.

"We have husbands, but we are independent workers," the leaders of the militant women workers declared. "We will fight for re-instatement even if we must lose our husbands."

Resume Mutual Hearing

he would appear as a witness tomorrow.

Senator Oppenheimer quoted Cohen as saying that a "very important meeting in New York today makes it impossible for me to be at the hearing."

Cohen, according to Senator Oppenheimer, planned to take an afternoon train for Boston, arriving here this evening prepared to testify tomorrow.

The first witness today, appearing at his own request, was Ray E. Latshaw of Beaumont avenue, Newtonville, and general manager of the defunct company. Latshaw had previously testified but he made the request to appear again before the commission to refute testimony directed against him by the insurance commissioner.

Commissioner DeCelles had devoted much of his testimony to alleged activities of Latshaw and other officers of the company.

SAYS COHEN DISCUSSED

Without mentioning the commissioner by name, Latshaw left no doubt as to whose statements he was referring.

"I know that statements made to this commission tend to blacken and besmudge my character but they are based on information that is absolutely incorrect," he said.

He testified that during the six conferences he had with the insurance commissioner before the company was organized Cohen "was "discussed freely." De Celles had testified that he had been unaware of Cohen's connection with the company until after it had been formed.

"It has been charged that I dipped my hands into the cash draw of the Penn Surety Company and took $7000," Latshaw said.

"That statement is absolutely untrue. The $7000 was a loan made to me as a result of a contract for a $10,000-a-year salary and a house to live in for a year and a half.

"The money was in two checks, signed by the president and secretary of the company, and was in connection with the house in which I was to live. The inference was plain that I might have been prosecuted for what I did."

Latshaw then introduced a letter which he wrote to Owen B. Hunt, Pennsylvania insurance commissioner, telling him of the probe here and also read from a letter he received in reply.

He quoted Hunt as saying:

"There is no substantiation of the charges made against you. Your period of employment with the Pennsylvania insurance department was without a blemish. The charge of a three million dollar error is absurd."

It had been testified that Latshaw made a "three million dollar error" in a sworn statement as to the assets of the Penn Surety Company while he was an examiner for the Pennsylvania insurance department.

W. R. HEARST'S AID TO JEWS PRAISED

BOSTON LAWYER LAUDS HELP

New York, June 30—William Randolph Hearst has rendered a great service to the Jews which they never will forget, 1200 delegates attending the 40th annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America were told today.

Mr. Hearst was lauded by former Assistant U. S. Attorney Elihu D. Stone, of Boston, a vice-president of the Zionist group, for making possible the senatorial commission to Palestine and publishing its findings in the Boston Evening American and other Hearst publications.

The convention adopted a resolution expressing appreciation to Senators Royal S. Copeland, New York; Daniel O. Hastings, Delaware, and Warren R. Austin, Vermont, who visited Palestine last winter as members of the commission.

"By presenting to the American people an unbiased and fair picture of conditions prevailing in Palestine during the time of the Arab disturbances, they have performed a notable service to the Zionist cause," the resolution stated.

Speaking on the resolution, Stone said:

"We owe a great debt of gratitude to the Senatorial Commission which visited Palestine in our hour of need. We deeply appreciate the great contribution made to the cause of the Jewish people in Palestine by William Randolph Hearst in making this Commission possible and by the publication of its report in so sympathetic and fair a manner.

"The Jewish people are a grateful people. They may forgive their enemies, but they never forget their friends."

Dr. Stephen S. Wise was re-elected president of the Zionist organization. He again pledged himself to fight any proposal for the partitioning of Palestine.

Unanimously elected vice-presidents were: Judge William Lewis of Philadelphia, Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, Elihu D. Stone of Boston, Nathan Straus of New York and Dr. Israel Goldstein of New York.

It was decided to launch a drive for a $40,000 fund to deal with political problems.

A committee of American Zionists, probably headed by Dr. Wise, will be sent to London.

Norwegian freighter Aranda was hard on a ledge off Grindstone Island, N. S., and was in such perilous straits it sent out an SOS.

Pushing to her aid, but forced to move slowly, were the Canadian National liner Empress of Australia and the oil tanker Canadolite.

The S.S. Allerton, of the Nantasket-Boston Line, had earlier gone aground on a sandbar off Bumkin's Island in Boston harbor, with 600 passengers aboard, including 200 Westboro school children. She was freed by the Coast Guard after an hour and 20 minutes.

The Allerton's passengers escaped without injury and the ship was not seriously damaged, according to the Nantasket line officials. She was the last boat of the night to leave Allerton, and many passengers were unaware of any mishap when she hit the bar.

However, other passengers showed a tendency to panic as the word spread around the boat that they had run aground. A violinist and accordion player, however, calmed their fears by playing lustily. They finally persuaded the passengers to join in singing with them.

A Coast Guard cutter was dispatched from the station at Point Allerton upon receipt of an appeal for help from Captain Kenneth Smith of the Allerton.

The passengers arrived in Boston three hours later than schedule. Many of them discovered that they had missed their last trains or cars home. A fleet of taxicabs was pressed into service.

The 200 Westboro school children had gone in a body to Nantasket for a day's outing. A special excursion train was awaiting them at the South Station.

Forced to tie up at the Buzzard's Bay end of the Cape Cod canal were the Merchants & Miners liners Berkshire and Juniata.

The Eastern Steamship liner Yarmouth, from Yarmouth, N. S., to Boston, was able to make port only a few minutes late. The S. S. New York, from New York to Boston, was about an hour late.

The hop will carry her over 2570 miles of ocean, from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland Island.

Famous Physician says:

"Watch Your Kidneys"

Try CHENEY'S JUNIPER and ASPARAGUS PILLS

THE kidneys are one of the most important eliminative organs of the body. Their useful function in eliminating waste matter and acids and poisons from the blood stream cannot be over-emphasized. Many ailments are aggravated by poorly functioning kidneys. Some of the symptoms often due to kidney disfunction are: Pain in the back, getting up nights, bladder weakness (too frequent urination), scalding urine, scanty urine, cloudy urine, leg pains and swelling of the ankles, difficulty in urination or strong odor to urine.

Juniper and Asparagus Pills help stimulate the secreting cells or nerves of the kidneys and flush, cleanse and purify the kidneys and bladder, allowing them to perform their required duties of eliminating irritating acids and poisonous waste matter. Safe and reliable and often proved an effective remedy. Mother Nature's own diuretic and stimulators. Gentle in action, free from after effects.

Juniper Berries
Nature's remedy for Kidney and Bladder ailments. First used by the Indians later by our forefathers for pains in the back, lumbago, scalding or too frequent urination; in fact, many kidney disorders.

Asparagus Root
Used with great benefit in connection with Juniper Berries. Everyone knows that Asparagus is very beneficial for the kidneys. It is necessary, however, to use it in a very concentrated form to get the best results.

Other Loves of Irwin Revealed in Own Story

CHAPTER 4

In the fourth installment of his astounding confession to Universal Service, Robert Irwin tells of the conflicting loves he bore for Veronica's sister, Mrs. Ethel Kudner, and Alice Ryan, a Chicago girl.

By ROBERT IRWIN

(Copyright, 1937, by the Universal Service. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

New York, June 30 (US)—I met Alice Ryan at the Trianon Ballroom in Chicago when I was working there, and later I became engaged to her. She was sweet, and wholesome and sympathetic.

But my feelings for her were simply a matter of strong liking. It was not the same bottomless love I had for Ethel.

It would have been much better for me if I had married Alice. If I had married her things would not have turned out this way. But I made a mistake. I began to read Schopenhauer and his explanation of how the sex impulse victimized every living creature.

I decided to put all thoughts of women out of my mind, and to devote all my energies to perfecting my visualization of the perfect. That was before I met Ethel. I was in New York when I wrote to Alice and told her that everything had to be broken off.

But I realize now that my feelings for her were deep, although much different than my feelings for Ethel. I wrote a poem to Alice.

(This poem ended on the theme that some day he might come back to Alice. Irwin at the time he confessed to Universal Service did not know Alice has been dead for five years.)

Ethel didn't draw the poetic fire out of me. Ethel drew a whole lot more out of me than that. Well, by the time I was in love with Ethel I was beyond poetry. Ethel attracted me more than Alice ever did, but in an insane manner.

I just went "nuts" when she married Joe Kudner.

I have nothing against Joe, her husband. Ethel was as beautiful as she could be, and she was just as heartless as she could be. She had known Kudner for five years. She had been engaged to him and they had broken up in a quarrel.

They had never seen each other and had nothing to do with each other for a long time before I met her. But later on she happened to meet Kudner on the street and, of course, he came from a nice family and all that.

I was in their apartment once after they were married. Ethel invited me. I was in the hospital at that time and they permitted me to go to New York, and at that time I was intending to enlarge this snake statue. (Irwin had modeled a serpentine figure with Ethel's head, as his impression of her personality.)

I went to see her and asked if she would object. She said she would feel flattered, and said:

"Well, come over and see Joe. Let him talk it over with you and if he says it is all right, it will be all right with me."

She added that she never knew what I was going to do.

I went over there. Joe was very friendly and he said:

"Well, you can if you want to."

And she said:

"Why don't you make a statue of Ronnie?"

I said:

"You couldn't make a statue of Ronnie if you wanted to."

He told me:

"Why don't you make a statue of Marlene Dietrich. I don't relish the idea of making a statue of my wife."

But some of the stuff I read in the newspapers about that guy was terrible. He wrote an article about me, saying that right from the first—oh, in one punch I could lay him out.

I don't mean to brag, but I could break that man in two. So they did not tell me, but he said:

"Why don't you do somebody that is somebody?"

And I said:

"Well, may be."

So I spent the evening there and went away and nothing further was discussed about the statue.

BOTH FRIENDLY

Ethel's attitude was friendly and Kudner's attitude was very cordial. He knew very well how I felt toward Ethel. He knew he was safe and secure.

In all the time that I knew him he never said anything or did anything to me.

If he would have come in that night (the night of the murders at the Gedeon apartment) he would have got it damn quick. What I would have done, I would have leaped on him like a cat. That was just like the poor little Englishman. I would have got him with the ice pick right in the temple.

It wasn't that I had anything against Kudner, but I would have killed any man or anyone that would have put his foot in that place. It was all predicated on necessity.

Mrs. Gedeon was the coldest woman I ever knew. Well, I was waiting for Ethel and when Mrs. Gedeon spoke to me in that nasty way, I just went blind. I never intended to kill Mrs. Gedeon, I went there only for Ethel.

I remember that afternoon (before the slayings) when I went down to the pier and was going to drown myself. All these things came back to me—that I was trying to pump Ronnie about her sister, and she was evasive. She also wanted her sister to make a good marriage.

You see, in August, 1934, Ethel and I went down to that pier, and that was the happiest day of my life, because she intimated that she would marry me.

After that I never went to New York without going to the 53d street pier. She had said something to the effect that she—anyhow, she gave me the idea that there was really a chance for us to get married. She had her purse in front of her, and it nearly fell in the river. I retrieved it.

That day I went down to the pier for the purpose of killing myself and I changed my mind. I don't know that I would welcome Ethel when I see her, but my better self tells me that I would, and I know inside that it would be just the same as it ever was.

Incidentally, that reminds me. There was a nurse in the hospital and the night after I went to Canton I kissed her. She used to talk psychology with me. She was intelligent and when I kissed her I had made up my mind to forget any kind of women.

I made up my mind if I was going into the ministry I would never marry. And here was this beautiful little girl. I made up my mind and said "No" to myself, and I wrote her a letter and told her to forget it all.

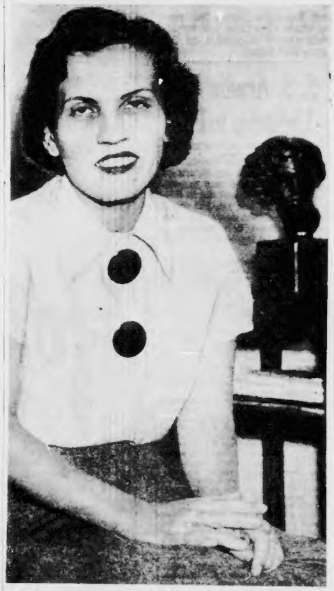
But she was just an interlude. It was something I was trying to do to forget Ethel.

Even at that time, crazy as I was about Ethel, my visualizing meant more to me than she did. I told her so at the time. I just simply wrote the nurse a polite note, giving her a chance to reopen things. There was no response. She considered it closed, and I guess the tone of my previous letter killed it as far as she was concerned.

I sent her a Christmas card, and sent her a nice letter and the matter was closed.

The concluding installment of this amazing and exclusive story of Robert Irwin—his OWN STORY of the slaying—will appear in TOMORROW'S BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

IRWIN'S INTENDED VICTIM



Mrs. Ethel Gedeon Kudner of New York has beside her in this picture the sculptured likeness of her head, modeled by Artist Robert Irwin, who has confessed to having intended to murder her. Instead, he killed her sister, Veronica "Ronnie" Gedeon, and two other persons. Irwin's own story is being published exclusively by the Boston Evening American.

IRWIN PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN SLAYING

New York, June 30 (INS)—A formal "not guilty" plea was entered this afternoon for Robert Irwin, alleged perpetrator of New York's "murder in triplicate."

The plea, mandatory under New York statute, was made by Samuel Leibowitz, veteran criminal attorney who has been retained by the so-called "mad genius."

Indicative of delay before Irwin is brought to trial, Judge William Allen in general sessions granted Leibowitz until July 15 to prepare motions. Meanwhile, Irwin was led back to his cell in the Tombs.

TELLS OF PLOT

Irwin lies. He did not go to the Gedeon apartment for the purpose of murdering Ethel Kudner, as he states in his confession. His sole purpose was to do just what he accomplished—kill Ronnie Gedeon.

This was the declaration today of Mrs. Ethel Kudner in a copyrighted article published in the New York Daily Mirror. She said:

"Robert Irwin did not want to murder me last Easter. He did what he came to do when he walked into my poor mother's apartment—and that was to kill my sister which he did at the extra cost of two other lives.

"He knew full well, and beyond the slightest doubt that I would not and could not have been where he went with killing in mind. No, Robert Irwin set out that night to destroy my dear sister, Ronnie."

Mrs. Kudner, whom Robert Irwin said inspired him first with a wild infatuation and then with a desire to kill her, appeared before the grand jury with her husband, Joe Kudner, a lawyer.

CALLS ARTIST CRAZY

A grand jury in 40 minutes returned three first degree indictments against the confessed triple slayer. A battle of alienists loomed immediately over the question of his "legal" sanity.

Leibowitz fired the first gun in the fight to save the sculptor from the electric chair when he declared in court where Irwin was arraigned:

"I believe this man is as crazy as a bedbug."

A bombshell was thrown into the defense camp when Mrs. Kudner, sister of the slain Veronica Gedeon told the grand jury that Irwin never intended to kill her as he declared in his confession. The artist's confession declared he had originally marked Mrs. Kudner for death in a murderous frenzy which caused him to "borrow three lives," as he described his crimes.

Of the three indictments, two accused Irwin of strangling Veronica Gedeon and her mother, and the third charged he stabbed to death their roomer, Frank Byrnes. The latter indictment, mysteriously disregarding the sculptor's confession which said he used "an ice pick," said Byrnes died of wounds "inflicted in and upon the head by an unknown instrument."

John D., Jr., Thanks Press for Stories On Father's Death

New York, June 30 (US)—In letters addressed to Universal Service and the other major press services, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today expressed thanks to the press of America for its handling of the news of his father's death.

The text of the letter to Universal Service, addressed to Managing Editor Seymour Berkson, follows:

"I should like to express to Universal Service, as I am to the International News Service, Associated Press, United Press, New York City News Association and Standard News Association, and through you and them to the hundreds of editors, reporters, cartoonists and news photographers throughout the country who had anything to do with the news of my father's death, my sincere appreciation of their splendid courtesy.

"I am personally and the other members of the family have been deeply touched by the consideration shown by the press in assembling the news accounts for its readers as well as by the sentiments of esteem and friendly regard for my father expressed in articles, editorials and illustrations.

"So universal has been this tribute to my father's life and memory that I want to avail myself of this opportunity to thank the American press in behalf of the family for its sympathy and kindliness to us in our bereavement."

BRITAIN WEIGHS ENDING SPAIN NEUTRALITY

By the Associated Press

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain called the British Cabinet into session today to consider possible abandonment of the entire "hands off Spain" non-intervention scheme, in the face of determined German and Italian opposition to his Spanish war policy.

Both Germany and Italy remained firm in their rejection of a British-French proposal for taking over the entire naval patrol of Spain's coasts to prevent arms and men from reaching either side in the Spanish conflict.

Germany and Italy recalled warships from the patrol last week.

Informed Italian circles accused Britain and France of favoring the Spanish government.

French official sources in Paris expressed the opinion that the international naval control plan would be considered virtually ended if Germany and Italy persist in their opposition to strictly Franco-British surveillance.

Insurgent General Francisco Franco was reported massing his forces on the Jarama front, southeast of Madrid, for a new thrust at the capital.

Roosevelt Laughs Off Third Term

Washington, June 30 (INS)—President Roosevelt dismissed with a laugh today questions regarding the possibility he may run for a third term.

He declined to comment on the recent statement by Governor Earle of Pennsylvania that the Roosevelt New Deal should be continued for a third term. Asked at his press conference whether he would accept the nomination in 1940, the President again laughed and remarked about the hot weather.

The President's joking attitude, although interpreted by leaders as branding as ridiculous all third term reports, nevertheless created a buzz of gossip in administration circles.

Hitherto the President has repeatedly declared he would not run for a third term. Only recently he told newspapermen that when his present term expires he wants to return to Hyde Park and rest.

For the past few months, however, rumbles of a third term movement have re-echoed at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue.

Some administration leaders are saying privately that by the time 1940 rolls around it will be necessary to "draft" Mr. Roosevelt for a third term. These leaders are of opinion the Roosevelt program will not yet be completed by 1940.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

RUSSIAN RULE 'ORIENTAL TYRANNY'

TERROR TOLD BY CROMWELL

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

Berlin, June 30 (INS)—Russia was pictured as a "medieval, Oriental despotism in a Twentieth Century setting" by James H. R. Cromwell, just out of Moscow, in an exclusive interview here with International News Service today.

Cromwell was in Moscok with his wife, the former Doris Duke, "richest girl in the world," during the death trial of the Red Army general.

He interpreted the "purging" under way by Dicator Josef Stalin as aimed at removing all opposition.

"Russia today is incredible and appalling," Cromwell said. "It is a medieval, Oriental despotism in a 20th century setting. Russia should be depicted as a brontosaurus, rather than as a bear, for as the mass increases, the brain decreases.

INTELLIGENCE WIPED OUT

"What intelligence remained in the nation after the Communists finished wiping out the aristocracy and bourgeoisie is being rapidly 'liquidated' by Stalin."

Cromwell remarked that the trial of the eight Russian generals was "an optical illusion," as far as the foreign colony in Moscow was concerned.

"Nobody in Russia is allowed to get near anything that has to do with the government," he declared, "particularly foreigners, unless Stalin is putting on a show like the Zinoviev trial or a North Pole flight to distract the people's attention from bureaucratic failures."

"How did the Russian masses appear to take the trials of their former leaders?" Cromwell was asked.

MASSES TERRIFIED

"They are too terrified and apathetic to care what is done, so long as they themselves have a minimum of food, clothing and shelter," Cromwell replied.

"Although the oppression of Czarist days pales to insignificance compared to the tyranny and wholesale slaughter of Stalin, the masses are accustomed to terrorism, and as they are cut off from any knowledge of conditions in the rest of the world, they have no basis of comparison and are told that things are much worse in capitalistic nations."

"Do you think Stalin in his 'purging' is acting from hysteria?"

"Like Tiberius, Abdul Hamid and other notorious tyrants, Stalin is beginning to be fearful of his own shadow," declared Chomwell.

"What do you think makes the Red generals on trial 'confess'?"

EVEN TRIALS DOUBTED

"Most foreigners in Moscow believe the general were murdered before the trial was announced," he answered. "Nobody knows if there really was a trial at all, and the 'confessions' are therefore purely synthetic.

"Confessions are obtained in Russia by threatening reprisals upon relatives and friends of officials who are about to be 'taken for a ride'."

"Do you believe the mass executions in Russia will affect Europe or the French-Russian military alliance?" Cromwell was asked.

"I do not," Cromwell answered. "Stalin evidently believes there is no immediate danger of an European war, or he would not have killed off the brains of the Red army merely to further fortify his own dictatorial power.

"The French are aghast, but must continue their alliance in order to maintain the balance of power in Europe."

ALL FEAR TO SPEAK

Cromwell said he had gathered his impressions of Russia from talks with numerous diplomats and members of the foreign colony in Moscow.

"No one who has anything at stake in Russia or whoever hopes to return can safely tell the truth about Russia," he concluded. "This applies especially to members of the press and diplomatic corps. Most tourists see and hear nothing except what the 'Intourist' (the official Russian tourist organization' wants them to see or hear.

"We, too, were not allowed to see anything other than the standard exhibits, but the OGPU (secret police) were unable to prevent us from hearing the private opinions of the foreign colony in Moscow."

Charlesbank Beach Closed for Safety

Charlesbank Beach, site of the drowning of twin sisters a month ago, was closed today pending enactment of safety measures.

Saying even the presence of two lifeguards was insufficient to protect children, Mayor Mansfield ordered the beach closed and asked Park Commissioner William P. Long for an estimate of the cost necessary to make the beach safe.

Fisherman Drowns As Boat Capsizes

Lincoln, Me., June 29—Michael Miller of Enfield was drowned today in Cold Stream Pond, while two others were rescued after their fishing boat capsized. Cottagers rescued William Gray and his 15-year old stepson. Miller leaves a widow.

City Hall Collapse of Contractor Kept Mystery

Daniel J. Slattery, 82, of Roslin street, Dorchester Center, for several years a member of the city of Boston board of appeal connected with the Building Department, collapsed today at a board meeting in Room 907, City Hall Annex.

Dr. Frederick J. Bailey, deputy health commissioner, was summoned to give first aid, and it was learned that the octogenarian had suffered a heart attack and was in serious condition.

For some unexplained reason, however, officials and employes of the department denied Slattery had taken ill, and a strict censorship was thrown about the offices, which were ordered closed to all except employes.

A near riot started in the ninth floor corridor when Slattery was carried out on a police stretcher, employes of the department threatening reporters and photographers.

Only when Dr. Bailey harangued the workers did their unexplained excitement abate. Then they returned to their desks and counters.

Slattery is a plumbing contractor with offices in Harrison avenue, South End.

Britain Protests Portugal's Action

London, June 30 (AP)—Great Britain protested today to Portugal against its decision to suspend facilities for aiding British non-intervention observers along the Spanish frontier.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons that Portuguese observers have been withdrawn in addition to the suspension.

He said the British government had advised Portugal that it regretted such action.

'Cash and Carry' Pyle to Be Wed

Los Angeles, June 30 (AP)—C. C. (Cash and Carry) Pyle, 55, promoter of the transcontinental "Bunion Derby," has filed notice of intention to wed Mrs. Elvia Allman Tourtellotte, 32, radio comedienne and divorced wife of Organist Wesley Tourtellotte.

CHARGES MATE WITH GAMBLING

Charges that Murray J. Rosenthal of Lynn, former president of the Adams Shoe Company, bets as high as $1000 on the outcome of Boston major league baseball games were before the court today as his wife, Sadie, asked an increase of her $20-a-week separation allowance.

The gambling charges were told Judge Joseph R. McCoole in Norfolk probate court, Dedham, by Mrs. Rosenthal's father, David Levine, of Commonwealth avenue, and her two brothers, Joseph and Robert.

Rosenthal denied betting more than $2 on a single game, said he never played horses or patronized bookie joints and testified he earned only $40 a week.

LEADERS AGREE ON COURT BILL COMPROMISE

Washington, June 30—Administration leaders of Congress today definitely abandoned President Roosevelt's Supreme Court bill in favor of a compromise.

This decision was revealed to International News Service by Senator Hatch (D.) of New Mexico.

Hatch revealed that if his compromise is approved by the Senate, administration leaders will support it in the House.

The Hatch plan, in its present form, would keep the Supreme Court permanently at nine justices, but permit appointment of one additional justice each year for every justice over 75 years of age. There would be no filling of any vacancy occurring later by the retirement of the aged justice.

Hatch said he favored a "systematic plan" for infusing new blood in the court, not merely in the next year, but over the years to come. He said this was the "principle" incorporated in the President's original Supreme Court message to Congress, but dropped from his bill.

Administration leaders indicated the court fight would start in the Senate after the July 4 holiday.

CHARGE SLOAN USED YACHT TO EVADE TAX

Washington, June 30 (INS)—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., wealthy head of General Motors, was named by treasury officials today as having incorporated his $1,100,000 yacht "Rene," thereby avoiding considerable sums in federal income taxes.

Sloan's name was brought before the joint congressional tax committee by Arthur H. Kent, treasury counsel, who furnished a detailed account of the case.

Other cases cited as the hearing progressed included Mrs. Emily R. Cadwalader, wealthy Philadelphian, described as owning the "largest privately owned yacht in the world"; Myron C. Taylor, head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, and John Hay Whitney, wealthy turfman and sportsman.

ED WYNN NAMED

Ed Wynn, radio and stage star was named as an illustration of incorporating personal talents for tax purposes.

Kent said:

"The Rene (Jersey City, N. J.) is a corporation organized in 1929 under the laws of the State of Delaware for the purpose of holding title to the yacht Rene, which was then under construction for Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr.

"The corporation assumed the obligations of Mr. Sloan under the contract for the yacht's construction. The capital stock outstanding Dec. 31, 1935, consisted of $1,000,000 par value preferred and $3,000,000 par value common. All the common stock, 30,000 shares and 9545 shares of the preferred, according to our latest information, are owned by Mr. Sloan.

"The total cost of the yacht upon completion in 1930 was in excess of $1,100,000, of which sum about a million appears to have been paid from the proceeds of the sale of preferred stock to Mr. Sloan. The common stock in the amount of $3,000,000 was issued to him in payment for securities in the same amount, which he turned over to the corporation.

"The return of the Rene Corporation for 1934 showed a gross income of $153,863.73, of which $63,750 represented dividends received on capital stock of domestic corporations and $90,113.73 charter fees paid to the corporation for the use of the yacht.

"The total deductions taken on this return amounted to $223,217.10, resulting in the corporation reporting a net loss of $69,353.37. In its return for 1936 the corporation reported $191,250 income from domestic dividends and $119,608.78 from charter of the yacht, making a gross income of $310,858.78, from which it deducted expenses of $185,670.32, leaving a net income of $122,813.35.

"The corporate return for 1936 shows tax assessable of $25,182.88, representing chiefly surtax on undistributed profits, no dividends having been paid by the corporation.

"This case presents an excellent illustration of tax reduction by securing through a corporation a deduction of a substantial portion of otherwise disallowable personal expenses, as well as the saving which may be effected through the diversion of a portion of investment income from the individual's pocket to the coffers of his personally-owned corporation."

YACHT LOSS $248,174

In a compilation of dealings of the corporation, Kent said the loss on operation of the yacht amounted to $278,474 from 1931 to 1936, thus establishing the deduction for tax purposes.

During this period, he explained, Sloan paid $542,709 for his own use and cost of operating the craft amounted to $821,183.

Kent said that Sloan reported income ranging from $36,235 in 1934 to $872,486 in 1936. In 1936, he said, the tax on his income was $582,133.

Sloan saved $128,528 in taxes for six years as a result of this system of having the corporation own the yacht.

"This has been going on since 1931," interjected Representative Crowther (R.), New York.

"The Bureau of Internal Revenue has questioned some of these items but we are up against the recognition of the corporate entity," replied Kent.

PASTOR'S CHILD DIES IN FIRE

Northboro, June 30—The nine-year-old daughter of the Rev. George H. Douglas, pastor of Evangelical Congregational Church, lost her life today in a fire in a barn attached to the parsonage.

The body of the child, Mary Lou, was found on the second floor of the barn after the flames were extinguished. The little girl had been burned and suffocated.

Nobody knew she was in the barn and firemen expressed belief she ran in to try to save some valued belongings after the fire was discovered. In the excitement she was not missed.

Fireman John F. McCabe found the body.

Fire Chief Ellsworth said the fire started from spontaneous combustion on the second floor where there was a heap of rubbish. The parsonage was not damaged.

Besides her father and mother, the dead girl is survived by a 12-year-old brother, George, Jr. The Rev. Mr. Douglas was formerly pastor of a church in Westwood, coming here about a year ago.

Albany Papers Divide Field as Costs Increase

Special to Boston Evening American

Albany, N. Y., June 30—Effective beginning tomorrow, July 1, the Albany Times-Union, formerly an evening and Sunday newspaper, will be published as a morning and Sunday newspaper.

The Knickerbocker Press will be discontinued as a morning and Sunday newspaper, so that the Times-Union will be the only morning and Sunday newspaper in Albany.

The name of the Knickerbocker Press will be combined with the Albany Evening News and will be published as the only six-day evening newspaper in Albany. The Albany Times-Union published the following announcement today:

"Tomorrow (Thursday) the Albany Times-Union will be published as a morning newspaper.

ONLY A. M. PAPER

"It will be the only morning newspaper in Albany.

"The Sunday Times-Union will be the only Sunday newspaper in Albany.

"All of the daily and Sunday features and news services now appearing in the Times-Union will be continued. New exclusive features will be added.

"All of the subscribers to the Knickerbocker Press, morning and Sunday, will receive the Times-Union. All of the subscribers to the Times-Union in the six-day evening field will receive the Albany Evening News.

"To serve the best interests of this community and to deserve the continued support of its citizens will be the sincere endeavor of the new morning and Sunday Times-Union."

ISSUE ANNOUNCEMENT

An announcement by the Knickerbocker Press follows:

"As of June 30, 1937, the Press Company, Inc., will discontinue morning and Sunday editions of the Knickerbocker-Press. Features which have appeared in the Knickerbocker-Press will appear in the Albany Evening News and the name of the Knickerbocker-Press will be combined with the Albany Evening News.

"The Albany Times-Union announces that after the same date its evening editions will be discontinued, and the Times-Union will be published mornings and Sundays. It also announces that features and services which have appeared in the evening Times-Union will continue in the morning Times-Union.

"The Albany Evening News has purchased the evening circulation of the Times-Union and will serve those lists. The Times-Union has purchased the circulation lists of the morning and Sunday Knickerbocker-Press and will serve those lists.

"Mounting costs of publication and of labor, combined with the fact that Albany has been 'over-newspapered' and can support profitably only one morning, one Sunday and one evening newspaper have made the changes necessary."

Soaring Costs Close Famed Tacoma Paper

Tacoma, Wash., June 30—This thriving city of the Pacific Northwest today entered the second week in 54 years without its own morning newspaper.

The disappearance of the seasoned Morning Ledger, Tacoma's only morning newspaper, was cited as an indication of the impracticality of continuing losing publications and those near the profit border line, in the face of the rising tide of costs.

With the selling price of a newspaper fixed by established custom and the advertising revenue limited by the resources of the community, newspapers are confronted with wage increases, higher costs of equipment and materials, including white paper, and rising taxes.

In interpreting to his local reading public the hearing of the suspension of the Tacoma Ledger on nation-wide econimic tendencies, Frank S. Baker, president and publisher, explaining that the surviving evening and Sunday newspaper under the same ownership and amd nanagement would be strengthtened by the readjutment.

The Ledger was long considered an integral part of this city. It was first established as a weekly in 1881 by two Californians, M. F. Radebaugh and H. C. Patrick.

In 1883 it became a daily, and it remained a Tacoma institution until last Tuesday when the final issue appeared. Unable to surmount the barrier of rapidity rising costs, the Ledger made its final bow.

2 Rochester Papers Cease Publication

Rochester, N. Y., June 30 (INS)—The Rochester Journal announced today that it is suspending publication after today's issue.

The Rochester American, published as the Sunday edition of the Journal, also ceases publication. The Journal carried the following announcement:

"With this issue, the Rochester Journal and the Rochester Sunday American will cease publication.

"The circulation lists and the publishing plant have been purchased by the Gannett newspapers.

Quake in Azores

Lisbon, Portugal, June 30 (AP)—A violent earth tremor was reported to have shaken Agraheroismo, in the Azores, today, spreading panic through the population. No casualties were reported.

25,000 SCOUTS AT JAMBOREE

Washington, June 30 (AP)—A booming cannon at the base of the Washington monument heralded the start today of one of the nation's biggest youth demonstrations—the Boy Scout Jamboree.

Upwards of 25,000 scouts were massed in khaki columns through 350 green acres of historic ground for the brief ceremonies.

The first shot, echoing from Capitol Hill to the grassy Arlington slopes, was a signal for the boys and their leaders to spring to salute before the colors of their country.

Eleven minutes later another blast was ordered, preceding the unfurling of 52 foreign standards along the stately Avenue of Flags.

The deep boom of the final cannon four minutes later was the cue for a simultaneous display of 1643 other flags through the camp city.

The remainder of the first day held this program for the thousands who came to Washington afoot, by bicycle, motorcycle, automobile, train, bus, boat and airplane:

Excursions to Mount Vernon.

Performances in camp theaters.

Uncle Dan Beard, venerable Scout pioneer, will light this evening with flint and steel the fire of fellowship which will burn during the encampment.

Word spread through the camp that President Roosevelt—who is scheduled to ride through the trooped ranks along Constitution avenue next week—might pay an unexpected visit to the tents.

While this remained in doubt, one thing became certain—the White House can't hold the 2500 gifts which the boys have brought Mr. Roosevelt.

A hurried inventory of the presents showed:

Horned toads, shark teeth, armadillos, mounted birds, colored sponges totem poles Indian wampum gold from Cripple Creek, miniature cotton bales, pine cones and—a singing mouse.

$12,000 Awarded Boy in Suit Over Maimed Arm

In a sealed verdict, a Middlesex County jury today awarded $12,000 to Thomas J. Kiley, Jr., 13, of Albion street, Somerville, in a $75,000 suit against Dr. Lawrence J. Dervin, of Somerville.

It was alleged in the complaint that Dr. Dervin undertook to treat the boy for a fractured arm July 26, 1929, and did so "unskillfully and in careless and negligent manner."

The boy also alleged in the suit that his arm was not properly set, and "owing to carelessness and negligence in treatment" his arm was maimed and will remain so the rest of his life.

Dr. Dervin denied all the allegations, stating that the alleged injuries were caused "in whole or in part" by the boy's "own negligence." The physician also asserted the suit was outlawed under the statute of limitations.

Before the verdict was recorded, Judge Nelson P. Brown, explained that it is still possible for a verdict to be entered for the defendant "if, on exceptions taken on questions of law involved, the trial judge or the Supreme Court may decide that such a verdict should be entered."

Hide Bond Issues In Cornerstones

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

See that Jim Farley predicted good times while dedicating a new post office down in Virginia. Things always seem brighter when you're the fellow who is making the speech.

Jim has built so many post offices so close together that the government can fly the mail from New York to Los Angeles and never go outdoors.

During the present economy wave Jim has been instructed to butter those cornerstones on one side only.

P. S. to Jim: When you seal some souvenirs of your administration in the next cornerstone don't forget it will be a pretty good place to hide a bond issue.

$2500-YR. GROUP JOINS RANKS OF INSURED

Three hundred and fifty thousand Massachusetts workers today were scheduled to swell the ranks of those protected against joblessness by the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Commencing tomorrow, all employes earning $2500 or more annually will pay 1 per cent of their salaries into the unemployment insurance fund. Thus far only workers earning less than $2500 a year came under provisions of the act.

During the balance of this year their contributions will be doubled by a 2 per cent assessment against their employers. Starting in 1938, employer assessments will be boosted to 3 per cent and will remain at that figure.

Benefits resulting from the act will commence January 1, 1938. Starting at that date jobless workers protected by the act will receive approximately half-pay within the limits of a $5-a-week minimum and a $15-a-week maximum.

Throughout next year the payments will be limited to 16 weeks, but the period will be lengthened gradually in proportion to the period the employe contributes to the fund.

However, those subject to frequent layoffs will find their benefits curtailed, it requiring approximately four weeks' work to build up credit for one week's unemployment benefit.

New York, June 30 (AP)—Premier Paul van Zeeland of Belgium sailed homeward today "extremely optimistic" over his recent world economic stabilization conversations in Washington, but declining to discuss details of the negotiations.

MODEL ARMADA READY TO SAIL

More than 300 entries of boats of all sizes and shapes were expected by Park Commissioner William P. Long. Contestants are limited to boys under 14.

The regatta will be held at Jamaica Cove this year to give contesting craft a longer sail than permitted in the Frog Pond, Boston Common.

Reardon Protests Cut in WPA

Telegrams protesting against the elimination of 271 employes in the Works Progress Administration education program in Massachusetts were sent today by Commissioner of Education James G. Reardon to Senators David I. Walsh and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., and to Congressman John W. McCormack and John P. Haigis.

"Regret exceedingly cut of 271 employes in Works Progress Administration education program of Massachusetts state department of education," the message read. "Aside from grievous damage to educational accomplishment, all of these persons are on Works Progress Administration relief and the consequences of release are serious. I will appreciate any efforts on your part to remedy the situation."

By Lewis Allen Browne

BASED ON THE COSMOPOLITAN FILM HIT

From an original story by Gene Baker and Margaret Lee. Screen play by Lawrence Riley and Earl Baldwin. A Cosmopolitan production to be shown at the Metropolitan Theater. Released by Warner Brothers.

What Has Happened

Margery Morrison, capable stenographer, skilled secretary, is handicapped by beauty. Her bosses all become too ardent in their friendship. She can either keep her job or her self-respect, and self-respect always wins, while she goes job-hunting. She has had four jobs in as many months. On leaving her last job she sees, in a car, the first man she ever thought worth a second glance, and he drives away. Later that day she meets her best pal, Susie Rogers, who lives with her. They meet in a cocktail room. Frederick Matthews, a young novelist, is there with Camille Lansing, a society girl. Margery recognizes Freddy as the unknown young man in the car who attracted her attention. He comes over to Margery claiming that he has met her before. Margery denies it and she and Susie leave.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER VII

"Aw, Marge," Susie protested, "I don't see any harm in it. If a nice man sees a girl he's crazy to meet and there's nobody to introduce them, why shouldn't he try to get acquainted?"

"Yeah? And give the man a chance to say, later, that he was never introduced, that he just picked you up?"

"I never thought of that. It's a darn shame, though. He certainly looks like the answer to a maiden's prayer to me."

Marge almost said, "And to me, too," but she caught herself. She was never one to exhibit her emotions, unless they were her invariable emotions of anger when some employer made a pass at her.

They went out to see their married girl friend, had a jolly evening and came home to argue about the advantages and disadvantages of married life and maternity.

A "WISE HUNCH"

"Say, Marge," Susie said as they were getting ready for bed, "here's a wise hunch. Go and find yourself a nice man and get married. Then you won't be hunting a new job every time some fat-headed heel tries to paw you over."

"It IS a wise hunch," Margery agreed, "only I would have to wait until Mr. Right Man came along, and he hasn't shown up yet."

The morning papers had no want ads that interested Margery and she decided to try a new agency. She couldn't keep going to the same agency where she was known. They would begin to think that she wasn't efficient.

She went out and hunted up a new one, the Johnson Agency. The woman in charge smiled rather grimly when Margery explained that she left her former position because her employer's wife decided that he should hire men stenographers.

"But you hadn't ought to have much trouble getting a place, dearie," she said.

Margery sat down with a magazine and waited for any calls that might come in. There were only a few women and girls in the place. A girl came in and sat near Margery, who looked at her and had difficulty to keep from laughing at the girl's atrociously funny hat.

This girl was almost painfully homely. Margery studied her and sighed. One thing was sure, she thought, this girl wouldn't be bothered by employers making passes at her.

"NOT THE TYPE"

The agency manager answered a few telephone calls. Margery listened but could get little information from this one-sided dialogue.

"Johnson Employment Agency," Margery heard the woman intone. The woman listened quite a while and looked out toward Margery as she listened. Margery thought, "Here's a job, sure."

"Tomorrow morning?" Margery heard the woman say. "Yes, I believe I have the very girl you need. I will send her over."

She hung up and seemed to be looking at Margery.

"You," she said, "come here."

Margery was on her feet at once.

"No, no, not you. YOU," she said, pointing to the homely girl, "you with that lampshade hat."

Margery was half way to the desk. She waited as the homely girl went on, plainly peeved at the knock about her hat.

"I have a job for you, tomorrow morning at nine. Go to the Belden Publishing Company office at 283 Market street," the woman said.

"The Belden Publishing Company!" the homely girl screamed. "Nothing doing. I just got fired from there!"

"Oh! That lets YOU out, then."

The girl went back to her chair. Margery went to the desk.

"How about me for that job? I've worked in a publishing office," Margery asked.

The woman looked her over again, shook her head and smiled.

"You're not the type," she said.

"What do you mean, I'm not the type?" Margery demanded. "I have had four years' experience. I know office work up and down inside out, back and forth, from A to Izzard."

"Sorry, but your face is against you, Miss."

"What's wrong with my face?" Margery demanded.

A BIG IDEA

"Not a thing, dearie. That's just the point. The Belden Publishing Company never hires good looking girls! They want plain girls that men don't make passes at—girls to work, not make dates."

It was then that the Big Idea came to Margery.

"What is the address?"

"It's 283 Market street, but I tell you, you haven't a chance."

"That's what they told Columbus," Margery answered, and hurried out.

She hurried home, got herself a luncheon, got some extra money and started out to do some shopping. Susie was home when Margery got back.

"More clothes, for Pete's sake?" Susie cried.

"I'll demonstrate and explain," Margery promised, and went to her room.

It wasn't long after this that Susie's boy friend, Jake Eggdall, called.

"Meet my boss, Al McCoy, Sweetie-Pie," was Jake's greeting as he presented a ludicrously big and awkward man. "I told him I'd bring him to meet Marge because he, nor nobody else, ever seen a sweller lookin' dame."

Susie invited them in, thinking that perhaps they might take her and Margery out for a dinner and some dancing. As usual, Jake played the piano for a while and McCoy sat and twirled his hat and grinned inanely.

"Where's Marge?" Jake asked, finally.

"Getting dressed. Where we going, Jake?"

"Places, hey Al?"

"Uh huh," said McCoy, "places."

"Al," Jake said, "wait until you glim Marge. She's some doll. Tell her I bought her a boy friend, Sue, and to get a move on."

Susie went back to Margery's door and told her. She couldn't understand why Margery began to howl with laughter. She knew a few minutes later, for Margery came out—but such a Margery!

She wore a wig of dark, disconsolate looking hair; she wore steel rimmed, slightly tinted glasses, a most ill-fitting and unbecoming dress, and homely, flat, "common-sense" shoes. She was also without make-up.

McCoy stared at her and turned to Jake. "One of your jokes, huh?" he growled.

"Hey, Marge—uh—what's th' big idea—where's th' masquerade?" Jake stammered.

As for Susie, she flopped into a chair and began to howl with laughter.

IT WORKED

Jake managed to stammer an introduction. Margery went to McCoy and said, in a well-disguised, whining voice:

"Pleazed t'meetcher, Mr. McCoy. Are we going out on a party?"

Once more Susie shrieked with laughter.

"Uh—er—yes'm," McCoy said, "but first I got to go out an' put lights on my car."

"Hey, it won't be dark for hours yet, Al," Jake called, but Mr. McCoy hurried out.

"You make me sick, Marge," Jake scolded, "I told Al what a swell dame you was and you had to do this."

"Marge, whatever is it all about!" Susie asked.

"It's a long story, Sue."

Suddenly suspicious, Jake went to the window and looked out.

"Hey! Hey Al!" he shouted. He turned to Margery. "Well, you done it all right. Al's got in th' car and beat it!"

"And he was a beautiful Boy Friend," Margery said, without a hint of a smile.

"You bet, he's a perfect card."

"You bet, he's a perfect card."

"Yeah, the joker," Susie observed.

"I got to go back to th' shop or Al will be mad at me," Jake said, and he, too, hurried out.

Margery walked into the next room and opened the bathroom door, the inside of which was a long mirror. She began to examine herself critically.

SUSIE'S WARNING

Susie watched her until her curiosity could stand no more.

"Marge, for Gos' sake, what is it all about?" she begged.

"I've found a place where they won't hire any except homely girls, Sue. I've tried every other way of holding a job, now I am going to try this."

"You're kiddin'!"

"I'm not." Margery told her about the Johnson agency and the Belden Publishing Company.

"All I got to say, Marge," Susie assured her, "is that if you go to that company looking like this, you'll not only get yourself a job, but you'll hold it forever!"

Continued Tomorrow

Will Margery get the job? Will her disguise be detected? There are a lot of surprises coming for the readers—and for Margery, also.

'Your Figure, Mister!'

ALL WORK AND NO PLAY

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

A MAN can do good work eleven months out of the year, but not twelve. You must take time for outdoor exercise and sports, to balance the steady grind. A reconditioning period is essential to efficiency.

No one realizes more keenly the necessity for this period of outdoor activity than the opera singers. Now that weight has come to be recognized as a health factor, they wage continual battles to keep their poundage at normal.

Ezio Pinza, Metropolitan basso, puts it this way:

"Musician or business man, you have to keep in training, just the same as baseball players and prize fighters."

Mr. Pinza's program is typical of the summer vacations of most of the opera singers who appreciate the importance of normal weight in the extension of careers and life expectation.

Mario Chamlee, leading American tenor of the Metropolitan, works off any tendency toward excess weight at his summer retreat, where acres of lawn provide ample opportunity for exercise with the mower.

He likes to work in the gardens,

GOOD MANNERS

ANNOUNCEMENT

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I am engaged to be married and will be married this summer. I would like to put an announcement in our local paper. As my parents are both dead, and I am the eldest, would it be proper to put it in myself, or should the lady for whom I work put it in?

2. How should it be worded, and how soon before our marriage should the announcement be printed? BRIDE-TO-BE.

1. You, yourself, under these circumstances, may send the announcement of your engagement to the newspaper. It would not be sent by your employer.

2—The announcement of the engagement may be worded something like this: "The engagement is announced of Miss Mary Allen McLane, of 234 East End avenue, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Brewer Malone, to Mr. George Butler Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Walter Fox, of 9 Promenade Walk. The marriage is to take place late in August."

The announcement of the engagement may be made at any time before the date is set for the wedding, according to the wishes of the couple.

Logical BIDDING Versus GAMBLING

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

There is a vast difference between an inferential bid and a plain, hit-or-miss "stab" bid,—to use a phrase in vogue among the experts.

Almost all bidding involves some speculation.

Usually, however, one partner is in a position to speculate along lines of probabilities, whereas the other may be forced to a sheer gamble. Consider the bad bidding in the hand shown below.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

West	North / South	East
	♠ A 10 6 ♡ Q 10 9 4 ♢ Q 9 2 ♣ 10 8 5
♠ K Q 4 3 ♡ A K 5 3 2 ♢ 7 6 ♣ J 9	North West East South	♠ 9 5 2 ♡ 8 7 ♢ K 5 4 ♣ Q 6 4 3 2
	♠ J 8 7 ♡ J 6 ♢ A J 10 8 3 ♣ A K 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♢	Dbl.
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♡
3 ♢	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's three diamond bid was virtually worthless as a constructive bid. South did not doubt that, since North had passed to the takeout double and then come into the bidding at a higher level, he had some values. But with both major suits unstopped South could hardly continue bidding on the mere suspicion that North had a good hand.

The decisive action on this hand should have been taken by North, not by South. The latter had opened the bidding, vulnerable, and North not only had stoppers in the major suits but the fitting diamond Queen as well. Thus, instead of bidding three diamonds over two hearts North should either have doubled for penalties, or made the constructive call of two notrump.

Surely it was more logical for him to make the notrump effort with two outside suits stopped and club weakness than it would have been for South to take this action with two unstopped suits and club strength.

The blame for a lost laydown game in notrump may be laid squarely at North's door.

Auto Safety Is Public Problem

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

ONE of my colleagues in the Senate recently made a statement about automobile accidents which was most amazing.

He pointed out that in addition to the 38,000 who were reported killed last year, 110,000 recived permanently disabling injuries, and 1,230,000 received temporarily disabling injuries.

In other words, the actual number of men, women and children killed or injured on our streets or highways in one year equals twice the population of the District of Columbia. These figures are startling and require the serious consideration of every citizen.

Efforts must be made to curb this terrific annual toll. It can be accomplished by means of a well planned campaign, as was done in the case of industrial and occupational hazards which once took a large toll of lives.

The motorist as well as the pedestrian must consider safety as the thing of greatest importance. Every measure that can be thought of must be taken to guard human lives and to prevent permanent deformities and disabilities. Nothing is more tragic than a crippled or a maimed body, the result of a preventible automobile accident.

Many of those who operate automobiles are physically handicapped by poor vision or faulty hearing.

MADGE DISTURBED BY FAITH'S SHOW OF AFFECTION FOR KATHERINE

CHAPTER 342

WILLIAMS was just giving the last touches to a polish of the car as we came up to it after bidding the boys goodbye, and Dicky thanked him warmly, for he is always uncomfortable if he drives a car that is not polished and shining.

"Mrs. Bickett says the baby woke up unexpectedly a few minutes ago," he said, "and that you'll have a chance to see her, if you want to."

"I!" Dicky exploded, and Williams grinned comprehendingly as we both wheeled and hurried to the big cabin where our baby was lodged.

As we came in the door from the outside, Katherine called to us softly from the door of our improvised nursery.

"This way, if you want to see something adorable," she said, "but tread softly. Our princess hasn't made up her mind whether to laugh or to cry."

She turned back into the nursery and we followed her with eagerness which we always feel when we are going in to see the baby.

It was a picture to make any parent's heart proud that greeted us when we crossed the threshold of the nursery. All rose and gold and cream, she stood just inside her crib, clinging to it for support—she patently had just pulled herself up—and looked over at us with big grave eyes beneath her rose-leaf face—the trite old phrase is the only one that fits a baby's skin—was crumpled with ludicrous indecision.

Should she laugh? Should she cry? We could almost see her thought processes. And then, for all the world as if she had looked us over and found us wanting, she turned to Katherine and, leaning against the crib for support, put up her tiny arms in the age old appeal to be taken up.

I do not think I was ever meant to be a "career woman." I was sure of it in that bitter moment of being ignored by my baby.

Almost I resolved to give up my writing—I was only marking time in it anyway, I told myself with grim resentment at the inexplicable vagaries of Philip Veritzen which had definitely postponed the production of my play—and take the entire charge of Faith myself.

SUBDUES JEALOUSY

I compelled myself to look facts in the face. I knew if it were a question of turning my child over to some person unfitted to care for her, or to the most capable nurse in the world who had no tenderness for her, I would have tossed play and possible career into the discard without a qualm.

I do not think Dicky noticed that I was experiencing any other emotion than loving admiration for our baby daughter. But Katherine saw and comprehended the feeling that I was loath to admit even to myself.

Without the slightest indication that she had noticed anything amiss, she took Faith from the crib, and deftly wrapping a small blanket around her, stepped over to me and put her into my arms.

"Will you hold her, please, while I get her a drink of water?" she asked.

Are Nerves an Asset?

DO nerves drive you wild?

They can if you repress them. Clamping down on nerves causes explosions—tantrums, harsh words, violent actions that turn friends against you.

Release your nerves instead and they'll make you the expressive, vivacious, spirited sort of person everyone adores.

Ease nervous tension with a good cry in private.

Plunge into some activity that takes your mind off yourself. Listen to the radio or go for a walk. You'll come back to your work refreshed, able to finish it in a jiffy.

Adopt a hobby. Gardening, knitting, or any interest which gives you the thrill of creating or watching things grow is a healthy outlet for distracted nerves.

So nervousness becomes an asset, not a bogy. For the charming qualities that go with the nervous temperament—sensitiveness, alertness, vivid perceptions—make you more fascinating than the average person.

"DRINK TOO MUCH"

"But the trouble is, I never seem to meet the right girl. I have plenty of dates, go to dinners and dances, but the real [illegible] never appears.

"They drink too much; they [illegible] much; they haven't [illegible] for real com- [illegible] they're gold-diggers, [illegible] silly and sentimental that [illegible] want to begin necking the first time you take them out.

"Please don't think me too crit- [illegible] but I don't want to make a second mistake. The women I pick up when I travel are too [illegible] to consider for more than an evening's entertainment.

"The type that I'd like, perhaps a Junior Leaguer or a college graduate—well I haven't met so [illegible] of these, and the ones I have met are either too high- [illegible] or too 'modern' to give me the [illegible] home life I'm looking for.

"Am I too captious? [illegible] just another case of a [illegible] dreading fire?"

"WEARY."

[illegible]

[illegible] handed out the wife from whom you have now been divorced.

It's not to be wondered at that you should have all these fears and inhibitions about making a second choice.

But don't think there are many women who "only want to be happy" at the expense of a good partner, and have no sense of responsibility over the havoc their vagrant impulses create.

I don't want to be unflattering about this first choice of yours but it seems to me as if you picked a moron. Probably she was very pretty. She lacked the intelligence to understand what her adventures cost a good man. AND WHEN WOMEN ARE LIKE THAT, THEY'RE NOT ALL THERE.

Don't let yourself be hypnotized by this first tragic failure. The world is full of splendid women who would make just the wife you are seeking.

Look for one who is domestic, likes home and children—THERE ARE MILLIONS OF THESE STILL LEFT.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I'm 18 and terribly in love with a married man of 25. I am not quite sure if he loves his wife or not. He drinks, and his wife is very religious. He is a wonderful musician, and I am learning music on this account.

Do you think there is or will ever be any way of my winning him? MISERABLE.

DEAR CHILD

You are too inexperienced to realize what a dishonorable thing you are doing, to think of even trying to win a man away from his wife and baby.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ASPARAGUS SALAD

Arrange crisp chilled lettuce so that it will cover a large chop plate. Then lay bundles of asparagus stalks on the lettuce in a circle so that the tips point toward the edge of the plate. Garnish with slices of hard boiled egg and strips of pimento. Or encircle each bundle with a ring of pimento and serve with your favorite French Dressing to which has been added chopped hard cooked eggs, chopped parsley, and chopped stuffed olives.

Sun Time Needs

POSED BY ANN SHERIDAN

By ARLINE GOULD

IS the idyllic holiday week-end going to be one glamorous, gay playtime for you, or is it to go down in memory as a nightmare of blistering backs, red noses, chills and fever or what have you?

If you creep back to town next Tuesday morning looking like something out of a Surrealist dream, with a nose like a stop-light, and a disposition as explosive as dynamite . . . don't say we didn't warn you.

All right! We can now go ahead and give you brief biographies of two hot-weather "musts." First on the preparedness program comes a lotion to filter out the harmless rays of the sun leaving you with a glamorous, golden tan.

This lotion will make you tan, even though you may never have tanned before. It does something to the pigmentation of the skin that no lotion has done, and if you are from Missouri and MUST be shown . . . well, here's the secret. It is the official oil used by those seasoned veterans of the briny deep—the L street "brownies."

These bronzed sea horses experimented for years, tried everything under the sun (even as you and I), and finally consulted a pharmaceutical chemist of their own. Result: A formula for the most wonderful tan-giver of all.

Is it waterproof? Yes, and although it naturally bows to soap and water, you can dash in and out of the surf as many times as you like without renewing an application.

There are none of the usual oils or acids you would expect to find in a sunburn preventative so it's not greasy. Don't ask us what is in it, for it is a secret carefully guarded by the "brownies" themselves . . . a secret which is going to bring them fame and fortune before the season is out.

For those of you who will make a burnt offering to the sun god (regardless of warnings), take along a tube of solidified carron oil. It is the remedy that doctors use in emergency treatment for first degree burns in hospitals. It heals tortured tissues as by magic, is very inexpensive and lasts a long time.

Combined with the carron oil is soothing toilet lanolin and just to have it in your beach bag or in the house gives you a comfortable, reassuring feeling.

To learn the name of either of these hot-weather "musts," call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, weekdays until 5, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Beauty Hints

HAVING A NEW baby in the house interferes with a mother's beautifying lessons. If she has no assistance, she has to step lively to get through the day's activities. She will give the infant the best of care and that is as things should be. But she must not let herself "go to seed."

Let her remember that she is more important than her household possessions. It's better to have all the dust under the beds than dust in her hair.

She must get out-of-doors daily, take nourishing food and have a rest period no matter what happens. After the baby is tucked in for the night she is entitled to a beautifying half hour.

Holiday Fried Chicken

Scientific Way of Preparing Fryer

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX.

FRIED chicken by the Fourth of July! Does that convey any particular meaning to you? Those of us brought up in the rural or small town communities of the United States remember the significance.

A Fourth of July picnic without fried chicken is in many sections of the country almost as incongruous as a circus without a clown or a country fair without pink lemonade.

Those of us who don't grow our own poultry and who must go to the market to get our Fourth of July broiler or fryer may need some buying tips.

The first point to consider in shopping for chicken is the amount to buy for the dinner. A good rule to remember is ¾ to 1 pound of bird as purchased undrawn for each person. So a small size broiler weighing between 1 and 1½ pounds undrawn often called a squab broiler, will serve two people if they don't have too hearty appetites. A 2-pound broiler split in half, should certainly be sufficient for the heartier eaters.

Here's the way the Bureau of Home Economics suggests for handling a fryer.

Wash the bird thoroughly outside and in, running water through it. Then dry it. Above all things, do not let either the whole bird or the dismembered pieces lie in water. Some of the flavor juices will leak out if you do.

Chicken is easier to handle if you disjoint quite a bit. If you split the breast in two, it will cook more easily, and two people can then share this choice piece. Fold the wings. If you have a sharp enough knife you can easily strip out the ribs with no loss of flesh.

Salt and flour the pieces. Some cooks put the salted flour into a heavy paper sack and then shake up the chicken pieces inside the sack. It's an unorthodox way of flouring but certainly does the work evenly and neatly, with less scattering of flour over the table.

Use a thick walled skillet so as to have an even heat and reduce the scorching risk. Have one-half to three-quarters inch of melted fat in the skillet. You can't skimp on the fat and have the best results. Half lard or vegetable shortening and half butter makes an excellent frying mixture, though any well flavored fat will do. Some people prefer half bacon fat, but others don't like this flavor to the chicken.

Get fat hot, but not smoking hot, and then put in the chicken pieces. If you use a lid during this operation, you'll protect yourself somewhat from spitting fat. You certainly can't wear nice shoes or your dinner dress while you fry chicken! It just can't be done.

Put the bigger pieces in first and don't crowd them. Watch them closely and turn as soon as they are browned a bit. It's a little hard to get those first pieces to brown. The split breast and thighs will probably take about 20 minutes to get done.

Use a moderate heat throughout the cooking in order to have a juicy, tender meat. (Perhaps it was that moderate heat over the old wood burning cookstove that helped produce such a delicious flavor and delectable brown color.) Don't overcook. To test whether or not a piece is done you might take a sharp-pointed knife and make a little cut through the flesh to the bone.

As soon as a piece is done, remove it to a hot covered rack or pan. If you have a rack in the bottom of the pan, the fat can drain off the cooked pieces. Or you can drain off the fat on some brown paper. If you are frying several chickens, two skillets would be better.

Some cooks pour off the fat and add a little water to the skillet about halfway through the frying period, clap on a lid and set the skillet into the oven to finish. This is a good technique for larger fryers but unnecessary for younger birds.

Speaking of skin, there are people who insist on skinning chickens—a most regrettable practice, partly because the skin helps hold in the juices and is delicious in itself.

Because we belong to the school of thought that likes to fry the larger birds we want to add a few more words of caution. Be sure to brown chicken evenly and thoroughly. You can't go read the latest installment of a story in your monthly magazine while this process is going on. It will require watching.

Then we transfer the browned pieces, if we are using more than one skillet (and we always are for our greedy family) into one skillet or to a tightly covered pan and add water. Then we finish cooking over a very slow fire or in the oven until the water has evaporated.

Then we always serve our fried chicken with a country style milk gravy—it's that early rural influence. This gravy is made just as we would make a white sauce.

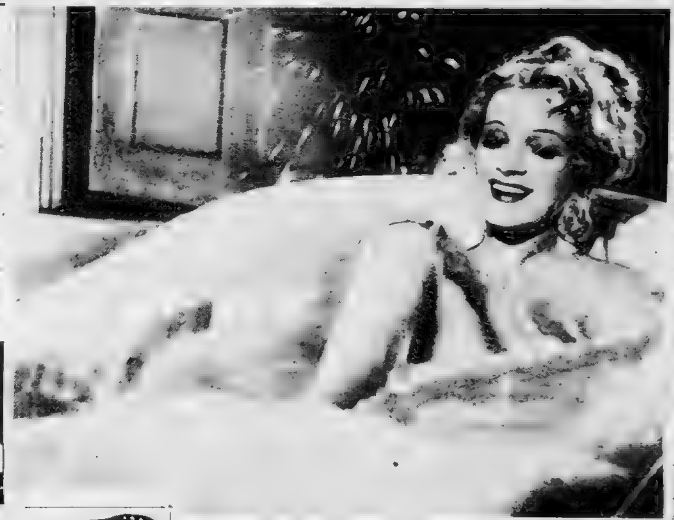
"NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY," WILL HAYS' VERDICT



Perhaps because it was filmed in England, where soapsuds aren't as opaque as good American-made ones used here by Sally Rand and her imitators, this bathtub scene, with shapely Marlene Dietrich as its central figure, has failed to meet with the approval of Will Hays, arbiter of American films. So when U. S. movie fans see Marlene's newest picture, "Knight Without Armor," they'll catch only the briefest glimpse of sudsy sequences which were originally planned to give Miss Dietrich's famous curves generous display.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

[illegible] membership [illegible] have been published again [illegible] the Christian Herald.

For the past five years the late Dr. George Linn Kieffer prepared these statistics for annual publication. This year's figures are issued by his widow, Mrs. Maude H. Kieffer.

The late Dr. Kieffer was statistician and reference librarian of the National Lutheran Council and his annual figures on church membership in the United States were always looked forward to with considerable interest about this time of the year.

For a good many [illegible] popular opinion in the [illegible] attendance or membership [illegible] considerably to the [illegible] followed such things [illegible] from church membership [illegible] during the depression [illegible] increasing.

Depression Years Saw Church Revival

Any loss which may have taken place during [illegible] of prosperity from 1920 to [illegible] made good during the [illegible] years when people's [illegible] comfort and [illegible] the past year has [illegible]

[illegible] from 1926 to 1936, church [illegible] gained by nearly nine millions [illegible] nearly 900,000 for 1935-36 [illegible] total number of church members [illegible] United States now sixty-four and a half [illegible]

[illegible] increase in church going [illegible] ahead of the total increase of [illegible] accurately figured. The decade [illegible] increase of nine million in [illegible] an increase of eleven and a [illegible] entire population.

Of course the Catholics remain the largest single division of Christians. Their membership totaled nearly twenty-one millions in 1936, of which nearly fifteen millions were over thirteen years [illegible] In the past year alone their increase has been nearly a quarter of a million.

Figures [illegible] available for the increases in [illegible] Christian Scientists and all branches of the Jewish congregations.

Protestants' Figures Difficult to Analyze

The figures for the Protestants are more difficult to salt down than those of the Catholics. One can take it for granted that most of the figures given for the latter include veritable, bona-fide church attendants. The Protestant figures, however, represent only those on the [illegible] Protestant churches, whether [illegible] or not; not counting the [illegible] of the unchurched who are [illegible] Protestants.

[illegible] book figures alone, the [illegible] the Protestant denominations [illegible] a total of ten and a third [illegible] The Reformed Church, with a total of [illegible] members, shows the second largest [illegible] for the year.

The Lutherans stand third in numbers of increase and the Methodists fourth. It can be [illegible] granted, however, that when the [illegible] North and South join together [illegible] expected in a year or two, [illegible] considerable impetus in membership [illegible]

Unitarians on March With Notable Gain

[illegible] interesting points noted in [illegible] is that the Unitarians, [illegible] in proportion to its [illegible] on the march. In fact, the [illegible] gain was that reported by the [illegible] nearly 67 per cent, or an increase [illegible] over the 1935 figures, giving them a total [illegible] of nearly 99,000.

Only [illegible] denominations reported a decrease in membership [illegible] Evangelical and Reformed, the [illegible] and Christian, the Salvation Army, and the [illegible] In view of a half dozen years of [illegible] this lack of growth in the [illegible] Army seems to me particularly interesting.

As usual, the lists of many separate bodies than the larger denominations of the Protestant church show how badly Protestantism in the United States needs the closely knit unity which marks Roman Catholicism. United they stand; divided we fall.

Trucking For Day $162.50

Questioning of City Auditor Charles J. Fox was to continue today following evidence of heavy and allegedly exorbitant trucking charges paid from the George Robert White Trust Fund for repair work done by the Codman Hill Construction Company, introduced at a public hearing before the Boston Finance Commission yesterday.

Special Investigator George R. Farnum, interrogating Fox, disclosed that as high as $162.50 was paid for trucking in a single day for repair work done on the properties of the White Fund.

HEAVY BILLS

A charge that two one and one-half-ton trucks, owned by the same concern, "masqueraded" as two and one-half-ton trucks while hauling snow for the city in 1935 was also made by the investigator.

The Codman Hill Company did more than $32,217 worth of trucking for the White Fund and city departments during the past two and one-half years, according to Farnum.

Bills from the auditor's office, acknowledged official by City Auditor Fox, disclosed that trucking charges in connection with work done by the Codman Hill Company for the White Fund, tabulated daily, were extremely heavy. In repairing seven rooms in one building on Boylston street, the company charged the White Fund for seven trucks in a single day, according to Farnum.

On at least five occasions this year, more than the necessary fee for trucking was charged, Farnum intimated.

FIGURES QUOTED

Figures were quoted to show that the company had charged the White Fund for trucking amounting to $14,361.89 during the past two and one-half years. In addition to this, the company received $13,371.7? for trucking for regular city departments last year, and $4461 so far this year.

Through his examination of Fox, Farnum disclosed that two trucks, belonging to that firm hauled snow for the city from January 23 to February 3d, inclusive. On the bills submitted for that period they were listed as two and one-half tons, receiving $2.50 per hour.

Later, according to Farnum, the same trucks were listed as one and one-half ton trucks, receiving $1.50 an hour. Still later they went back to their higher tonnage, he said.

Asked to explain the change in tonnage of the trucks, Fox merely remarked that "they were approved and certified by the department hiring the trucks." The city auditor admitted that responsibility was probably fixed on him that these material discrepancies were contained in two bills that went through his office on the same day.

BILLS CERTIFIED

"To sum up," Farnum stated, "all these various trucking bills for the White Fund came to your office attached to statements of invoices signed by Major Hall and also approved by Mr. Mansfield as chairman of the fund, or in a few cases by John I. Fitzgerald as acting chairman, and in one instance by Mr. Gilmore (chief clerk to Mayor), signed the Mayor's name?"

Fox nodded in the affirmative.

DRIVERS 'SENTENCED' TO SEE DEATH FILMS

New England cities studied a new safety technique today after 100 ticketed drivers were suddenly summoned to Quincy police station to receive a blistering lecture and view motion pictures of accidents caused by reckless drivers.

The plan was an outgrowth of the custom of certain western cities where judges sentence arrested drivers to stroll through the morgues and view bodies of accident victims.

HERE IS LETTER

The Quincy drivers, 25 of them women and several under 21, received the following letter from Police Chief John J. Avery.

"Dear Sir:

"On May — you were stopped by an officer of this police department for a violation of the traffic laws. Kindly report at the police station, Tuesday, June 29, at 8 p. m. Compliance with this request may make criminal prosecution unnecessary."

Arriving at the station they were first lectured by the chief and Louis E. MacBrayne, general manager of the Massachusetts Safety Council.

AFFECTS SPEEDERS

Then they were shown the pictures. Pictures of accidents of all types. Pictures of the bodies of small children, smashed to pitiful shapeless bundles by speeding cars.

"After seeing those pictures I am going to give up my license for life," a woman speeder remarked, shuddering.

"Believe you me, I am going to take it easy from now on," a white-faced man nodded in agreement.

Walsh in Waltham Race for Mayor

John H. Walsh, former state Legion commander, today tossed his hat into the Waltham mayoralty ring.

"I am definitely a candidate for the office of mayor of Waltham in the coming election," he declared. "The issues will be made clear as the campaign develops."

Walsh is a member of the local school committee, past president of the Waltham Chamber of Commerce and now holds the post of national vice commander of the legislative committee of the Legion.

1000 Scientists Harvard Guests

Harvard today was host to the 1000 scientists attending the 45th annual meeting of the Society for Promotion of Engineering Education which has been in session at M. I. T. since Monday.

President Karl T. Compton of M. I. T. addressed the gathering in the new lecture hall at Harvard, speaking on relations between engineering schools and industry. Dr. Harry P. Hammond of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, president of the society, also spoke.

Others were Dr. Vannebar Bush, M. I. T., and Dean Harold M. Westergaard of the Havard Graduate School of Engineering.

FIGHT SLATED TODAY ON HURLEY APPOINTEE

Governor Hurley's second choice for appointment to the remaining $7000 position on the new Appellate Tax Board is expected to meet with opposition from the Republican majority of the executive council at the regular meeting today.

The choice of former State Senator George H. Nelson of Worcester apparently is no more pleasing to Republican leaders than was that of Donald E. Mayberry of Newton who had his name withdrawn after his Republicanism had been attacked by the G. O. P. machine group.

Nelson, it is charged, has been too friendly with certain Democrats seeking or holding public office.

A final showdown in the council today is also looked for on three other pending appointments, namely, Mayor Lawrence E. Crowley of Brockton, as probate judge in Plymouth County; John J. Kerrigan of Fall River, as chairman of the Fall River board of police, and Miss Mildred C. Keane of Boston, secretary of the Democratic city committee, to the new state parole board.

Councillor Edgar E. Lindsay (R) of Brockton, is understood to be leading the battle to refuse confirmation to both Crowley and Kerrigan. Miss Keane faces the hostility of Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly, due to the fact that Miss Keane was a supporter of Philip Philbin, winner of the convention endorsement against Kelly.

At today's session, the governor is expected to submit some minor appointments, including a successor to the late Special Judge George L. Connors of the Attleboro court.

FINDS MANIAC KILLED SELF

Worcester, June 30—Homer Robbins, 31-year-old escaped maniac believed to have met death in a gun battle with police, was "probably a suicide," Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker declared here today.

This new development, the final chapter of the case, came after Dr. Baker received the report from the state police laboratory in Boston.

Authorities had previously established that Robbins, cornered after a three-day search, had been shot by Patrolman Elliot Hairves of the Millbury police.

Dr. Baker declared today:

"According to the report from the state police, the shot that passed through Robbins' body was fired not more than two inches from his chest.

"Therefore it was probably a suicide since Patrolman Hairves was never closer than 15 feet to Robbins."

Although Robbins was armed and had repeatedly fired at police, his mother, Mrs. Julia Putnam, had entered the woodlands to locate him in a frantic effort to save his life. But she could not find him. He was found dead the following night.

Engineers Hear Noted Speakers

Charging many members of the teaching profession are inclined to indulge in too much consulting work aside from their regular teaching duties resulting in a detriment to students, Dr. Karl T. Compton was principal speaker today at the opening general session of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education meeting for its 45th meeting at Harvard in the new lecture hall.

President Harry P. Hammond of the society also spoke to the group of educators representing more than 125 of the leading schools of the United States.

Following the morning session which opened with an address of welcome by Dr. Vannevar Bush, vice-president of M. I. T. and dean of engineering at the institute, Dean-elect Harold Westergaard of the Harvard graduate school of Engineering spoke. Carl Ell, dean and vice-president of Northeastern, was another speaker.

To Hold Outing

Social and civic leaders of Brookline are among members of the Young Republican Club of Brookline who will enjoy a summer outing Wednesday night. More than 300 couples will attend. Members will meet at Long Wharf at 8.30 p. m.

Roxbury Youth Wins

While 5000 adults and children cheered, Junior Birdmen model plane builders decided the 1937 outdoor championship for New England yesterday at Franklin Field in the final events of a hot, contested competition interrupted by rain Monday.

At the conclusion of the meet, Maurice Saidel of Roxbury was crowned this year's titleholder and was awarded the Boston Evening American silver trophy.

He will be sent to Atlanta, Ga., in August, with all expenses paid by this newspaper, to enjoy a week's entertainment and to compete in the national tournament against 16 other wing victors for the William Randolph Hearst trophy and $400 in prize money. The other 16 winners will be Junior Birdmen from the 16 territorial sections in which Hearst newspapers are published.

TIED FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Under the point system of scoring, with from 10 to 100 points awarded for fifth to first place in each of three events, Maurice and Gordon Cain of Hyde Park tied for the championship with 175 points each.

Junior Birdmen rules provide that in the case of a tie for points total time in all events shall decide the winner. Maurice had a total flight time of 6 min. 58 3-5 sec., while Gordon had a total of 6 min. 15 2-5 sec. On this basis, Maurice won.

Gordon took his defeat with the good sportsmanship which has marked all Junior Birdmen model flying competitions.

"I'll try to take the defeat like a man," he said. "Of course I'm sorry to lose but I'll shake Saidel's hand and wish him the best of luck in the nationals."

FLIERS PAY VISIT

A feature of yesterday's meet was the formation flying of navy planes from Squantum Air Base. Three naval reserve fliers in Navy Vought planes appeared over the site and performed a series of maneuvers that included formation of V's in line and every other formation that could be executed by a trio of navy fliers.

The navy planes were augmented by planes from the East Coast Airways, Wiggins Aircraft Company, Dennison Operating Company, Inter-City Air Lines and American Air Lines. An unexpected thrill was provided in the coincidental appearance of a huge four-engined Sikorsky S-42.

Jack Bronski, an Everett contestant, was one Junior Birdman who was able to identify every piece of aircraft that appeared in the sky. He named a Taylorcraft, Fleet Trainer, Taylor Cub, Stinson A, Douglas Flagship and the navy's Voughts.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEET

Runners-up in the two-day contest will receive nine gold, silver and bronze medals. Ace wingpins and red and blue ribbon awards as well as recognition of local records were also won.

The meet was probably the most enthusiastic ever held by Junior Birdmen and 16 police assigned by Commissioner J. P. Timilty and two troops of Boy Scouts from Everett under charge of Scout Master Randolph C. Wills and Eston Chapman had difficulty in keeping non-contestants from the flying area.

All the models in the three events had to be built to specifications provided in contest manuals issued weeks ago. The expert inspectors who examined the models were headed by Herbert K. Weiss of Lawrence, an M. I. T. graduate of aero engineering. They included "Bill" Newkirk, Cambridge; Waleigh Brown and Tony Qualitz, Waltham; Gaylon Townsend, Roslindale; Eugene Blevins, Everett, and W. A. Reed and R. E. Hayward, Hopedale.

The timers and judges were ten soldiers from the U. S. Army Base assigned by Brig. Gen. W. H. Wilson, chief of staff, under the command of Corporal Stephen McHugh.

Bill Briggs of Brighton was chief of arrangements.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Annice Brink

Either you like a band or you don't.

Most of us are willing enough to leave it that way, talk a bit glibly though loosely about 'arrangements,' express our devotion in the purchase of black discs which are played until we and the neighbors are sated, and crowd public appearances of the favorite.

ANNICE BRINK

Benny Goodman has kept his top-ranking longer than most that we can remember. But always alert for new dance-music idols, here is a particularly interesting and authoritative lead from George Frazier on Bob Crosby's band, coming to the Ritz after the holiday week-end.

"Crosby's band has more distinguished soloists than Goodman's.

"In view of the adulation heaped upon Benny, a true and impartial comparison is interesting.

"Crosby's band does lack the Goodman ensemble's brilliance. But your true lover of jazz prefers Crosby, since jazz is essentially a matter of improvisation and since his men take more solos than Goodman's. Goodman, to put it another way, is over-arranged."

Players Compared, With Crosby Leading

George considers Eddie Miller, tenor sax with Crosby, as better than Goodman's Vida Musso; Yank Lawson (Crosby) vastly more exciting than anyone in Goodman's band; Bob Haggart (bass) far superior to Harry Goodman; Gene Krupa probably better than Ray Bauduc (Crosby), though the best drummer of them all, Chick Webb, prefers Ray. And in a preference between Matty Matlock and Benny Goodman, the latter is still first, but not by too wide a gap.

Trinidad news from Eleanor Early, who is to gather book material there for six months, indicates that even voodoos have a fashion cycle.

She's going to add the word "soucouan" to the already familiar "zombie." And she tells of the current style in soucouans:

"I am investigating the soucouan situation (it's nothing to laugh at in the Indies, but as real as God). A soucouan is a dark and terrible superstition imported by the slaves from Africa.

Lower World Hag With Bad Habits

"In the beginning, it was some hag from the lower world who came from underground, like a vampire, to suck blood. And always under the necessity of leaving her skin at the place where she came up out of the ground. Her feast over, she recovered her skin, and back she went. If anyone could carry off her skin when she had temporarily discarded it, she would perish.

"Now the superstition has changed. Soucouans no longer come from the lower regions, but are actually old women of the villages who change themselves into bats and rats and all manner of fearsome animals at night.

"I knew one called M'George, who was said to become a pig by night and prowl around the town. There was another, M'Percy, who was thought to change herself into a bat. The people absolutely believe this, and the old women would be the last to deny it. They practice sorcery on the side—sell love potions and charms for sudden death."

Something to Give When All Else Fails

For these tiresome friends who "have everything," the purchase of remembrances and other small gifts is an awful chore. Keep these in mind, if the problem comes your way: A new golf tee in metal finish with a hinge and a chain that has a name-plate attached. The tee swivels when the ball departs, and thus always stays put. The Golf-T-Flex is worn in the belt. And is to be had even in "gold plate satin finish" for the sybarite. Smith Patterson's shows them . . . A luggage name plate with a strap which may be padlocked to a bag handle is one item that all but walks out of Filene's small leather goods department as soon as a batch comes in . . . Pitti's on Temple place, where Florentine silver jewelry is custom-made, claims to have started the vogue for fat cherubs, which is sweeping New York interior decoration circles, with their huge silver cherub brooches.

Spencer Tracy starts to teach Freddie Bartholomew how to "rough it" in the above scene from "Captains Courageous" stirring film of life on the Grand Banks which comes to Loew's State and Orpheum on Friday.

Merry Bill For Met Patrons

The producers of "Sing and Be Happy," the movie romance set to swing time rhythm, which comes to the Metropolitan Theater tomorrow, predict that the public will take the title literally, for there are five song hits in the picture. With five to choose from each swing music fan in the audience should find at least one which catches his ear.

Sharing honors on the program with this new Twentieth Century-Fox picture is a spectacular stage revue featuring Gus Van, Henrietta Schumann and a flashing procession of talented performers. It is called "Sky Rockets," so you will be able to see fireworks both indoors and out over the Fourth of July week-end.

"Sing and Be Happy" is a lively musical expose of what goes on behind the modernistic doors of two advertising agencies which are both trying to get the account of a large radio advertiser. Quite appropriately, Tony Martin and Leah Ray, who gained their popularity on the airwaves, get their first romantic leads in this picture. Martin takes the role of a barnstorming orchestra leader whose father, played by Burton Churchill, is anxious to have him enter his advertising business. Dixie Dunbar is a performer with the orchestra and Leah Ray brings the romantic note into the story.

Gus Van, formerly of the team of Van and Schenck, heads the "Sky Rockets."

NEWSOM-FERRELL IN LONG-AWAITED DUEL

BATTLE OF PRIMA DONNAS STIRS WASHINGTON FANS

NEWSOM

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

'I'm a Cinch to Win,' Newsom

'I Don't Have to Boast,' Ferrell

Newsom is ready. The new Red Sox ace would like nothing better than to beat his old teammates today, and particularly Wes Ferrell, for whom he was traded. These rivals face each other today at Washington.

AUSTEN LAKE

Sox Come Close To Winning and Losing, Then Do Neither

WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 30—I think I should caution my readers not to confuse references to the Washington Senators in the underlying column with those congressional mane-shakers who are busy exhaling large conversations and cutting legal curlicues further down Pennsylvania avenue. One must keep the identities of the two separate lest it give offense to both sides. So these are the baseball Senators and not the sitdown senators.

AUSTEN LAKE

Well, then, the Red Sox came very close to winning and losing a ball game, without doing either, in the inaugural contest of this series with the Senators. They won the first 8-9ths of the game by a score of 2 to 0 on a two-run homer by Jimmy Foxx and the puncture proof pitching of Lefty Grove. But they lost the last 1-9th by 2 to 0, and the day's mathematics ended at evens.

Foxx's homer was a typical drive that landed high in the centerfield bleachers and had enough carry left over after clearing the screening to make another single or, possibly, a double. Joe Cronin was on base at the time and waited for Jimmy to traipse around and took his hand with a grateful shake at the plate.

In fact such is the new-born fellowship of the Red Sox that although Jimmy's home run was [illegible] and this was his [illegible] of the season the rest of the [illegible] came trooping out to shake his hand, two each [illegible]

GROVE KEPT GOING along so snugly with his two-run margin, always with a little something extra ready for emergencies, that by the time the ninth inning arrived the Boston journalists, who had swarmed down to paint word pictures of the struggle, unboxed their typewriter lids and began, forehandedly, to tap out introductory paragraphs for the early supper editions.

This is one of the little time saving devices of the newspaper trade which go over the wires headed, "Guess intro" and with extra precautionary notes to the desk editors "hold for final verification."

[illegible]

Bucky Harris [illegible] who manages Washington sent up Ossie Bluege to [illegible] ninth and [illegible] Lefty [illegible]

SO BLUEGE MADE A SINGLE, and mishap No. 2 came immediately when Lefty, having exhausted that little extra something in the emergency, walked Hill. No. 3 arrived when Lewis nudged an aerial bunt toward first base bringing Foxx, churning his thick calves and stretching his glistening arm muscles to take it on the fly. If he had taken it successfully—but there I go again. Because he didn't get quite enough rubber into his reach and heave into his hips, so the ball plopped down and began to bounce between his ankles with Foxx bent in a hairpin posture patting it first with one hand and then with t'other like he was teasing a puppy. So there was a Senator on every cushion and nobody out and the journalists saying such words as every journalist gets to know and yanking their copy out of the typewriter rollers and telegraphing their home offices to spike those premature intros on the desk spindles.

[illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] had [illegible] washed out the journalists [illegible] theme.

There were 10,000 Boy Scouts from the Jamboree camp [illegible] the left field tiers crammed together like [illegible] making noise worthy of the A. E. F. on Armistice night. And to heighten the din somebody in the loud speaker control room turned on a few bars of a mountain quartet squawking "An' They Cut Down the Ool' Pine Tree" fit to bust your eardrums. And that didn't help Lefty much either, because by now there wasn't any of that emergency stuff left in his elbow, and he was borrowing from the power [illegible] to his next week's game.

THE RED SOX INFIELD was [illegible] back [illegible] the peaks of their caps [illegible] And presently Stone punched a grounder down to second base where McNair grabbed and spun to start a double play.

It would have been a double play, too, except that Cronin caught his thumb in the button of his blouse and before he could unhook himself, the chance to complete the play at first was gone. So there was a Senator on third and a Senator on first, the score tied at 2-all, and only one out. The journalists began tapping out fresh, tentative leads saying how the Red Sox had taken convulsions with victory on sight and had lost a heart-rending struggle to the tune of dash-to-dash.

Only they had to rip those out of the rollers, too, when Sington, the beefy Washington right fielder with ominous rolls of muscle in his arms, slapped a liner that Cronin caught off his boots and whipped to first to catch Stone leaning for the merciful last out.

This brought a vast groan from the Boy Scouts who [illegible] assembled from every nook of the country had adopted the Senators as their own, and they began pelting the players on the Red Sox bullpen with fruit from their lunch boxes until the cops moved out and reminded them of that "Good-deed-a-day" pledge. [illegible]

So for three [illegible] game [illegible] with neither side [illegible] game was called because of [illegible] and everybody [illegible] Scouts let out a loud howl.

The game ended 2 to 2 and [illegible] the Red Sox didn't [illegible] they would have to do the day's work all over [illegible] a double-header.

Talk means little in the opinion of Wes Ferrell, above. The temperamental hurler will do his talking through action when he takes the hill for the Nats this afternoon. It looks like quite a game.

Two Fluke Hits in Ninth Aid Nats—Foxx Homer Scores Sox Runs

Washington, D. C., June 30—The eagerly anticipated test of skill and clash of temperament between the Red Sox, Louis "Buck" Newsom and the Senators' Wesley Cheek Ferrell, each a winner of three games since exchanging uniforms, has the Roosevelt-du Pont nuptials playing second fiddle in the capital press today.

The [illegible] of the prima donnas is expected to attract a crowd of [illegible] which will be the largest [illegible] since 1933 when Joe Cronin, who now [illegible] the Nats to the championship [illegible]

"The biggest joke of the year is the selection of Ferrell as a pitcher on the All-Star team," chirps the boisterous "Buck." "After I get through showing up that counterfeit today, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if Joe McCarthy picked himself another hurler to help out Grove, Harder, Gomez and Stratton here a week from today."

HALTED IN 12TH

[illegible]

"Newsom may have won three straight games for the Sox but he hasn't beaten the Senators. He'll find it's not quite so easy to fool our lineup with five left-handed sluggers as it is to baffle clubs like the Browns, Tigers and White Sox, all of which depend mainly on right-handed power. We'll wear that pop-off out."

[illegible] Yet [illegible] awaited clash will furnish as many thrills [illegible]

[illegible] Robert [illegible] and [illegible] Monte [illegible] grim [illegible] the audience [illegible] and [illegible] darkness stepped in to halt it with the score tied 2-2 at the end of the 12th.

What Keeps Fette Off All-Stars?

By JOE CASHMAN

Here the lowly Bees have been home only one day, and already they've climbed out of the cellar way up to sixth place.

But the McKechniemen in [illegible] to get [illegible]

[illegible] Flatbush [illegible] which [illegible] out of the basement wasn't a feat [illegible] achievement by any stretch of the imagination.

True, there were nine of the Swarm out there in action at the Apiary. But eight of them did little more than beam approval while Lou Fette whitewashed the Dodgers for 12 frames and then getting tired and hungry personally rapped out the single which gave him a 1 to 0 decision and broke the heart of one Max Butcher who took care of the hostile hurling.

NONE BETTER

The audience at the homecoming saw as thrilling a game as has ever been played at the Hive. Yet the tilt was a secondary topic of conversation as the customers were filing out.

Everybody was asking everybody else the same question.

Why wasn't Fette named on the All-Star squad.

And the echo answers "Why."

Certainly no other pitcher in the league, and that includes Dean and Hubbell, has made a more sparkling early season showing than Bill McKechnie's 30-year-old freshman "find."

Lou to date has engaged in 13 games for a punchless second division outfit and has a record of nine victories and only three defeats.

His shutout yesterday was his third of the campaign. In three other of his triumphs, he yielded only one run.

Two of his three setbacks were by one-run margins, one of them an undeserved 1 to 0 setback at the hands of Dean.

HASN'T SEEN HIM YET

He [illegible] with a [illegible] and it's doubtful if there's another pitcher in the [illegible] with a lower earned-run average.

The big Dutchman won't be in the dream game next week but he [illegible] that company [illegible] Fette can offer a very good [illegible] naming the [illegible]

[illegible] by asking [illegible]

Lou's first big league start was against the Dodgers over in Brooklyn and he won. He repeated even more impressively on the Flatbush flock's first visit to the Hive.

And yesterday he made it three in a row by turning in the classiest effort of his brief career in fast company.

Once the invaders had a runner on third with only one out and twice they had men on second with but one gone. Lou without turning a hair pulled out of the hole.

Until he went to work offensively in the 12th though he had nothing on adversary Butcher.

The Dodgers young right hander making his first start since May 21 when he was stricken with stomach ulcers, was in rare form. Entering the game boasting of 14 consecutive scoreless innings of flinging, he had little trouble running his string to 25.

The Bees had but one chance up to the 12th and blew it when they failed to rescue a runner from third with one out in the seventh.

When Fletcher opened the 12th with a single and was sacrificed to second however Fette decided the fun had lasted long enough. So he cracked the first pitch served him for a line single to center and the Bees celebrated their third win in a row.

New York, June 30—The New York State Athletic Commission at last has recognized Joe Louis as world heavyweight champion. But he still can't box in New York until he meets Max Schmeling.

And in women's singles, observers of the matches throughout the tournament at Harvard's magnificent athletic fields will tell you that Elena Ciccone, top-seeded player and tournament favorite up until today, isn't capable of beating the Sylvia Hatch who played there yesterday.

HATCH-CICCONE FINAL?

Sylvia, pretty young miss from Winchester and second ranking player in the women's division, wasn't brilliant yesterday. She didn't have to be.

The ease with which she swept through two matches playing easily and confidently indicated to the gallery that she was holding her real strength in reserve.

When and if she meets Elena in the finals it will be a test of whether Hatch's strategy and all around skill based principally on [illegible] driving and well-placed [illegible] can turn Ciccone's more powerful service and drives.

Sylvia granted one game out of [illegible] yesterday, defeating Mary Allin [illegible], 6-0, 6-1 and Janet Blanchard, Arlington, 6-0, 6-0.

Today she meets Arlene White, Manchester, N. H., who eliminated Jean Day, sixth seeded girl player, in Sunday's matches. Yesterday Arlene defeated Janet Josephs, Adams, 7-5, 5-7, 6-4.

Two [illegible] matches were [illegible] in the girls' division yesterday as Dorothy Carter, Manchester, N. H., seeded eighth, defeated Barbara Southward, Swampscott, 6-6, 6-2, and Dorothy Bruno, state junior champion from Winchester, was hard pressed in eking out a victory over Bette McDevitt, Dorchester.

Dorothy Bruno appeared badly off form in her match, particularly in her volleying. She had trouble judging her forward court play, and was prone to overshoot the baseline on the lob returns, and often returned easy volleys to her opponent in center court, when she might have made kills.

The most remarkable match of the day in the men's division saw Horace Taylor, [illegible] year old veteran of New England tournament play, [illegible] of his magic wand [illegible].

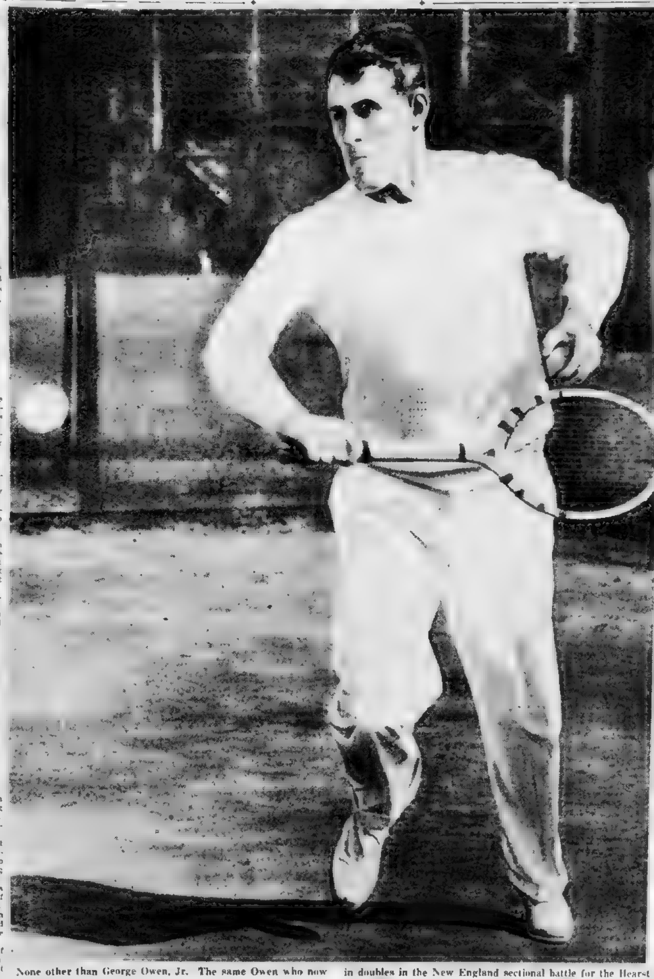
Ex-Great Seeks New Laurels



None other than George Owen, Jr. The same Owen who now ranks with Harvard's athletic immortals because of his feats in football, hockey and baseball back 15 years ago, is now an ardent tennis player—and not bad, either. He is third seeded in doubles in the New England sectional battle for the Hearst Grand National tennis championships now underway at the Harvard courts. He is teamed with Eddie Murphy.

George Owen Tennis Star

Ex-Harvard Ace Likes Game

George Owen isn't getting fat.

At 39, Harvard's nine-letter man who thrilled a million spectators is playing tennis to keep fit.

[illegible] game of tennis [illegible]

"You can take an ordinary boy, with a sturdy physique," Owen says, "and inside of two years you can make a good football player out of him.

"But in tennis, it takes a good many years of practice to be good.

"It takes plenty of physical endurance to play match tennis, and something more. It requires brains and skill."

PLAY FOR FUN

The former defense man for the Boston Bruins hockey team is one of 128 contestants entered in the men's doubles of the Hearst Tennis Tournament now being played at Harvard courts.

Owen and his doubles partner, Eddie Murphy, Boston University [illegible] school [illegible] and former [illegible] tennis team player, are [illegible] in the tournament.

Both Murphy [illegible] teamed up [illegible] and [illegible] game.

[illegible] than [illegible]. The officials ranked Murphy and Owen as third seeded doubles team.

Above them are two combinations, Edward Fuller and Paul Guibord, No. 1 team, and Sumner Rotman and Harrison Rowbotham in second position.

What Owen and Murphy are going to do is the big question mark of the doubles division.

Their psychology is dangerous.

URGES PRACTICE

They won't mind swatting the ball across the net hard. They're in the tourney for a good time and that removes a load of caution from a player's mind.

"I took this game up only about two or three years ago," said Owen. "They told me it wasn't a game for old men. I wanted to prove they are wrong.

"I've seen a lot of the old duffers who play good, steady tennis.

"The trouble with tennis is with the youngsters. They won't take time to practice. They can't spend the time in improving their strokes.

"After all, isn't that the answer in any sport—practice?"

That's the thing that will bring New England back into its former importance as a section that develops tennis champs, Owen believes.

Practice and more practice for the youngsters.

A good crop of younger players interested in the game and willing to spend long practice hours, and the opportunity of match play as afforded by such tournaments as the Hearst Grand National Championships being sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

U.S. GOLFERS RETAIN RYDER CUP, 8 TO 4

Score First Victory in England

Southport, Eng., June 30 (AP)—Scoring its first victory on British soil, the United States Ryder cup team today retained the international golf trophy by defeating Great Britain's picked team of professionals, 8 to 4.

The triumph, first for either side on the other team's home grounds, brought the standing in the series that was begun in 1927 to four matches for the Americans and two for the British.

Most [illegible] of the [illegible] victories in today's singles matches was scored by Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, who routed the British champion Alf Padgham 8 and 7. But it was Gene Sarazen, veteran of each of the past five teams, who brought home the point that assured the invaders of retaining the trophy and another veteran, Ed Dudley, who came in with the victory that put the Americans out in front to stay.

When Sarazen, who made up a three-hole deficit on the last nine, turned in his 1 up defeat of Percy Alliss he brought the score to U. S. 6, Britain 4, with two matches still to be completed.

Even had the home forces won those two and tied the final score the Ryder Cup would have remained in the Americans' hands. But Dudley, whipping Alf Perry, British open champion two years ago, by 2 and 1, and lanky Henry Picard, winning from Arthur Lacey by the same margin, sewed the match up tight.

SLAMMIN' SAM WINS

Guldahl, Sarazen, Dudley and Picard were joined in the winner circle by Slammin' Sam Snead, the brilliant young recruit who, in his bow to international competition, gained a 5 and 4 decision over Richard Burton.

The other half a point, which with the 2½ they scored in yesterday's Scotch foursomes, brought the successful defenders' total to eight, was accounted for by Denny Shute, P. G. A. title-holder for the past two years. Denny finished his 36 holes all square with Sam King, young one-time gamekeeper from Kent who cut down Shute's three-hole lead at the 27th in the final nine, dropping a six foot putt for a winning birdie on the 36th to leave the match even.

Besides King, who matched Shute's 72 in the morning and his 73, one over par, in the afternoon, Britain's only point-scorers were Henry Cotton and David (Dai) Rees.

Cotton, whose showing in the foursomes was a disappointment in view of his ranking as the best all-around pro in the country, gained a decisive 5 and 3 victory over Tony Manero, 1936 U. S. open champion.

Dropping the first set to Taylor 6—3, Goodwin took the second 4—6 and has Taylor gasping for breath as the score stood 5-1 in games and 30-0 for Goodwin.

Taylor refused to be stampeded by the score, fought off the attack in that game, and a victorious sweep of six straight games to win the match in the final set, 7—5.

Lyman Olmsted, Cambridge, who many observers state is one of the most underrated players in the men's division, defeated Bruce Wilkins, Belmont, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, showing the strength of his powerful forehand drives and his blasting service in the last two sets.

Olmsted gets his acid test as he meets the winner of the Fuller-Quinn match.

A little heralded player who has shown remarkably well in women's singles so far, Jessie Shaevirtz of Quincy, defeated Sylvia Russell of Newton Centre.

The first set of the match, played Monday before rain halted the game, went to Russell at 2—6.

Shaevirtz took the second set at 10—8, had little difficulty stampeding her opponent in the third set to win 6—1.

Today Shaevirtz meets Mary Cutler, third seeded player from Winchester, who appeared to have difficulty in defeating Dorothy B. Parks of Arlington, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2.

McSpaden First State Repeater Since Ross

By BILL GRIMES

[illegible] McSpaden [illegible] the [illegible] at Oyster Harbors [illegible] open championship [illegible] when Alex Ross [illegible] for the fifth consecutive year.

A year ago at the Oak Hill Country Club McSpaden defeated Gene Sarazen by posting a 292, which was a stroke under Wilford Crossley, Norfolk's outstanding amateur.

As was the case at Oak Hill, McSpaden was pressed to the last putt at Oyster Harbors.

With nine holes to go he apparently had the title all sewed up. But on the back nine he started to slip a little and there Andersen of the home club began to click.

[illegible] McSpaden had a six stroke lead over Andersen and Johnny Fischer, the national amateur champion.

Fischer faded coming home but not Andersen, who staged one of the greatest comebacks in the annals of Bay State open championships.

During the first five inward holes Andersen picked up no less than five strokes on McSpaden and he gambled the title on getting down a long putt on the 7th green for an eagle. Although he stroked his ball perfectly and accurately the putt ran over the cup and six feet beyond, and he missed coming back.

Andersen is deserving of great credit for his showing. It's a tough assignment for [illegible] to win any championship on his home course.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

Wing Commander's Note: This is the fifteenth in a series of articles written especially for the Junior Birdmen of America by the headquarters staff of the United States Army Air Corps. The series deals with the day-by-day progress of a recruit in Uncle Sam's air corps and relates, in detail, his training at the Randolph Field training center in San Antonio, Texas.

ARTICLE 15

On Monday the Dodoes moved their flying equipment from their locker rooms on the primary side of the station to the basic stage flying line on the opposite side of the cadet area. There they listened to a lecture by the commander of the basic stage.

Slowly some of the elation of the previous week began to wear off. The class "got down to earth" again and realized that they were now responsible for the behavior, discipline and general well-being of the new Dodo class which would soon arrive.

They also began to realize that there were four months of hard work ahead of them on the basic stage.

The amount of flying per day was increased with more spirals, more eights and more aerobatics.

There was one cadet who had received dual instruction in loops and was ordered up to do his first [illegible]. He [illegible] 4000 feet [illegible] a deep breath [illegible] started the plane down in a glide. Soon the wires began to whistle in the wind.

He knew [illegible] of pulling out of a dive too quickly [illegible] slowly eased the stick back and watched the nose come up [illegible] He [illegible] to be very careful not to make [illegible] loop too small or [illegible] the stick back too quickly.

He [illegible] in very slowly again and suddenly realized that the engine was beginning to labor, that he was past the vertical [illegible] and that due to flying too [illegible] he was not going to be able to make it.

By this time he was hanging on against his belt. He remembered that to [illegible] down you should push the stick forward, so he did. For a fraction of a second his plane slid backward, held in a tail slide by the forward position of the stick.

Suddenly and without warning the engine which had been below him and the heavens were past him with a swish and jolt which he thought must surely snap his neck. By this time he had learned enough of aeronautics to have some idea of the stresses he had put on his plane and was surprised after looking about to find that all of his plane was still with him.

His plane soon fell off into a dive again. He leveled off, came down and landed. A thorough inspection showed that the sturdy old training plane was still serviceable, but would have to be rerigged before it was again capable of accurate flying.

The next article will cover night flying on the basic stage of the Air Corps primary flying school.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

MOVING day in many circles—as per always with the turn of a month. There's to be a van hauling away from "Town Hall Tonight" in radioland this evening (WNAC) between 9 and 10 o'clock, carrying personal effects belonging to Fred Allen, the funster.

Occupancy of the place henceforth will be by Walter (Off the Trapeze) O'Keefe. He should be a good tenant, although the "Town Hall" lease with sponsors has expired as far as Allen is concerned and Fred merely wishes to show Walter around, introduce him to all the neighbors and duly turn over the dial keys.

N F T

Following a not too lengthy stay in Maine, Fred and Portland Hoffa have some Hollywood business to transact. Then the matter of broadcasting again for the fall and winter of 1937-38 will have their attention. Meanwhile, the popular Wednesday night 60 minutes will be something for O'Keefe to stage from week to week. Harry Von Zell will remain at his announcing post and guest artists from all over everywhere can count on call to keep "Town Hall" a [illegible] rendezvous for listeners.

FLEETING FLASHES

The life of Luther Burbank, the man who performed magic experiments with growing things, will be dramatized during the "Cavalcade of America" program (WEEI) this evening from 8 to 8:30 p. m.

Burbank devoted his life to improving the breeds of vegetables, fruits and flowers which grace American tables and homes today.

Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra welcome Frank Parker, tenor, to the new summer series tonight (WEEI) at 9 p. m.

Among Parker's solos will be "One Alone" from Sigmund Romberg's "The Desert Song" and "Where or When," from the current Broadway success, "Babes In Arms," by Rodgers and Hart.

The first in a series of talks on "Youth and Crime" will be broadcast (WMEX) tomorrow evening by Henry W. Nichols, general counsel of the National Surety Corporation.

Mr. Nichols will speak in the interests of the Metropolitan Federation of Daily Vacation Bible Schools. His address will be heard from 9:00 to 9:15 p. m.

WHITEMAN WAFTING

Paul Whiteman, called dean of modern music and glorifier of jazz, will bring his famous orchestra back to the air beginning tonight (WBZ) between 11:30 and midnight.

It's a new Summer series of programs to be presented twice weekly through July, August and September.

The rotund maestro will present his concerts from the auditorium at the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta, Fort Worth, Texas.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will go direct from her son's wedding this afternoon to the studios of WDEL in Wilmington, Delaware, for her weekly Wednesday broadcast (WBZ) this evening at 7:15 p. m. She will discuss the summer plans of the Roosevelt family.

As her guest for this program Mrs. Roosevelt will have Carleton Smith, NBC's "presidential" announcer, the man who introduces the chief executive when he broadcasts and who has traveled all over the country with him.

FACTS ABOUT FAVORITES

BENNY GOODMAN, Dean of the Tuesday night 'Swing School,' has had his own orchestra for only three years. He used to swing out as a soloist with top bands, beginning at 16 as featured clarinetist. He was with Ben Pollack, then later with such well-knowns as Isham Jones, Red Nichols, Johnny Green and Paul Whiteman.

• • •

ANDRE KOSTELANETZ who also studied at Rimsky-Korsakoff's music school, was still a student in St. Petersburg Conservatory of Music when, at the age of 19, he was offered a position as chorus-master of the Petrograd Grand Opera Company.

MORTON DOWNEY'S bow to the public was in a fireman's minstrel show.

Mort was to sing at the non-professional age of 4 years and 1 month "My Pretty Red Wing"—and he fell sound asleep on the stage.

They woke him, however, just in time and he sang all the better for his brief nap, or so the story goes.

OH, NO WONDER!

The success of James Melton's "Sunday Night Party" on the air, may be traced in great measure to its rehearsal methods.

Melton is a stickler for detail and is always ready to put in several extra hours to iron out the most minute difficulties.

Most radio shows are rehearsed during the afternoon hours preceding the broadcast, but the "Sunday Night Party" has established a new practice, with Jimmy directing affairs for four days.

Jessica Dragonette plans to present "The Pink Lady," a popular musical love story that first charmed New York in 1910 during the "Beauty Box Theater" broadcast (WEEI) at 9:30 tonight.

DRAMA DOINGS

The story of a cold blooded murder will be told in dramatic form when "Thrilling Detective Dramas" time comes (WMEX) this evening from 9:00 to 9:30 p. m.

[illegible], operetta and screen star, will be the guest on the "Your Hit Parade," half hour (WNAC) tonight at 10 o'clock.

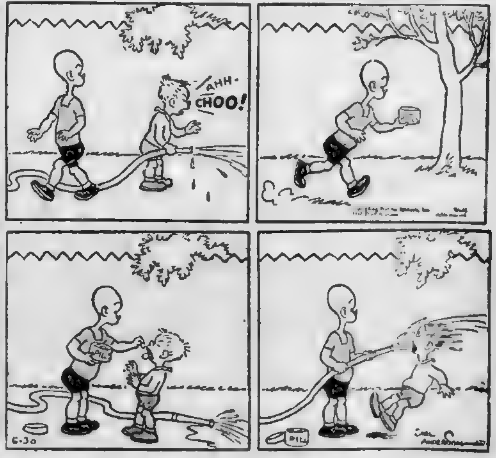
Well—That's One Way



TELLS Of Other STRIKES

CIO NOT ONLY ONES—FORBES

By B. C. FORBES

Very [illegible] has been under way of a very different kind from those filling the newspapers daily: Strikes by investors, institutional as well as individual; also strikes by entrepreneurs and by many companies.

Enterprise has seriously slowed down. Capital-raising has gravely dwindled. Large investors have pulled in their horns.

To avoid risks inseparable from business, there has been widespread resort to purchasing of federal, state, municipal and other tax-exempt bonds. The supply has been abundant. Since President Roosevelt took office, the expansion in U. S. government obligations has exceeded $15,000,000,000.

It is significant that buying of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange has lately been at the lowest ebb in almost 14 years.

Even more significant is the shrinkage in capital raised by corporations.

The annual average for the ten years preceding 1929 was $3,512,000,000. In 1929, when speculation and promotion ran riot, the total skyrocketed to $8,639,000,000. Even in the year following the collapse, almost $5,000,000,000 was issued.

In 1933 there was a slump to only $161,000,000. The total for the first four years under the New Deal 1933-36 was only $1,960,000,000.

This little table gives the whole picture.

New corporate financing:

1919-28	z$3,512,000,000
1929	8,639,000,000
1930	4,944,000,000
1931	1,763,000,000
1932	325,000,000
1933	161,000,000
1934	178,000,000
1935	404,000,000
1936	1,2[illegible]7,000,000
1937 (five months)	526,000,000

zTen-year average.

Because of the hounding and pounding investors, business, industry have suffered at the hands and tongues of politicians, they have, in effect, indulged more or less in sit-down strikes—only, they have not usurped other people's property.

The wages of capital have been reduced far more than the wages of workers.

Business and industrial organizations had to draw on their reserves during the worst depression years to the extent of no less than $34,700,000,000.

Since recovery set in, millions of investors, small as well as large, have had their income greatly reduced through the calling in of their bonds bearing decent interest rates, forcing them either to accept in exchange new issues yielding very much less or to go into the market and make new purchases less attractive than their former holdings.

You know what has happened to interest rates paid by savings banks: they have been lowered to a painful extent. This has cut the income of 43,000,000 savings bank depositors in this country.

Owners of almost 65,000,000 insurance policies have also suffered.

No nation can prosper when its frugal citizens, those who have practised self-denial in order to save something for a rainy day, are subjected to discouraging treatment.

No nation can prosper when its business and industrial and financial leaders are subjected to constant apprehension as to what the government will do next to hurt them and those they represent.

We may not be moved to shed tears over business and industrial and financial leaders, or even other individuals and families who laid up a nest-egg.

But the fundamental truth is that when all these are punished, employment inevitably shrinks.

And no amount of striking by CIO workers, no amount of enforced increasing of wages, can create an adequate number of jobs to absorb the unemployed.

What the nation needs is not more strikes or more striking at business by politicians, but all-round co-operation—by business, by labor, by government—to bring about less strife, less disturbance, less hostility and more harmonious working together for the common good.

New Deal Tactics Are Followed by France in Crisis

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, June 30.—M. Chautemps, the new French premier, has called Georges Bonnet from his ambassadorship at the New Deal capital to deal with the financial crisis in France. And, in many respects, France is following New Deal tactics.

In the first place, emergency powers are being granted to the new administration for the purpose of dealing with the nation's finances. This is much as in the 1933 crisis here, only the powers will be for only a few months in France. (In both cases the "emergency" results from unsound policies within.)

There is a moratorium on debt payments, especially designed to stop gold exports, and the speculative exchanges are closed temporarily. Gold payments are "suspended," pending a final plan.

In the second place, the whole trouble is a financial panic caused by fear of Socialistic policies and money tinkering. Consequently the plans and schemes being made in France center on currency and banking manipulations.

The new program starts with talk about a "defense of the franc" against its enemies, called "speculators." (This, of course, is bunk designed for the public.) As a result, we have a moratorium, exchange restrictions, and all the rest of such stuff.

It then proceeds to show its true colors by measures to "increase the treasury's assets." That means forced loans, including, no doubt, a further devaluation of the franc. (The government, you note, assails the speculator, and then turns around and whales the franc. The patriotic citizen must hold gold francs till the latest crew of politicians comes around and clips his coin.)

Finally, there is to be an arrangement for further "advances" to the government by the banks of France. That probably means steps toward subjecting the bank to political control, just as our Federal Reserve system has been made an "arm of the government."

And the whole program seems logically to head up in a seizure of gold by the government, to the end that it may substitute a so-called "managed currency" for real money and a standard of value.

You see, the previous devaluation of the franc was not as effective as expected because the people would not give up their gold, and the devaluation therefore caused domestic prices to rise.

In the third place, there has been and will be much talk about balancing the budget. But we in this country know what a New Dealer means by "balance"! He means enough balance to enable a politician to ride two horses at the same time—borrowing and spending.

The Blum administration leaned toward Communism and was overthrown by the Senate. The Chautemps administration leans toward Fascism, and may be overthrown by the Socialists.

No important adverse effects upon the United States are indicated. Probably there will not even be much repatriation of French funds from this country. There was none under Laval. Attempts to woo money by force can't succeed, and the return to exchange restrictions and coercion of French holders of foreign balances, are not likely to accomplish much. At this time French employers are threatening widespread "lock outs" on account of the blow dealt them by Blum's 40-hour week. Why, then, should money return to France?

It may well be that, in the long run, the worldwide inflation may be hastened by the French developments. I do not, however, expect any resumption of the international devaluation race.

There is just one remedy for the financial troubles of governments, and that is to cut government spending and balance government budgets. Then we may return to some standard for our money; credit will be restored, and both labor and capital may go back to work.

STEEL Vitality NOTED

OUTLOOK SEEN CHEERFUL

New York, June 30 (AP) The vitality displayed by the steel industry under the handicap of strikes and other unsettled conditions leads the trade to believe an upswing in new business will develop once the labor situation has quieted down, "Iron Age" said today in its weekly review.

"While new orders continue to run behind shipments," the publication said, "the total volume of business booked in June was not much, if any, below that of May. For some companies the June volume ranged from 65 to 75 per cent of shipments.

"New business is heaviest in sheets, plates, structural shapes and oil-country pipe, while tin plate booked some time ago continues to tax the capacity of mills, some of which are doing extra turns to supply customers' insistent demands.

OUTSTANDING

"Outstanding in the week's business was a 240-mile pipe line, requiring 16,000 tons of 8-inch pipe placed by the Atlantic Refining Co., and 7500 tons of 10-inch pipe bought by Shell Petroleum Co.; also 18,000 of fabricated structural steel to be furnished by Bethlehem Steel for a Mississippi River bridge at Baton Rouge, La.

"For the third consecutive week, the 'Iron Age' composite price on steel scrap is unchanged at $17.08, but the scrap market undertone is stronger.

"A combination of declining business and the shutting down of some steel plants for vacation periods has brought a sharp drop in the production rate in the Pittsburgh and Wheeling area, but the partial resumption of steel making at Youngstown mills, with a rise of 19 points in that district, has more than offset the Pittsburgh-Wheeling loss, resulting in an indicated average for the country this week of 76.5 per cent, up a point and a half from last week."

duPont Offering Stock Today

New York, June 30—The first public financing by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. since early in 1928 was undertaken today with the public offering of 500,000 shares of $4.50 cumulative preferred stock by a syndicate headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. The stock was priced at $100 per share plus accrued dividends.

The sale of the stock provides the company with one of the largest amounts of working capital drawn from the market by an individual concern in the past few years. The proceeds from financing will be placed directly in the general funds of the company and used with other cash funds for general corporate purposes, chief of which, according to the registration statement, is general business expansion.

The Offering Prospectus, which must be furnished to each purchaser, should be read prior to any purchase of this Preferred Stock.

THE COMPANY The Company was organized in 1915 under the laws of Delaware and with its subsidiaries is engaged principally in manufacturing and selling diversified lines of chemical products and other products related thereto. In addition the Company and its subsidiaries hold investments in other companies, the most important being 11,956,686 shares, or 27.5%, of the outstanding common stock of General Motors Corporation, of which shares 1,956,686 are applicable to minority interests in a subsidiary. The Company disclaims any admission of effective control of it by Christiana Securities Company.

The principal manufacturing and sales activities of the Company are conducted through eleven departments or divisions, which are listed in the order of their respective positions from the standpoint of dollar volume of sales for the years 1935 and 1936, as follows: Fabrics & Finishes (including pyroxylin-coated fabrics and lacquers), Organic Chemicals (including dyestuffs), Rayon, Grasselli Chemicals (heavy chemicals), Explosives (excluding smokeless powder), "Cellophane", R. & H. The net proceeds will be placed in the general funds of the Company. The Company believes that it is prudent to raise additional new capital at this time to provide against contingencies calling for greater working capital and to provide against reduction of its cash funds which, assuming a reasonable dividend policy, it expects would otherwise take place over the next year due to cash expenditures for expansion of plant facilities and to increased working capital requirements to finance increased inventories and receivables resulting from a general expansion of the Company's volume of business.*

The actual record of machines over a period of time is that they not only provide more jobs, but increase the real wages of workers and reduce the hours of labor. It is not an accident that at present employment is more nearly normal in those industries that are highly mechanized while those such as building where labor saving devices are not extensively used show the greatest proportion of unemployment. The key to the problem, the letter points out, is increased production at prices that will move goods into consumptive channels. So long as human wants are unsatisfied there is potential work for all. But the adoption of remedial measures that merely aggravate the very conditions they are designed to correct will only further complicate matters.

Another feature of the unemployment problem that adds to the confusion of individual attempts to analyze it and prescribe a cure is the lack of a periodic census. It is an essential need in order that it may be known how many are out of work as well as how they are distributed by classes of occupation. The New England letter makes this point clear and it is to be hoped that what amounts to a plea for statistical exactness is heeded.

The stock market is still in the grip of diverging forces. The rails have not shaken their heaviness and the industrials have yet to prove their ability to pull the rest of the list upward in their wake. It is, in other words, still "do-nothing" time. The calm with which the French news was received was heartening but also indicated that the actual news had been taken into account by the declining markets of recent weeks. But by and large the real trouble with prices is the lack of confidence on the part of those who own money.

Notebook: The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway report is out today . . And not a dot of red ink mars it . . In May net income amounted to $10,281 . . A decline from the $16,955 shown in May last year . . But a good showing when the railway operating revenues are studied . . For these dipped from $577,832 to $548,555 . . And for the five months through May net of $149,611 is reported . . A gain of over $10,000 over the '36 figure . . And also accomplished despite a fair sized decline in railway operating income for the period.

Comments of Brokers

[illegible] the rails I feel that commitments in selected groups are just fied on [illegible] that many stocks are [illegible] and [illegible] prospects so far as one can see at this time—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Co.

An upturn now must surpass last week's average high before it can be assumed that an important market reversal has occurred. Poor action of second-grade rail bonds and of principal motor and accessory stocks is somewhat disconcerting.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

The outlook may be brighter than would be suspected by a casual survey of present day conditions.—F. H. Richardson, Southgate & Co.

The critical developments in the French financial situation should serve as a fitting climax to the intermediary decline which started on March 10th. However, it seems unlikely that the market will decisively register its feelings in this respect until action in France is completed.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

If this strength in commodities persists, it seems reasonable to believe that stock prices should also turn upwards.—Blake Brothers & Co.

The action of the market Tuesday was tentatively favorable but it would require three or four days of additional satisfactory market action to prove that the current hesitation is more than a lull in the down trend.—E. A. Pierce & Co.

Support of the new French government in Wednesday's voting could bring momentarily better sentiment, as would further weakening of the Lewis labor activities, but even such news could effect but temporary bulge in the market so that a cautious trading policy should be maintained.—J. P. Maner, Shields & Co.

We feel that sufficient price adjustment has already been accomplished to warrant the assumption of a more constructive intermediate pull market attitude.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Monetary Situation Viewed

Washington, June 30 (AP)—Administration monetary authorities predicted today Great Britain and the United States would continue co-operation to effect currency stability if France withdraws from the tri-power monetary agreement. They said France has indicated no official intention of quitting but they added that the French financial crisis makes such a course possible.

By suspending gold payments, officials said, France ceased to operate under the agreement yesterday. The understanding, effected last September, provides that gold may move freely between the stabilization funds or central banks of participating countries.

The "gentleman's agreement" pledges participants to use stabilization funds to brake fluctuations in international exchange. This is designed to aid international trade by assuring traders of a degree of monetary stability.

Shortly after the agreement was formulated, Belgium, Switzerland and the Netherlands pledged co-operation and were taken in as "associate members." Officials said they expected these countries would remain if France should withdraw.

Finance Minister Bonnet reported in Paris yesterday the French stabilization fund is exhausted. Authorities here pointed out that unless it is replenished, France could not live up to terms of the agreement.

Reports from Paris also have indicated the Chautemps government will devalue the franc further, permitting it to seek its own level in relation to other currencies.

Some administration officials expressed the view that France could not continue under the agreement if this were done, because there would be no controls to keep the franc steady in foreign money markets.

The Treasury was in frequent telephone communication with London financial officials. Informed persons said neither Great Britain nor the United States would take any action without consulting the other.

The French monetary troubles held Secretary Morgenthau's attention yesterday simultaneously with a visit from Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium.

After a brief talk with Morgenthau, Van Zeeland joined with President Roosevelt in a statement outlining this country's policies on world trade, military and monetary problems.

It said the United States is disposed to co-operate with other nations to bolster trade, stabilize currency relationships and check big scale armament building.

Informed authorities asserted Van Zeeland had discussed with Secretary Hull creation of an international commission to study economic problems.

The commission, on which the two were reported agreed in principle, would decide when—and whether—a world economic conference should be called.

It was emphasized however that European conditions would make any conference premature at present. The officials said months of [illegible] preparation and study would be necessary.

The Roosevelt-Van Zeeland statement referred to the monetary pact and the Belgian trade agreement, saying:

"The results are a matter of great satisfaction. It is an example of what can be done where fear, hostility and aggressive intention are absent."

Southern N. E. Tel. $2 on Quarterly

New Haven, Ct., June 30 (AP)—The Southern New England Telephone Company announced today a quarterly dividend of $2 a share on its capital stock will be paid July 15. The dividend, declared at a directors' meeting here yesterday, is payable to stockholders of record today.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 30—The American Bureau of Metal statistics reported today that world zinc consumption excluding the United States averaged 93,700 short tons during the three months just ended compared with a monthly average of 95,504 tons in 1937 and 92,657 tons monthly in 1936. World lead consumption excluding the United States, during the last three months averaged 100,580 tons against 101,977 tons monthly in 1937 and 105,867 tons monthly in 1936.

Former Treasurer Joseph Hummel, Jr., of Eagle Picher Lead Co., has been elected president succeeding A. E. Bendelari who resigns July 1. Bendelari will continue as director and member of the executive committee.

National Tea Co., reported a gain of 6.5 per cent in sales for the 4 weeks ended June 19 compared with last year or a total of $4,931,217 against $4,628,100 in 1936. Sales for the 24 weeks amounted to $29,774,007 compared with $28,130,567 in the same period of 1936, a gain of 5.8 per cent.

STOCKS Continue HIGHER

LABOR PICTURE OPTIMISTIC

New York, June 30—Pivotal stocks increased gains to three and more points as a recovery movement that featured initial dealings continued in the stock market today.

Better business and labor conditions buoyed the market's bellwethers. Easing of tension over the Spanish civil war and the French monetary crisis also was a factor.

U. S. Steel's $2 dividend spurred steel shares generally, with "big steel" common up over two points and the preferred almost as much. Bethlehem likewise soared over two and one-half points in the motors and General Motors chalked up a point gain.

Blue chips featured the session, American Can soaring more than five, Westinghouse better than 4, American Telephone more than 3 and duPont Allied Chemical and Case two each.

Mines, Rubbers, rails and oils joined the advance. Bonds also moved up. Grains were mixed. Cotton eased.

CURRENT ITEMS

In the financial district some encouragement was derived from steel news. "Iron Age" said the vitality of the steel industry despite strikes and other unsettled conditions led the trade to believe expansion in new business would develop, once disputes between employers and workers have been settled.

"While new orders continue to run behind shipments, business booked in June was not much, if any, below that of May. For some companies the June volume ranged from 65 to 75 per cent of shipments. New business is heaviest in sheets, plates, structural shapes and oil-country pipe," it said.

Followers of power shares found the power production report for the week ended June 26 good reading. It showed output up 1.1 per cent over the previous week, a more than seasonal gain. Observers expressed satisfaction at the way production was holding its gain over 1936.

The pound sterling opened up 5-16 of a cent at $4.93¼. The French franc was not quoted.

U. S. Begins New Fiscal Year

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The government will begin a new fiscal year tomorrow because, a long time ago, Congress told it to.

In the first years of the republic, officials said today accounts were kept on a calendar year basis.

Because Congress then was starting sessions early in December, a fiscal year ending September 30 was decreed early in the last century.

This gave the lawmakers late reports on the government's year-end financial situation, but Treasury experts said there was not enough time to compile the reports.

In 1834, Treasury Secretary Woodbury urged Congress to start the fiscal year earlier. Eight years later Congress agreed on July 1.

Truck Loadings Below April

Movement of commodities by trucks in May, 1937, was 18.96 per cent over the like month last year, according to the monthly survey of truck loadings compiled by the American Trucking Associations, Inc.

The May figure, however, represents a decrease of 3.21 per cent from April, 1937.

Rail Employment Up in April

ICC Bureau of Statistics reported that the 148 Class I railroads had during April 1,131,030 employes who received aggregate compensation of $163,953,072.

These figures compare with 1,049,723 employes in April, 1936, who received $148,993,648 and 1,101,003 workers in March this year who received $157,393,896.

Farmers' Debts Reduced in May

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The resettlement administration said today debts of 2499 farmers had been reduced $2,322,721 during May by voluntary adjustment committees of the agency.

Local governments received $99,640 in delinquent taxes as a result.

American Can

American Can Company declared regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the common, payable August 16 to stock of record July 26.

Concealed Business Motive

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

New York, June 30—Beneath the surface [illegible] current labor warfare in the independent steel [illegible] under business [illegible] be operating. When Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation [illegible] a [illegible] smaller competitors [illegible] making a peace [illegible] with the [illegible] John L. Lewis' CIO [illegible] new [illegible] ed [illegible].

The [illegible] American Steel [illegible] a career.

Aggressive and ambitious management in such companies as National, Republic, Inland, Youngstown and Bethlehem wanted to remain free, ever to fight for a larger slice of the pie, consisting of the American steel market.

They leaned to the view that over the long pull, none except big steel could benefit from freezing the "status quo." Whether big steel itself could is a moot question. Some of the minority stockholders dissenting from the concept of cartelization, or dividing up the market by agreement, have always contended that the greatest progress for big steel lay in improving operating efficiency, further reducing the number of man-hours required to produce a given quota of steel. These dissenters have felt that there is a virgin field for profits in getting down the cost of steel production.

At any rate, smaller and more mobile competitors have achieved considerable relative progress in recent years, especially during the depression. Some had the advantage of strategic location, proximity to the important steel consuming market centering around Detroit.

Also the independents were venturesome in experimenting with lighter and less expensive plants and with technological improvements. One of the independent competitors in particular has gained the reputation of a price cutter as it went out ruthlessly to get business, bowing to no traditions, yet continuing to earn a profit for shareholders and to pay workers liberally.

In the background of the steel strikes lurks wonder [illegible] by the independents as to whether big steel in securing an "in" with the Industrial Union has won a "moral equivalent" of the Gary dinners which had been held in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Leaning slightly in the direction of the Cartel idea of orderly markets, the late Judge Elbert H. Gary many years ago [illegible] heads of competing companies to meet with him [illegible] problems [illegible] industry. [illegible] were [illegible] when the [illegible] of Justice ruled that [illegible] a violation of the [illegible] of the anti-trust laws.

Now [illegible] CIO [illegible] steel [illegible] Lewis might [illegible] from cut throat [illegible] with which the Gary dinners were once concerned, according to popular opinion.

Another [illegible] in the history of steel to [illegible] is the attitude of certain hard-boiled anti-union customers of big steel since Mr. Taylor had a love feast with Mr. Lewis. The record is, of course, devoid of clear-cut evidence of collusion or boycott yet it is reported in quarters likely to be well informed that a few of the big customers will be more inclined to spread their business around in the future.

• • •

Thus, with American business at the cross roads, the steel industry divided among itself, symbolizes the new and contradictory forces at work. Perhaps it will take the perspective of history to determine whether Mr. Taylor will have been proved more statesmanlike than Tom M. Girdler, of Republic.

SUNDAY PUP CLASS IN NINTH

By SAM COHEN

BEST BET—Deputy Garry; Ninth

Bud Sunday's Deputy Garry is running right in his own class in tonight's ninth race futurity and figures the best bet on tonight's 10-race card at Wonderland Park.

Once again Racing Secretary Tom Keady has a "Hot Box" special with the outstanding greyhounds in the eighth race feature. Miss Lucky R. gets nod off her last race but if the little flier does not get the break at the first turn, Court Jester can take all.

FIRST RACE—5-16 MILE
ENCHANTED WELL, FREDA'S PLAY, MIDNITE JUNE

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
8	Enchanted Well, Dennis Leahy	52	7-2
5	Freda's Play, John Allen	58	15-1
7	Midnite June, H. Alderson	49	4-1
6	Golden Fashion, Benny Frisch	63	5-1
4	Duke Jordan, Sid Manor	69	6-1
2	Mannerism, Dan Cahill	54	6-1
3	Sally Sea, John Keenan	54	8-1
1	Jack Ketch, B. Randle	60	14-1

ENCHANTED WELL has enough late foot to beat these routers in the stretch run. FREDA'S PLAY figures to be close. MIDNITE JUNE, with a top effort, might be hard to beat.

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY
SMOKY BREEZE, DRIFTING FRIEND, GLENPOOL

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
7	Smoky Breeze, G. Lippold, Jr.	68½	3-1
1	Drifting Friend, F. Jones	76	3-2
2	Glenpool, H. Highhouse	65	6-1
4	Dragline, John Peck	70	9-2
5	Alva Lee, W. Worthington	55	8-1
3	Bobette, Lewis Randall	55	5-1
8	Mister Luck, H. Alderson	61	10-1
6	Business Woman, Dan Oswald	57	10-1

SMOKY BREEZE is down where he should breeze home on top. DRIFTING FRIEND, with a little racing luck, should be the main contention. GLENPOOL might last for the short end.

THIRD RACE—5-16 MILE
MIDNIGHT JUDY, BALD HILL, JUST BATTLE BLAZE

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
2	Midnight Judy, John Allen	53	7-2
1	Bald Hill, Benny Frisch	56	6-1
7	Just Battle Blaze, Homer Buill	57	9-2
8	Distant R., Cherry Val. Ken.	69	5-1
4	Court Reporter, F. Jones	62	8-1
3	Silver Tint, Gus Males	60	8-1
6	Ben Machree, Sid Manor	58	5-1
5	Sergeant Al, C. Gasparello	58	10-1

MIDNIGHT JUDY showed enough running ability in her last to get the call here. BALD HILL has run with better and looks ready. JUST BATTLE BLAZE might blaze the trail for the pack.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY—NON-WINNERS
BIPPY, MOURA BYE, YOUNG

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
8	Bippy, Freda Koontz	59	5-2
4	Moura Bye, Jess Bingham	60	9-2
5	Young Gangster, C. Gasparello	62	7-2
1	White Tempest, Arch DeGeer	66	5-1
3	Jake's Pistol, Homer Buill	63½	6-1
7	Weatherhead, Arch DeBeer	66	7-1
2	Sunny Sammye, John Allen	53	10-1
6	Buster Omen, W. Worthington	62	12-1

BIPPY looks like the winner of this maiden lot. MOURA BYE has shown plenty of speed with an enviable schooling chart. YOUNG GANGSTER should be in this.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE
UPTOWN LASS, GARRY BRIDGE, BEN LIGHTNING

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
7	Uptown Lass, Jess Bingham	65	4-1
8	Garry Bridge, Bud Sunday	61	9-2
4	Ben Lightning, C. Gasparello	61	7-1
2	Strawberry, J. Miles	57	5-2
1	Red Ripple, H. Highhouse	54	7-2
3	Chichibu, Arch DeGeer	65	5-1
8	Reda, H. Alderson	52	10-1
5	Fluffy, Freda Koontz	46	8-1

UPTOWN LASS will have to step her best to beat this bunch of youngsters. GARRY BRIDGE has a world of speed in spite of his wide racing. BEN LIGHTNING may do some cheating on yardage if he gets the rail.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY
FIDDLE STICKS, PERFECT HARMONY, MELODRAMA

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
4	Fiddle Sticks, Sid Manor	71	5-1
8	Perfect Harmony, Den's Allen	54	9-2
6	Melodrama, Freda Koontz	57	6-1
1	Breezing Bud, H. Alderson	61	5-1
5	Prophet, J. Miles	65	4-1
3	Tis a Gangster, Homer Buill	69	7-2
2	Andy's Court, Dan Oswald	71	7-1
7	Fancy Dictator, Gus Males	63	11-1

FIDDLE STICKS, being a fast breaker with plenty of early lick, may beat this box of speedsters to the turn and last for a win. PERFECT HARMONY figures to be the tough customer. MELODRAMA should have enough left for the show end.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
COMMANDING GEN, WHITIE MALONE, IVAN LINOW

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
2	Command'g Gen, Mrs. Failing	57	7-2
5	Whitie Malone, B. Randle	68	4-1
1	Ivan Linow, Homer Buill	63	4-1
6	Go Further, Jess Bingham	69	5-1
3	Golden Vixen, C. Gasparello	54	4-1
8	Goodie Goodie Boy, S. Manor	70	7-2
7	Venue D., H. Alderson	70	7-1
4	Red Raider, Cherry Val. Ken.	63	8-1

COMMANDING GEN is worth stringing along with, as she is about to wake up and pay off to all her admirers. WHITIE MALONE is another sleeper that rates well up. IVAN LINOW shouldn't miss out on getting the short end.

EIGHTH RACE—5-16 MILE
MISS LUCKY R., COURT JESTER, EXTRA

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
5	Miss Lucky R., Cherry V. Ken.	61	5-2
4	Court Jester, Dow Kennels	67	5-2
3	Extra, Freda Koontz	54	9-2
1	Nigger Haft, John Peck	71	7-1
2	Bl Deemaid, H. Franklin	55	4-1
8	Court Critic, Art Wilson	60	6-1
7	Butch's Thumb, Dennis Allen	66	5-1
6	Last Straw, J. Miles	68	10-1

MISS LUCKY R. is really in a hot box contest but with a good break should repeat her last victory. COURT JESTER will be the main threat. EXTRA may pull a surprise and finish in the money.

NINTH RACE—FUTURITY
DEPUTY GARRY, VILLAGE LASS, SNOW SHOES

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
8	Deputy Sheriff, Bud Sunday	63	9-2
3	Village Lass, Dow Kennels	53½	6-1
5	Snow Shoes, Benny Frisch	53½	7-2
2	Thady Quill, D. Callaghan	61	7-2
7	Reckless Tom, Homer Buil	73	5-1
6	Guess What, J. Miles	60	7-2
1	Big Friend, F. Jones	72	6-1
4	Touchdown, Dennis Allen	63	9-1

DEPUTY GARRY has been lowered to such a degree that he should be the top dog. VILLAGE LASS has been trying to win one and will be very close. SNOW SHOES from the outside could take it all.

CASEY TRIUMPHS AS GEORGE IS HURT

BITTER MAT DUEL AT FENWAY

By JACK CONWAY

Steve Casey, Irish heavyweight, displayed amazing speed and wrestling form as he pinned Ed Don George, former world champion, in 1:28.36 before 8000 persons at a Crosscup-Pischon Post show at Fenway Park.

Steve and Don furnished one of the fastest and best mat contests ever witnessed in this city.

A break gave Casey the victory. George had been using flying leg scissors holds. He missed with one of these holds and crashed to the canvas, where he hurt his head.

Casey then opened up and scored with an arm lock and a Killarney flip for the winning toss.

Band concerts, the firing of salutes by a battery of cannon, weight throwing contests and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by Billy Payne added color to the show.

ON FEET AT HOUR MARK

Casey and George started wrestling at a slow, cautious pace. The big fellows each clamped on arm locks, and battled around in the centre of the ring for a minute. It was another four minutes before Don and Steve crashed to the canvas.

George used a body hold to punish Casey. The latter finally got clear of this hold, and came back with punishing arm locks.

Casey and George looked like perfect athletes as they battled for supremacy. George weighed 228 pounds to Casey's 226.

At the 50-minute mark George surprised Casey by a sudden attack, lifted Steve in the air and crashed him to the canvas. Steve wiggled clear of Don as the latter pounced on him.

Both men were on their feet at the hour mark. Don tried to trip Steve, but the latter pulled away quickly. Casey then dropped Don with an arm lock.

Casey braced his legs against George's back, and applied pressure. Don finally got outside of the ropes, and Referee Smith ordered them back to the center of the ring.

Don and Steve continued their maddening pace. Casey relied chiefly upon arm and body holds, while George used leg and body holds.

Casey braced his legs against George's head and body, and then shifted to arm locks. He wore Don down by this bruising attack. Ed, however, broke from Casey's hold at the 1h. 15m. mark.

George later applied three headlocks.

DANNO TRIUMPHANT

George dropped Casey with a flying leg scissors, and Steve was fortunate to avoid being pinned.

George tried another flying leg scissors, missed and crashed on his own head. Don was in great pain, and Casey smashed him to the convas a couple of times, finally pinning him with an arm lock and Killarney Flip in 1h. 28m. 36s.

Dazzler George Clark used his famous flying horse to pin Billy Bartush in 11 minutes 34 seconds.

Dan O'Mahony flashed brilliantly as he pinned Rube Wright in 16 minutes 20 seconds with his "Irish Whip." It was a hard, rough match with both men stepping along at a terrific clip.

Hans Bauer defeated Harry Lewis in 6 minutes with an upright toe hold.

Max Goldberg won over Andy Brown in 7 minutes 59 seconds with a flying tackle and top body press.

Roy Dunn defeated Manuel Cortes in 11 minutes 20 seconds with a head scissors and double wrist lock.

Jim Wright upset Tom Hanley in 11 minutes 13 1-3 seconds with a top body press.

Farmer Westenberg won from Jack Marshall in 15m. 6s. with a turn over body scissors.

Tor Johnson and Wee Willie Davis gave one of the roughest exhibitions of wrestling witnessed in Boston this year. The giants punched and kicked and occasionally forgot themselves enough to do a little wrestling.

Davis was disqualified for illegal tactics after 8m. 56s. of warfare. Davis and Johnson refused to recognize the termination of the bout and engaged in several additional battles much to the glee of the crowd.

The Scotch band received the duke over the Irish band. Commander George Wallace accepted a trophy presented to the Scotch band.

Post Position Favors Multnomah Robin

By MAT KEENEY

MULTNOMAH ROBIN IN TENTH

Taunton, June 30—Bristol County Kennel Club inaugurates its 40-night season tonight with a three-eighths-mile inaugural handicap, the first long-distance race of the year at this track.

While I expect to see Major James score here I do not rate him the best bet of the night. In fact there are one or two other spots which seem much better from a wagering standpoint.

In my opinion the best bet on the card is Multnomah Robin in the tenth race. This one is dropping in class and in addition breaks from the inside box. The Wohlauf pup likes to run on the rail and has plenty of early foot. He should be a good winner.

FIRST RACE—FUTURITY
OHIO GLEE, GANG LORD, DAFFY HARE

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
3	Ohio Glee, J. Prevatt	68	3-2
1	Gang Lord, 'Gansett Ken.	66	4-1
2	Daffy Hare, F. Spencer	55	6-1
5	Orenti, W. Bryant	62	6-1
7	London Market, Athanasaw	70½	7-1
6	Sonova Princess, C. Burnett	56	8-1
4	Pilot's Call, D. Sullivan	60	10-1
8	Primax, F. Palermo	57	12-1

OHIO GLEE was only spoofing his last out. This is another night. GANG LORD should be close in this field. DAFFY HARE is almost a certainty to be in the money.

SECOND RACE—5-16 MILE
BRINDLE BRIGHT, ROSANNA, BILLIE CHARM

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
8	Brindle Bright, T. Baird	67	7-2
1	Rosanna, F. Palermo	48	4-1
4	Billie Charm, K. Stephenson	57	4-1
3	Cap Harr, F. Spencer	58	6-1
5	M'hful Leader, Cedar Pt. Ken.	69	6-1
7	Sonova Horsham, C. Burnett	58	6-1
2	Prancing Step, D. Sullivan	61½	8-1
6	Jib Top Sail, C. Looney	64	10-1

BRINDLE BRIGHT has been racing with better than these and positively figures here. ROSANNA needs rom to be close. BILLIE CHARM should be in the monel.

THIRD RACE—FUTURITY
BLUE GALE, HARRY'S OFFICER, BOY ED

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
3	Blue Gale, O. Beckner	63½	4-1
8	Harry's Officer, Premier Ken.	58	4-1
4	Boy-Ed, H. Spencer	62	6-1
6	Glittering Band, Nar. Ken.	64	5-1
1	At Flifton, S. Breeze Ken.	63	8-1
7	Red Ripple II, J. Boone	59	8-1
4	King Tigerilla, C. Shivley	64	10-1
2	Sunoco, F. Falk	66	10-1

BLUE GALE is nicely spotted here and, being in an inside box, figures to score. HARRY'S OFFICER, if he gets to the rail, will be the chief contender. BOY-ED is entitled to consideration off his best races.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY
DUKE, NIGHT CALL, GOLDEN RAPTURE

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
2	Duke, C. Looney	63	3-1
4	Night Call, W. Bryant	62	7-2
8	Golden Rapture, L. Sut'worth	68	5-1
7	Main Issue, W. Prevatt	65	6-1
5	Morning Dew, P. Boone	54	6-1
1	Big Better, T. Baird	62	8-1
3	Hurrywood, F. Palermo	59	10-1
6	Any Distance, J. Prevatt	64	10-1

DUKE is much better than he showed in his last. If right he should score handily here. NIGHT CALL, lowering the scale, should prove the contention. GOLDEN RAPTURE, off its last, rates a portion of the purse money.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE
BRIGHT BLACK, SCHOOL GOER, NOAH COUNT

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
1	Bright Black, P. Boone	66	3-1
7	School Goer, J. Highhouse	63½	4-1
3	Noah Count, J. Prevatt	70	5-1
4	Mining Town, O. Dahlberg	75	6-1
8	Scissoir, G. Rogers	65	6-1
5	Fell's Lad, Jess Williams	64	6-1
2	Gracie Allen, F. Conway	57½	8-1
6	Marfak, F. Stutz	67	10-1

BRIGHT BLACK likes this distance and seems much the best. SCHOOL GOER has always been able to race close up with this sort. NOAH COUNT'S late foot and nice posting make it seem a money possibility.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY
BESSEY'S DAUGHTER, LESTERLITE, FLINT LADDIE

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
1	Bessey's Daughter, F. Palermo	58	7-2
8	Lesterlite, J. Boone	59	7-2
6	Flint Laddie, H. Bagwell	68	4-1
3	Yvonne Laddie, C. Looney	48	8-1
7	Kimo, J. Highhouse	56	8-1
5	Armco Steel, C. Burnett	58½	8-1
4	Jack London, J. Ayotte	65	10-1
2	Young Porthos, 'Gansett Ken.	66	10-1

BESSEY'S DAUGHTER'S last was a disappointing effort, but this is another night and the result should be different. LESTERLITE surprised last out, and a repetition makes it a dangerous dog. FLINT LADDIE improving, rates a money chance.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
BRIGHT BALLAD, TOWN TAVERN, JOE MICAWBER

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
2	Bright Ballad, T. Baird	61	3-1
1	Town Tavern, O. Wohlauf	58	3-1
5	Joe Micawber, J. Williams	59	4-1
4	Kitty Flint, H. Bagwell	52	7-1
8	Black Gander, S. Breeze Ken.	54	8-1
6	Side Wheeler, C. Shively	61	8-1
7	Rio Breeze, O. Beckner	66½	10-1
3	Rio Grand, Jess Williams	69	10-1

BRIGHT BALLAD is entitled to the call here off its record and in view of the favorable posting. The added distance should be to TOWN TAVERN'S liking, and he should be close. JOE MICAWBER'S last was a splendid effort, anr he should be in the money.

EIGHTH RACE—FUTURITY
LADY BLONDELL, MR. TICKLER, SLIVER SLIM

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
5	Lady Blondell, S. Chambers	60	2-1
7	Mr. Tickler, 'Gansett Ken.	60	4-1
2	Sliver Slim, H. Bryant	65	5-1
6	Carl Ed, F. Athanasaw	64	6-1
8	Jersey Jim, J. Ayotte	64	6-1
1	Mike Slats, J. Boone	62	8-1
4	Little Doggie, J. Williams	65	10-1
3	Amy May, P. Boone	49	15-1

LADY BLONDELL possesses the class in this field and must be accorded the edge. MR. TICKLER has forced better dogs than these and should be close. SLIVER SLIM is entitled to consideration through his powerful finishes.

NINTH RACE—3-8 MILE
MAJOR JAMESTOWN, MAJOR, LUCILLE LARRY

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
6	Major Jamestown, Wohlauf	69	8-5
5	Major, P. Boone	65	5-1
3	Lucille Larry, S. Breeze Ken.	50½	5-1
2	Buddy J., T. Baird	61	8-1
8	Blue Cyclone, W. Prevatt	51	8-1
7	Cameron Countess, Bryant	51	8-1
4	Fell's Miss, E. Rhine	58½	10-1
1	Masked Traffic, O. Dahlberg	74	10-1

The extra distance in this race, the inaugural Handicap, gives MAJOR JAMESTOWN the edge here though MAJOR will be close when they near the last line. LUCILLE LARRY'S late speed makes her a serious contender.

TENTH RACE—FUTURITY
MULTNOMAH ROBIN, TRAFFIC ESCORT, STORMY BREEZE

PP.	Name, Owner	Wt.	P.Odds
1	Multnomah Robin, Wohlauf	66	3-1
2	Traffic Escort, M. Sparks	72½	9-2
6	Stormy Breeze, S. Breeze K.	73	6-1
3	Another Ben, F. Stutz	58¼	8-1
4	Ines, P. Boone	56	6-1
7	Our Fez, H. Bagwell	61	7-1
8	Royal Earl, F. Falk	67½	10-1
5	Shy Major, J. Williams	70	10-1

MULTNOMAH ROBIN descends the scale ladder, and from this box seems a veritable lie. TRAFFIC ESCORT won its last and figures to be second here. STORMY BREEZE can better its last and should be in the money.

James W. McQuiston presented the trophy to the kennel of the winning dog, and the crowd placed close to $100,000 through the mutuel plant.

It was a hard night on favorites. These well liked greyhounds fought losing battles on the stretch throughout the program.

The daily double paid $66.40 when Black Moment took the first half and Beaverstein coupled in the second. It was Black Moment's first win of the meeting. Beaverstein scored by three lengths over the favored Columbia River at a price of $15.80.

An inaugural trophy race from the three-eights box will feature the opening of the 40-day Bristol County Kennel Club meeting here tonight.

Even Little Children!

MASS EXECUTIONS are becoming so common in SOVIET RUSSIA that they are no longer first page news.

Sudden death for merely THINKING INDEPENDENTLY or making a mistake in running a machine has become part of the daily routine of these unfortunate Russians who have passed from the Romanoff hangman to the Stalin shooting-squad.

According to an uncensored despatch in the New York Times, children are being taught to SPY ON THEIR ELDERS.

The formula taught these children is:

"THERE ARE NO FRIENDS IN RUSSIA."

The horrifying possibility of disgruntled children "framing" their parents for Stalin's murder machine is now presented to the gaze of the civilized world.

This would have caused a shudder even in the hard-boiled spine of Robespierre, the "green-eyed monster" of the French Revolution.

All that the Hearst papers have said for years about the crimes of the rulers of Soviet Russia against the principles of common decency and humanity are being confirmed today not only by correspondents in Moscow hitherto friendly to the Soviets, but by the DAILY ACTS, now frankly and cynically avowed, of the STALIN TERROR ITSELF.

Bullet Ends Probation

THERE is a lesson for many judges in the death of 20-year-old Uno P. Koppana of Gloucester, shot because he failed to stop at a Beverly patrolman's command.

Here was a boy with a police record dating from 1929. Frequently before the courts on charges ranging from public disturbance to breaking and entering, he always managed to go free.

Even a grand jury indictment and a subsequent conviction failed to put him behind bars. On January 2, 1936, his two-year sentence to Concord Reformatory was suspended and he received the probation that ends in his death.

Had he gone to the reformatory, he would today be alive and paying his debt to society, not going to the cemetery at an age too youthful to cast a vote.

It is impossible to do anything for Koppana now. But his unhappy fate ought to cause authorities to think twice before turning loose young men who come before them repeatedly.

As long as courts emulate swinging doors, through which offenders pass from one crime to another, there are bound to be more Koppanas and more untimely deaths.

We All Wish Them Well

THE eyes of the nation turn today to Little Christ Church in Wilmington, Del.

There, amid traditional satin and flowers, America's Number One nuptial ceremony is solemnized.

And Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President, takes as his bride Miss Ethel duPont, daughter of one of the country's foremost industrial families.

No conflicting theories of government on this occasion. No contradicting economic views. All is as harmonious as the strains of the Lohengrin "Processional." For as always the real Chief Executive is a chubby little fellow called Cupid.

The sincere good wishes of all Americans go to Franklin and Ethel on this their happiest day. May theirs be the perfect union of love and devotion.

Labor Loses a Leader

IN the passing of Daniel J. McDonald, labor and civic leader, Boston loses an outstanding citizen.

Oldest officer in American labor circles, Mr. McDonald served for nearly four decades as secretary-treasurer of the Allied Printing Trades Council and for 25 years as delegate to the State branch of the American Federation of Labor.

He will be remembered also for his activity in government, both as City Council member and president, and for his three terms in the State Legislature.

A conscientious man, Mr. McDonald often said:

"I have always made it my business to be on the square with employers and the council and with everyone I deal with."

We agree and we join with the thousands that knew him in wishing that he might have been spared. The troubled industrial world of today can ill afford to lose men of his sincerity.

Let's Be More Careful

KINDLY Nature, extravagant ever in her creation of beauty, undoubtedly intended that Cape Cod should be the flower garden of America. But thoughtless motorists persist in making it a dumping ground.

A journey along the Cape's principal thoroughfares reveals an unsightly collection of discarded bottles, lunch-boxes, papers and practically everything for which people have no further use.

The custom is to park anywhere, to eat a hasty meal, then to drive away, leaving a ruined roadside for other motorists to gaze upon.

We are sure all people who read this will be more careful in the future, especially during the approaching July Fourth holidays.

Three Children Slain!

THE brutal murder of two little Dorchester sisters and their chum in an Inglewood, Cal., ravine shocks the country, Massachusetts especially.

How this supposedly civilized world can harbor such brutes as the one that will mistreat and slay helpless children defies explanation.

But the world does harbor them, as numerous horrible crimes prove.

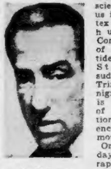
Our sympathy extends across the continent to the saddened parents of Madeline and Melba Everett and Jeanette Stephens.

We pray, as does everybody, that the fiend who lured them from their play and killed them will be caught and given the punishment he so richly deserves.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 30—Trinity Church and its side yard of crumbling graves is the calm which the scientists tell us is the vortex of every hurricane. Coming out of the rip tide of Wall Street so suddenly into Trinity's benign serenity is something of an emotional experience. It has moved poets. On pleasant days stenographers and clerks at noon-day stroll among the ancient tombstones and often there is a spread of napkins for a luncheon on the cold slabs marking the crypts of illustrious dead. One of the famous monuments is that of Alexander Hamilton.



O. O. McIntyre

At 12 m. when Wall and Broad streets erupt their hordes, the notes from the great Trinity organ come trembling down the nave and float out on the tumbling roar of traffic. It is surprising the number of brokers attending the mid-day services. Almost always it is packed.

But it's at night when the lower tip of the island is desolated that Trinity is most impressive. Especially when a thin scimiter of a moon hangs in a clear sky and the ancient cross points so majestically upward at the very gates of Mammon.

In my Park Row days Broad street and its then busy curb market always had its noon-day religious services. They were conducted by an apple-cheeked priest known to the quarter as the Bishop of Wall Street. He talked of spiritual things for a half hour and never failed to draw an earnest, attentive crowd. He passed on several years ago and so far no one has supplanted him.

It is little known that disciples of the Ticker and Tape are frequently regular church goers and there is scarcely a big brokerage house without its quota of Bible students. Indeed, a religious statistical survey in New York a few years ago revealed that among the most ardent religionists were the theater folk of Broadway and the bankers and brokers downtown.

J. P. Morgan has always been especially active in community church affairs, as was his father. George F. Baker attended services regularly. So did the elder Stillman and scores of others whose names loomed large in finance.

Big department stores are going to town in grandeur, speed and comfort with escalators. One no longer rides but fairly floats. The new escalator has a way of wafting the customer upward with the giddy thrill of an aeroplane takeoff. They are modernistic, glittering and magnificent. In the stores clerks call them "escalallas"—folk who come in solely to enjoy the upward scoot.

The testimonial dinner racket has been striking snags recently and several on the fire have been "postponed," which means they have been called off. One of the testimony dinner outfits operates from an opulent set of offices in one of the skyscraper spires. Their stunt is to secure the sponsorship of a few choice names, the consent of the celebrity honor guest, and then put on a high pressure sales campaign.

If the promoters can put the dinner over in a big way they can clear several thousands. But those who attend such affairs have grown skittish. They have got to know that such dinners are spontaneously inspired by friends and not high pressure boys.

Anna Held's daughter, known as Anna Held, Jr., has retired from her experiments in conducting restaurants. Her first place was opened on the Bronx Parkway with a dining verandah overlooking an artificial lake aswim with ducks. Later she opened a winter cafe on upper Lexington avenue.

She did fairly well in both spots, but her great occupational love is for gardening and she is now raising peonies on a refurbished estate near Quincy, Virginia.

During her leisure hours she fishes with her husband, J. Dodd Martenson, a golf pro. Anna Held, Jr., while a bit plumper than her celebrated mother, has the same rolling eyes which the original Anna Held in her most famous song "could not make behave."

Two of the largest hotels recently had stamped on their silverware, "Stolen From Blank Hotel," in the effort to frustrate the souvenir hunters. Instead, it increased the pilfering. House detectives say such purloiners do not regard this sort of thefting as a moral issue any more than do some men income tax evasion.

I have heard of an otherwise respectable gentleman who has a complete dinner service for six pillaged from hotels all over the world.

Indeed, I've hooked a few towels and ash trays here and there myself.

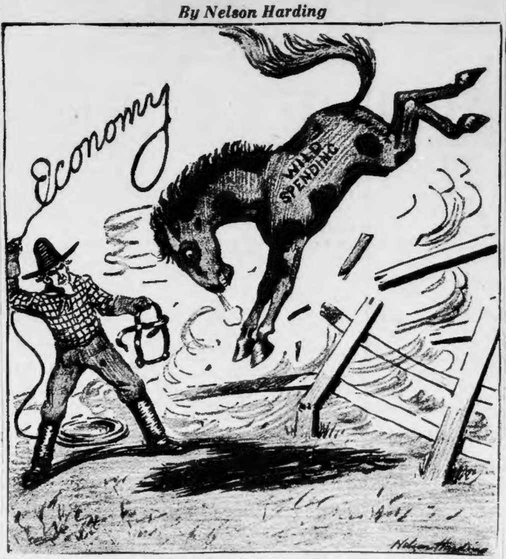
Can It Be Tamed?

By Nelson Harding



Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"If you were a man, how would you treat women?"

They staged a public debate in Dewitt, Illinois, the other night and asked me, too late, to speak on that half of the subject. But was there ever a female who could resist the makings of such a nice little mass murder? Certainly not this one! So here we come, even though the party's over.

Elsie Robinson

"How would I treat women if I were a man?"

Really want to know? Prepared to take it? Then here goes—

I'D TREAT THEM WITH GOBS OF SUSPICION AND A COMPLETE ARMORY OF SELF-PROTECTION.

Yes, I know that's a shocker. But someone must start being shocking if we are to clean up this colossal mass of stupid tradition which now separates the sexes.

So I repeat, if I were a man, I'd treat women with suspicion and duck when I saw them coming!

Why so? Don't I believe in my sisters? Aren't women as fine as men? I DO AND THEY ARE. But they are also so chockful of tommyrot notions about themselves and their sex that they are almost as tough to team with as their cave-dwelling great grandmas.

SHE'D FACE FACTS

Therefore, if I were a man, dealing with women, I'd kick chivalry out of the window and get right down to brass tacks. First off, no matter how much it hurt my masculine ego or her feminine one, I'd face the fact that WOMAN IS NEITHER DIFFERENT FROM NOR SUPERIOR TO MAN.

Even her physical dissimilarity is no longer held to be a handicap to women. The modern girl athlete has long since knocked the Clinging Vine theory into a cocked hat.

Mentally and morally, woman is on a par with man. Which doesn't pin many medals on either party! Neither sex is braver, brighter or better than the other. Neither has a monopoly on any virtue, any vice. In short, there is no "feminine nature" or "masculine nature."

There is only HUMAN NATURE, which is a heterogeneous mass of what-have-yous.

Nor has either sex a brain-bulge on the other. Due to long centuries of strictly domestic duties and environment, woman's mental horizon has remained more limited than man's, but it does not follow that her mental capacity is less than his.

Also lacking in foundation is this idiotic conception of Woman as the Helpless, Sensitive Sex. For, when she wants something — and when doesn't she! —the frailest little featherweight femme can become just about as helpless as a herd of elephants, and as ruthless in her technique.

FULL EQUALITY

And so, if I were a man, I'd remember all this and act accordingly. I'd say to Women at large:

"Listen, girls, you've asked for equality—well, here it is. You said you wanted to be treated regular—all right, you'll have your wish. Henceforth, I'm going to do my darndest to treat you all like regular guys.

"Meaning what? Meaning that I'll cut out my suspicions, if you'll cut out yours. I'll drop my shield, if you'll shelve yours. We'll be equals—really equals—if you'll promise to make it a 50-50 break. But there must be no exceptions . . . no special privileges . . . no crying off when things get tough, because you are a woman!

"Liberty? Yes! As much as any man, with the same faith that you'll use it sanely as a decent man would do. But with that liberty you'll have the same responsibility which a man must bear—the same self sacrifice. And the same penalty to be faced if it's abused."

That, if I were a man, is the bargain I'd make with women. Would the Sisterhood like it, accept it? I WONDER! Suppose YOU tell me YOUR bet. Yes? Fine! I'll be seeing you!

Marry —Go— Round

By Helen Rowland

Better an evening at home with a lively book than an hour and champagne with a deadly bore.

There are lots of things a pretty girl can do to wreck her looks and kill her charms besides skinning her hair back of her ears and wearing a dunce-cap for a hat—but none funnier or more effective.

To be too attractive makes a girl talked about. But if she can just get herself TALKED about, she doesn't need to be attractive. The men will come around anyway.

In her teens, a woman looks forward to love; in her twenties, she expects it; in her thirties, she strives to inspire it and, after forty, she cynically opens her purse-strings and prepares to buy a good imitation.

The rules of the love-game were once as clear and definite as the rules of bridge. But nowadays a girl has to play it by intuition—and with her fingers crossed.

Girls still continue to read all the advice on how to choose a husband, even though the "choice" in an average woman's life is about as limited as that in a table d'hote menu.

So susceptible is the average woman, that she would stick to a perfectly useless husband forever if he would just refrain from saying, "How fat you are!" and keep on saying "How cute you are!"

In some places, a man can drink only when sitting down—in others only when standing up. But to the woman who's waiting for him to come home to dinner, it doesn't make the slightest difference whether he does it sitting down or balancing on his head.

Traffic Rule for Love: Never try to head off a man who is determined to get past you. Give him the road—and save yourself from a big jolt and a lot of dents in your vanity.

The Patent Monopoly

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Here's an odd and revealing bit of news, stored away in the newspaper dust-bin of small items.

Edwin C. Hill

After two years, the Interstate Commerce Commission rules that all steam locomotives built after September 1 must be equipped with power-operated reverse gear. All engines of more than 150,000 pounds, now in use, must also make this change. This will cost the railroads somewhere around $5,000,000.

It has been maintained that the old-fashioned "Johnson bar" had a way of whipping out of its quadrant and wrapping seven or eight feet of steel around the engineer's neck. Hence the governmental decree in engine building.

One can have no quarrel with legislation to safeguard life. To this department, the item is interesting as one more exhibit in the endless elaboration and expansion of government in its effort to govern in a machine age.

The courts are swamped with technological subtleties which no mere lawyer-judge could hope to understand. There was printed in "Harper's Magazine" a few months ago one of those "stand-out" articles, like Haldane's "Daedalus" of 13 years ago. It was called "Why Things Grow Old," and it was, in essence, a novel, plausible statement of the decadence which lies in complexity and over-specialization.

OUR ALL-SEEING EYE

Specialization in government, reaching down even to an errant engine bar, moves forward at a growing pace. Whether we like it or not, our government has become our All-Seeing Eye, and virtually nothing lies beyond its widening ambit of vision. Human beings are plastic and can take a lot of punishment. Machines are not. Their effective regimentation and control calls for precision.

And here lies a zone of increasing confusion and bewilderment—the glut of patents in the Patent Office, with 30 per cent of them involved in litigation. There is the obvious inability of non-technical courts to rule with certainty and precision in the bewildering complex of mechanics, metallurgy, physics, chemistry and bio-chemistry which our technology feeds steadily into the hopper of the law mills.

In November of last year, there was celebrated the one-hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Patent Office. The assignment of a patent monopoly by the founding fathers to the inventor was one of their most definite assertions of democracy and equality, unprecedented in the world of that day.

It nourished our inventive genius. More than 2,000,000 patents were granted in that century. The garret inventor came into his own. We built our vast machine establishment.

But, rounding this particular turn of a century, we find the garret inventor becoming as extinct as the great auk. Many of the great industrial concerns and the great utility and equipment companies are not bothering to take out patents any more. Their sustained research, which they must maintain with or without a Patent Office, impels them into deep technical complexities, each of which is a derivative or contributor to some complicated process or idea. Putting it in the Patent Office would be like cutting off your leg and sending it to the doctor.

A BETTER PROTECTION

So vast and interlocking is this new pattern of techniques, materials and energies that the great entrepreneurs of machine production have in their virtual monopoly of any main process a better protection than they could get in the courts. While the Patent Office is one of the few solvent and self-sustaining departments of government, the entire machinery of administration of patent laws is beginning to creak. Litigation is expensive and it usually drags on for years.

Our commercial genius has been quick to utilize the findings of science. The word "vitamin" leaps from the laboratory to the advertisement in a single bound. Rivals in food processing lay claim to this or that method of salvaging the vitamins. It goes to court. Probably no judge in the world could follow intelligently the opposing arguments, for the process was made possible by Einstein's variant which indicated the exact stance in the spectrum from which the safeguarding ray is launched. All that is stratosphere mathematics.

Scientists help the lawyers prepare their briefs. We all know of brilliant criminal lawyers, like the late Delphin M. Delmas, who would bone up on medicine and confound some doctor witness. But this is all too complex and too infinitely specialized. The lawyers, like the judges, have to take it all on faith and do the best they can.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

"Then I said to myself that after being in the nut house all of your life, you can't go to the chair. You might, but the chances are that you won't. They'll put me in a nut house again and then I'll be there all the rest of my life and catch up with myself in a spiritual way."

Herein Robert Irwin, who confessed in the offices of the Chicago Herald & Examiner to the triple Easter Sunday murder in a New York apartment, laid bare for the world the very heart of the crooked "reasoning" of a man plotting a murder.

Irwin visualizes murder. A voice in his brain whispers: "What about the penalty if you are caught?" Another voice—a wish-thought voice—murmurs: "You'll beat the chair. As you were once in an asylum, they'll say you are insane."

Then a third voice: "In the asylum I'll develop my spiritual nature and make my peace with God!"

And standing in back of those voices is "the INSANE ROOT that takes the reason prisoner."

The jack in the box in the international situation around Spain turns out to be IRON.

Bilbao is rich in iron mines. Both Germany and Italy need iron. So hard up is Italy for iron that park fences and grillwork are being torn up for government use. The duty has been lifted on scrap-iron from Austria.

Germany had technicians in Bilbao inspecting the iron mines. British foundries had been taking three-fourths of the iron ore product of the Basque country until the Insurgent blockade.

France, Britain, Germany and Italy, as usual, assert that "great principles" are at stake. But, as usual also, the "principles" are ONLY MASKS FOR IRON, OIL OR WORLD-TRADE.

The Demagogues' Club, composed of a number of Democratic members of the House of Representatives, recalls the simple and harmless meaning of the word "demagogue."

Demagogue, from the Greek, means literally a people-leader. In this sense, all the great statesmen and founders of religions have been demagogues. So have all the poets and novelists—for ALL that is done is done TO INFLUENCE SOME ONE SOMEWHERE. Our profoundest craving is for an audience. We all desire TO IMPRESS SOME ONE. In this respect, we are all actors.

But, like all words, "demagogue" has been corrupted in meaning—pulled down to the mental level of the mere rabble-rouser and egoistic ballyhooer.

"The first line of defense in any country is the character of the citizenship."

This sentence of Senator Borah's drives right to the heart of almost all our political and social problems.

It was CHARACTER, and not planning, that built America. The core of that pioneering character was SELF-RELIANCE.

It was STURDY, SELF-RELIANT CHARACTER of the Englishman that built the British Empire, without which her navies and her armies would have been mere cardboard.

It was the decay of the sterner virtues and the power of personal resistance in the Roman character that made Rome an easy prey to the northern barbarians.

Preserving the SELF-RELIANT strain in the American character against the encroaching parasitic isms of the old world must, today, be our FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE.

If you are thinking of going into the diplomatic service have your blood tested for "O-Type" corpuscles.

Dr. Nigaki, medical adviser to the Japanese Foreign Office, urges his government to pick only full-blooded "O-Stock" for diplomatic posts.

Men with "O-Blood" have "A gentle mien cloaking an iron will. We no longer want pale, anemic, genius-type fellows in the government," says this doctor.

The ideal Japanese diplomat, then, would of course be Joe E. Brown or Victor McLaglen.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Attorney-General Cummings, in ordering the arrest of persons who allegedly interfered with mail trucks at steel plants in Ohio cities, says it doesn't make any difference to him who the offenders are. That is absolutely right. Laws are supposed to apply equally to all citizens.

As the Attorney-General says, "obstructing the mails is an interference that cannot be tolerated for a moment." If all government agencies, federal state and local, had taken that attitude from the start of the present wave of industrial trouble, many disgraceful situations would have been avoided.

It may be, as Stuart A. Rice, chairman of the United States Central Statistical Board and vice-president of the American Association for the Advance of Science, says that "strikes prove and always have proved a change in conditions—returning prosperity." But any people as intelligent as Americans are should be able to recognize prosperity without having that knowledge beaten into them by a series of strikes.

Improvement in business and economic conditions should be an occasion for rejoicing instead of fighting.

Many mothers, and fathers, too, will agree with the decision of Mrs. Louise Thaden, winner of the 1936 Bendix trophy race and one of this nation's most famous women fliers, that "a family is a lot more important than a so-called career." She has announced she is giving up aviation to devote herself to her two children who are six and four years old, respectively.

They need her much more than aviation does. There is nothing that women can do to advance aviation that men can't do. But neither men nor hired women can take the place of a mother in bringing up her own children.

There is no greater career than motherhood.

"You can have a career," reasons Mrs. Thaden, "but what have you got when you get through?"

The answer so far as she is concerned appears to be "nothing." That is not so poetic but it reminds one of the philosophy of Omar Khayyam in these lines from the Rubaiyat:

"When you and I behind the veil are past,
"Oh, but the long, long while
the world shall last,
"Which of our coming and departure heeds
"As the sea's self should heed
a pebble-cast."

There are many examples to back up the assertion of the Wyoming University psychologist that school dunces often become business successes.

Time after time a "dull" student who has barely managed to skin through college has made a mark in the world, while honor students of his class have not been heard of again.

Scientists say the skull of an Indian, who lived more than 300 years ago, recently found in Virginia far exceeds in brain capacity any skull heretofore measured.

That does not necessarily mean this Indian was the brainiest man, as we understand the term, who ever lived.

Mental powers are not measured solely by the brain capacity of a skull.

We agree and we join with the thousands that knew him in wishing that he might have been spared. The troubled industrial world of today can ill afford to lose men of his sincerity.

Let's Be More Careful

KINDLY Nature, extravagant ever in her creation of beauty, undoubtedly intended that Cape Cod should be the flower garden of America. But thoughtless motorists persist in making it a dumping ground.

A journey along the Cape's principal thoroughfares reveals an unsightly collection of discarded bottles, lunch-boxes, papers and practically everything for which people have no further use.

The custom is to park anywhere, to eat a hasty meal, then to drive away, leaving a ruined roadside for other motorists to gaze upon.

We are sure all people who read this will be more careful in the future, especially during the approaching July Fourth holidays.

Three Children Slain!

THE brutal murder of two little Dorchester sisters and their chum in an Inglewood, Cal., ravine shocks the country, Massachusetts especially.

How this supposedly civilized world can harbor such brutes as the one that will mistreat and slay helpless children defies explanation.

But the world does harbor them, as numerous horrible crimes prove.

Our sympathy extends across the continent to the saddened parents of Madeline and Melba Everett and Jeanette Stephens.

We pray, as does everybody, that the fiend who lured them from their play and killed them will be caught and given the punishment he so richly deserves.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 30—Trinity Church and its side yard of crumbling graves is the calm which the scientists tell us is the vortex of every hurricane. Coming out of the rip tide of Wall Street so suddenly into Trinity's benign serenity is something of an emotional experience. It has moved poets. On pleasant days stenographers and clerks at noon-day stroll among the ancient tombstones and often there is a spread of napkins for a luncheon on the cold slabs marking the crypts of illustrious dead. One of the famous monuments is that of Alexander Hamilton.

O. O. McIntyre

At 12 m. when Wall and Broad streets erupt their hordes, the notes from the great Trinity organ come trembling down the nave and float out on the tumbling roar of traffic. It is surprising the number of brokers attending the mid-day services. Almost always it is packed.

But it's at night when the lower tip of the island is desolated that Trinity is most impressive. Especially when a thin scimiter of a moon hangs in a clear sky and the ancient cross points so majestically upward at the very gates of Mammon.

In my Park Row days Broad street and its then busy curb market always had its noon-day religious services. They were conducted by an apple-cheeked priest known to the quarter as the Bishop of Wall Street. He talked of spiritual things for a half hour and never failed to draw an earnest, attentive crowd. He passed on several years ago and so far no one has supplanted him.

It is little known that disciples of the Ticker and Tape are frequently regular church goers and there is scarcely a big brokerage house without its quota of Bible students. Indeed, a religious statistical survey in New York a few years ago revealed that among the most ardent religionists were the theater folk of Broadway and the bankers and brokers downtown.

J. P. Morgan has always been especially active in community church affairs, as was his father. George F. Baker attended services regularly. So did the elder Stillman and scores of others whose names loomed large in finance.

Big department stores are going to town in grandeur, speed and comfort with escalators. One no longer rides but fairly floats. The new escalator has a way of wafting the customer upward with the giddy thrill of an aeroplane takeoff. They are modernistic, glittering and magnificent. In the stores clerks call them "escalallas"—folk who come in solely to enjoy the upward scoot.

The testimonial dinner racket has been striking snags recently and several on the fire have been "postponed," which means they have been called off. One of the testimony dinner outfits operates from an opulent set of offices in one of the skyscraper spires. Their stunt is to secure the sponsorship of a few choice names, the consent of the celebrity honor guest, and then put on a high pressure sales campaign.

If the promoters can put the dinner over in a big way they can clear several thousands. But those who attend such affairs have grown skittish. They have got to know that such dinners are spontaneously inspired by friends and not high pressure boys.

Anna Held's daughter, known as Anna Held, Jr., has retired from her experiments in conducting restaurants. Her first place was opened on the Bronx Parkway with a dining verandah overlooking an artificial lake aswim with ducks. Later she opened a winter cafe on upper Lexington avenue.

She did fairly well in both spots, but her great occupational love is for gardening and she is now raising peonies on a refurbished estate near Quincy, Virginia.

During her leisure hours she fishes with her husband, J. Dodd Martenson, a golf pro. Anna Held, Jr., while a bit plumper than her celebrated mother, has the same rolling eyes which the original Anna Held in her most famous song "could not make behave."

Two of the largest hotels recently had stamped on their silverware, "Stolen From Blank Hotel," in the effort to frustrate the souvenir hunters. Instead, it increased the pilfering. House detectives say such purloiners do not regard this sort of thefting as a moral issue any more than do some men income tax evasion.

I have heard of an otherwise respectable gentleman who has a complete dinner service for six pillaged from hotels all over the world.

Indeed, I've hooked a few towels and ash trays here and there myself.

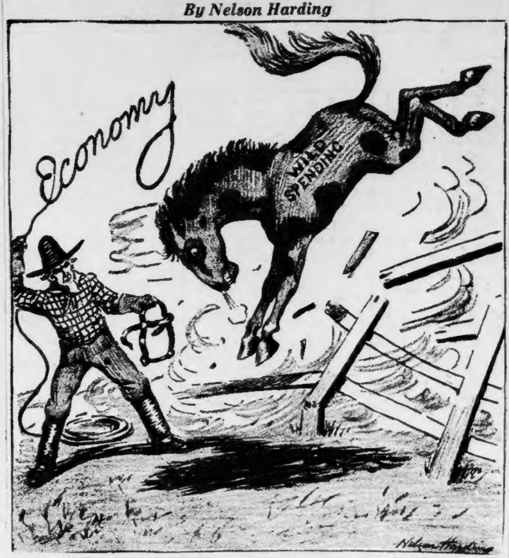
Can It Be Tamed?

By Nelson Harding



Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"If you were a man, how would you treat women?"

They staged a public debate in Dewitt, Illinois, the other night and asked me, too late, to speak on that half of the subject. But was there ever a female who could resist the makings of such a nice little mass murder? Certainly not this one! So here we come, even though the party's over.

Elsie Robinson

"How would I treat women if I were a man?"

Really want to know? Prepared to take it? Then here goes—

I'D TREAT THEM WITH GOBS OF SUSPICION AND A COMPLETE ARMORY OF SELF-PROTECTION.

Yes, I know that's a shocker. But someone must start being shocking if we are to clean up this colossal mass of stupid tradition which now separates the sexes.

So I repeat, if I were a man, I'd treat women with suspicion and duck when I saw them coming!

Why so? Don't I believe in my sisters? Aren't women as fine as men? I DO AND THEY ARE. But they are also so chockful of tommyrot notions about themselves and their sex that they are almost as tough to team with as their cave-dwelling great grandmas.

SHE'D FACE FACTS

Therefore, if I were a man, dealing with women, I'd kick chivalry out of the window and get right down to brass tacks. First off, no matter how much it hurt my masculine ego or her feminine one, I'd face the fact that WOMAN IS NEITHER DIFFERENT FROM NOR SUPERIOR TO MAN.

Even her physical dissimilarity is no longer held to be a handicap to women. The modern girl athlete has long since knocked the Clinging Vine theory into a cocked hat.

Mentally and morally, woman is on a par with man. Which doesn't pin many medals on either party! Neither sex is braver, brighter or better than the other. Neither has a monopoly on any virtue, any vice. In short, there is no "feminine nature" or "masculine nature."

There is only HUMAN NATURE, which is a heterogeneous mass of what-have-yous.

Nor has either sex a brain-bulge on the other. Due to long centuries of strictly domestic duties and environment, woman's mental horizon has remained more limited than man's, but it does not follow that her mental capacity is less than his.

Also lacking in foundation is this idiotic conception of Woman as the Helpless, Sensitive Sex. For, when she wants something—and when doesn't she!—the frailest little featherweight femme can become just about as helpless as a herd of elephants, and as ruthless in her technique.

FULL EQUALITY

And so, if I were a man, I'd remember all this and act accordingly. I'd say to Women at large:

"Listen, girls, you've asked for equality—well, here it is. You said you wanted to be treated regular—all right, you'll have your wish. Henceforth, I'm going to do my darndest to treat you all like regular guys.

"Meaning what? Meaning that I'll cut out my suspicions, if you'll cut out yours. I'll drop my shield, if you'll shelve yours. We'll be equals—really equals—if you'll promise to make it a 50-50 break. But there must be no exceptions . . . no special privileges . . . no crying off when things get tough, because you are a woman!

"Liberty? Yes! As much as any man, with the same faith that you'll use it sanely as a decent man would do. But with that liberty you'll have the same responsibility which a man must bear—the same self sacrifice. And the same penalty to be faced if it's abused."

That, if I were a man, is the bargain I'd make with women. Would the Sisterhood like it, accept it? I WONDER! Suppose YOU tell me YOUR bet. Yes? Fine! I'll be seeing you!

Marry —Go— Round

By Helen Rowland

Better an evening at home with a lively book than an hour and champagne with a deadly bore.

There are lots of things a pretty girl can do to wreck her looks and kill her charms besides skinning her hair back of her ears and wearing a dunce-cap for a hat—but none funnier or more effective.

To be too attractive makes a girl talked about. But if she can just get herself TALKED about, she doesn't need to be attractive. The men will come around anyway.

In her teens, a woman looks forward to love; in her twenties, she expects it; in her thirties, she strives to inspire it and, after forty, she cynically opens her purse-strings and prepares to buy a good imitation.

The rules of the love-game were once as clear and definite as the rules of bridge. But nowadays a girl has to play it by intuition—and with her fingers crossed.

Girls still continue to read all the advice on how to choose a husband, even though the "choice" in an average woman's life is about as limited as that in a table d'hote menu.

So susceptible is the average woman, that she would stick to a perfectly useless husband forever if he would just refrain from saying, "How fat you are!" and keep on saying "How cute you are!"

In some places, a man can drink only when sitting down—in others only when standing up. But to the woman who's waiting for him to come home to dinner, it doesn't make the slightest difference whether he does it sitting down or balancing on his head.

Traffic Rule for Love: Never try to head off a man who is determined to get past you. Give him the road—and save yourself from a big jolt and a lot of dents in your vanity.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Attorney-General Cummings in ordering the arrest of persons who allegedly interfered with mail trucks at steel plants in Ohio cities, says it doesn't make any difference to him who the offenders are. That is absolutely right. Laws are supposed to apply equally to all citizens.

As the Attorney-General says, "obstructing the mails is an interference that cannot be tolerated for a moment." If all government agencies, federal state and local, had taken that attitude from the start of the present wave of industrial trouble, many disgraceful situations would have been avoided.

It may be, as Stuart A. Rice, chairman of the United States Central Statistical Board and vice-president of the American Association for the Advance of Science, says that "strikes prove and always have proved a change in conditions—returning prosperity." But any people as intelligent as Americans are should be able to recognize prosperity without having that knowledge beaten into them by a series of strikes.

Improvement in business and economic conditions should be an occasion for rejoicing instead of fighting.

Many mothers, and fathers, too, will agree with the decision of Mrs. Louise Thaden, winner of the 1936 Bendix trophy race and one of this nation's most famous women fliers, that "a family is a lot more important than a so-called career." She has announced she is giving up aviation to devote herself to her two children who are six and four years old, respectively.

They need her much more than aviation does. There is nothing that women can do to advance aviation that men can't do. But neither men nor hired women can take the place of a mother in bringing up her own children.

There is no greater career than motherhood.

"You can have a career," reasons Mrs. Thaden, "but what have you got when you get through?"

The answer so far as she is concerned appears to be "nothing." That is not so poetic but it reminds one of the philosophy of Omar Khayyam in these lines from the Rubaiyat:

"When you and I behind the
veil are past,
"Oh, but the long, long while
the world shall last,
"Which of our coming and departure heeds
"As the sea's self should heed
a pebble-cast."

There are many examples to back up the assertion of the Wyoming University psychologist that school dunces often become business successes.

Time after time a "dull" student who has barely managed to skin through college has made a mark in the world, while honor students of his class have not been heard of again.

The qualities essential to success in business are quite different from those needed to earn high marks in the school class room.

Scientists say the skull of an Indian, who lived more than 300 years ago, recently found in Virginia far exceeds in brain capacity any skull heretofore measured.

That does not necessarily mean this Indian was the brainiest man, as we understand the term, who ever lived.

Mental powers are not measured solely by the brain capacity of a skull.

The Patent Monopoly

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Here's an odd and revealing bit of news, stored away in the newspaper dust-bin of small items.

Edwin C. Hill

After two years, the Interstate Commerce Commission rules that all steam locomotives built after September 1 must be equipped with power-operated reverse gear. All engines of more than 150,000 pounds, now in use, must also make this change. This will cost the railroads somewhere around $5,000,000.

It has been maintained that the old-fashioned "Johnson bar" had a way of whipping out of its quadrant and wrapping seven or eight feet of steel around the engineer's neck. Hence the governmental decree in engine building.

One can have no quarrel with legislation to safeguard life. To this department, the item is interesting as one more exhibit in the endless elaboration and expansion of government in its effort to govern in a machine age.

The courts are swamped with technological subtleties which no mere lawyer-judge could hope to understand. There was printed in "Harper's Magazine" a few months ago one of those "stand-out" articles, like Haldane's "Daedelus" of 13 years ago. It was called "Why Things Grow Old," and it was, in essence, a novel, plausible statement of the decadence which lies in complexity and over-specialization.

OUR ALL-SEEING EYE

Specialization in government, reaching down even to an errant engine bar, moves forward at a growing pace. Whether we like it or not, our government has become our All-Seeing Eye, and virtually nothing lies beyond its widening ambit of vision. Human beings are plastic and can take a lot of punishment. Machines are not. Their effective regimentation and control calls for precision.

And here lies a zone of increasing confusion and bewilderment—the glut of patents in the Patent Office, with 30 per cent of them involved in litigation. There is the obvious inability of non-technical courts to rule with certainty and precision in the bewildering complex of mechanics, metallurgy, physics, chemistry and bio-chemistry which our technology feeds steadily into the hopper of the law mills.

In November of last year, there was celebrated the one-hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Patent Office. The assignment of a patent monopoly by the founding fathers to the inventor was one of their most definite assertions of democracy and equality, unprecedented in the world of that day.

It nourished our inventive genius. More than 2,000,000 patents were granted in that century. The garret inventor came into his own. We built our vast machine establishment.

But, rounding this particular turn of a century, we find the garret inventor becoming as extinct as the great auk. Many of the great industrial concerns and the great utility and equipment companies are not bothering to take out patents any more. Their sustained research, which they must maintain with or without a Patent Office, impels them into deep technical complexities, each of which is a derivative or contributor to some complicated process or idea. Putting it in the Patent Office would be like cutting off your leg and sending it to the doctor.

A BETTER PROTECTION

So vast and interlocking is this new pattern of techniques, materials and energies that the great entrepreneurs of machine production have in their virtual monopoly of any main process a better protection than they could get in the courts. While the Patent Office is one of the few solvent and self-sustaining departments of government, the entire machinery of administration of patent laws is beginning to creak. Litigation is expensive and it usually drags on for years.

Our commercial genius has been quick to utilize the findings of science. The word "vitamin" leaps from the laboratory to the advertisement in a single bound. Rivals in food processing lay claim to this or that method of salvaging the vitamins. It goes to court. Probably no judge in the world could follow intelligently the opposing arguments, for the process was made possible by Einstein's variant which indicated the exact stance in the spectrum from which the safeguarding ray is launched. All that is stratosphere mathematics.

Scientists help the lawyers prepare their briefs. We all know of brilliant criminal lawyers, like the late Delphin M. Delmas, who would bone up on medicine and confound some doctor witness. But this is all too complex and too infinitely specialized. The lawyers, like the judges, have to take it all on faith and do the best they can.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

"Then I said to myself that after being in the nut house all of your life, you can't go to the chair. You might, but the chances are that you won't. They'll put me in a nut house again and then I'll be there all the rest of my life and catch up with myself in a spiritual way."

Herein Robert Irwin, who confessed in the offices of the Chicago Herald & Examiner to the triple Easter Sunday murder in a New York apartment, laid bare for the world the very heart of the crooked "reasoning" of a man plotting a murder.

Irwin visualizes murder. A voice in his brain whispers: "What about the penalty if you are caught?" Another voice—a wish-thought voice—murmurs: "You'll beat the chair. As you were once in an asylum, they'll say you are insane."

Then a third voice: "In the asylum I'll develop my spiritual nature and make my peace with God!"

And standing in back of those voices is "the INSANE ROOT that takes the reason prisoner."

The remarkable confession of Robert Irwin reveals that intelligence, the artistic instinct and a highly developed reasoning faculty are NOT guarantees against crime.

The jack in the box in the international situation around Spain turns out to be IRON.

Bilbao is rich in iron mines. Both Germany and Italy need iron. So hard up is Italy for iron that park fences and grillwork are being torn up for government use. The duty has been lifted on scrap-iron from Austria.

Germany had technicians in Bilbao inspecting the iron mines. British foundries had been taking three-fourths of the iron ore product of the Basque country until the Insurgent blockade.

France, Britain, Germany and Italy, as usual, assert that "great principles" are at stake. But, as usual also, the "principles" are ONLY MASKS FOR IRON, OIL OR WORLD-TRADE.

The Demagogues' Club, composed of a number of Democratic members of the House of Representatives, recalls the simple and harmless meaning of the word "demagogue."

Demagogue, from the Greek, means literally a people-leader. In this sense, all the great statesmen and founders of religions have been demagogues. So have all the poets and novelists—for ALL that is done is done TO INFLUENCE SOME ONE SOMEWHERE. Our profoundest craving is for an audience. We all desire TO IMPRESS SOME ONE. In this respect, we are all actors.

But, like all words, "demagogue" has been corrupted in meaning—pulled down to the mental level of the mere rabble-rouser and egotistic ballyhooer.

"The first line of defense in any country is the character of the citizenship."

This sentence of Senator Borah's drives right to the heart of almost all our political and social problems.

It was CHARACTER, and not planning, that built America. The core of that pioneering character was SELF-RELIANCE.

It was STURDY, SELF-RELIANT CHARACTER of the Englishman that built the British Empire, without which her navies and her armies would have been mere cardboard.

It was the decay of the sterner virtues and the power of personal resistance in the Roman character that made Rome an easy prey to the northern barbarians.

Preserving the SELF-RELIANT strain in the American character against the encroaching parasitic isms of the old world must, today, be our FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE.

If you are thinking of going into the diplomatic service have your blood tested for "O-Type" corpuscles.

Dr. Nigaki, medical adviser to the Japanese Foreign Office, urges his government to pick only full-blooded "O-Stock" for diplomatic posts.

Men with "O-Blood" have "A gentle mien cloaking an iron will. We no longer want pale, anemic, geisha-type fellows in the government," says this doctor.

The ideal Japanese diplomat, then, would of course be Joe E. Brown or Victor McLaglen.
